HITLER REVEALS HE NOW HAS A POWERFUL NAVY

Every Type of Ship Included in Fleet.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2. — Reichsfuehrer Hitler's navy, it was disclosed today, has made strenuous efforts to keep pace with the German army and air force, which Nazi leaders have described as the most powerful in the world.

Strong increases in every category of the German navy, from super-battleships to 20 ton speed boats, are disclosed by the official navy year book of the German admiralty.

The construction of two 35,000 ton battleships at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven is rapidly progressing. A third battleship of this type is planned. All three will be armed with eight 15 inch guns, twelve 6 inch guns and anti-aircraft artillery. The first of these vessels will be launched next year.

Plans Four Light Cruisers.

The 26,000 ton battleship Scharnhorst will be placed in commission soon. This will be the second battleship of this class in the German navy.

Germany is planning four light cruisers—K, L, M, and N—each displacing 7,000 tons. Two other light cruisers, armed with 6-inch guns and displacing 10,000 tons, are being built.

In accordance with treaty obligations, Germany will not increase the number of its more heavily armed cruisers. Two of these are in commission and a third is under construction. Details of their armament, disclosed by the year book, show they are more efficiently equipped against aircraft than any vessel of the same type in the navies of other nations.

In addition to their main armament of eight 8-inch guns, these 10,000 ton cruisers have anti-aircraft artillery of twelve 4-inch guns, twelve 1.5-inch guns, and a great number of super heavy machine guns, probably of 20 mm. bore.

Have Torpedo Tubes.

These vessels also are heavily equipped with torpedo tubes. They have twelve each of 21-inch bore in triple mounts. Despite their heavy armaments, the cruisers have a designed speed of 32 knots. They carry three seaplanes aboard.

The first of Germany's two 19,250 ton aircraft carriers will be launched at Kiel next Thursday. This vessel is remarkable for its comparatively heavy armament, which is designed to enable it to defend itself against lighter enemy seacraft without depending on the protection of cruisers or destroyers. It is armed with sixteen 6-inch guns, ten 4-inch guns, and twenty-two 1.5-inch guns.

The carrier has a designed speed of 32 knots. It is added that the maximum speed probably will be greater. The vessel carries 40 airplanes. It is explained that if this is somewhat lower than ships of the same type and size other navies carry, the German figure does not include aircraft fastened to the flying deck, but only such planes as can be stowed away in the hangars below deck.

Planes Are Described.

The new German ship will carry three seater planes of the AR-95 type, with twin floats and landing gear enabling them to operate on land. They are equipped with two machine guns and can be used as scouters, bombers, and torpedo planes. They fire torpedoes weighing 1,763 pounds.

Germany now has 30 destroyers, either in commission or being built. The construction of twelve 600 ton torpedo boats is planned in addition to eighteen recently completed.

Germany is planning the construction of ten more submarines, which will bring the total in this category up to 71. This is more in numbers than the British navy has, although the German U-boats are smaller in tonnage. Fifteen of these submarines are of the 740 ton class, 24 of the 500 ton type and 32, designed for coastal defense, displacing 250 tons each.

Plans New Minesweepers.

Germany also is planning the construction of 12 minesweepers and 12 speedboats, bringing the total in the latter category to 37.

The Danube fleet, which has become of great importance since the annexation of Austria and Sudetenland, is being increased by 12 warcraft for the removal of river booms, mines and other obstructions.

Italy's Threat of War Stirs France

PARIS DELIVERS NEW PROTEST NOTE TO ROME

Daladier Harassed as Strikes Grow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Faced with an open threat of war from Rome, the French government was further harassed tonight by a new wave of strikes. The walkouts came as a result of reprisals taken against workers who participated in the unsuccessful general strike Wednesday.

In an effort to relieve the pressure at home while he combats the Italian threat against French colonies, Premier Edouard Daladier addressed an appeal to employers not to penalize workers who obeyed union orders to join the general strike. He warned that collective contracts between workers and employers are not to be tampered with. Some employers have locked out thousands of employés, claiming that the workers themselves broke their contracts by taking part in the strike. The workers have been informed that they will be hired back only individually and on the employers' terms.

Hands New Protest to Italy.

On the international front, the government delivered to Premier Mussolini its second protest in two days against the anti-French scene in the Italian chamber of deputies Wednesday. The deputies, responding to a speech by Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, in which he outlined the "interests and aspirations of the government," raised cries of "Tunisia! Corsica! Nice! Savoy!" These are all French possessions.

Andre François-Poncet, recently appointed French ambassador to Italy, handed the new protest to Count Ciano. Last night Georges Bonnet, French foreign minister, summoned Raffaele Guariglia, Italian ambassador to Paris, and demanded an explanation of the Italian deputies' demonstration.

The Italian war threat was made by Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, who is regarded as a spokesman for Mussolini. Writing in the newspaper Giornale D'Italia of Rome, Gayda declared Italy "is united solidly behind its government and is ready for everything, is ready to march—even against France—if it is necessary."

Seen as Organized Campaign.

This strong language, coming from such a high source, combined with the anti-French campaign which has been unleashed in the government controled press in Italy, was considered as evidence here that the scene in the Italian chamber was not spontaneous. It was regarded as part of an organized Fascist campaign, possibly to compensate Mussolini in the Mediterranean for his support of Reichsfuehrer Hitler when the latter grabbed Austria and the Sudeten area of Czecho-Slovakia.

The exact grounds for the Italian claim to Tunisia has not been made clear. This French protectorate, on the northern coast of Africa, in ancient times was one of the granaries of Rome. It borders on the Italian colony of Libya.

Last night the Italian newspaper Lavoro Fascista said this of Tunisia: "Fascism has been a great avenger

CHIVALRY OF POLICE STOPS SHORT AT TAXI SERVICE FOR A LADY

All she wanted was a police squad—to take her home. The young woman who telephoned Sergt. John Kennedy at the Shakespeare avenue station last night said she'd like the squad to meet her early today when she quits work in a near north side night club.

No doubt the squad and the young woman would both like the arrangement, Sergt. Kennedy said. But he couldn't have his squads doing taxi service. If she were afraid, however, he could have the squad meet her when she gets off the street car near her home.

"It's not that I'm afraid," explained the young woman, who never revealed her identity. "But I'm holding down two jobs. I thought I could get to bed sooner if the squad would drive me home. That's all."

CO-EDS STUDY HARDEST, SAYS DE PAUL SURVEY

You may hear more about men on the athletic field, but the co-eds at De Paul university are more studious than the men, according to a survey announced yesterday. The average college man studies twenty-five hours each week, the woman fifty hours.

Co-eds also read twice as many books as the men do, the average woman student finishing four a month, while men complete only two. And their literary tastes vary.

The women prefer, in this order, Belloc, Chesterton, and Hugo, with Poe and Ogden Nash for poets. Among the men the choices are Sinclair Lewis, Belloc, O. Henry, and Hervey Allen, with the same poets.

Blind Woman's Ears, Deaf Man's Eyes Solve Slaying

Toledo, O., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The ears of a blind woman and the eyes of a deaf man combined today to supply Detective Ralph Murphy with evidence upon which he based a charge of first degree manslaughter against Charles Brown, 59 years old. Murphy said the woman told him of a quarrel she had heard, and the man, although unable to hear the quarrel, described the ensuing fight. Brown is accused of killing John Dianzio, 35 years old, by striking him with a baseball bat. Brown was held to the grand jury.

Charity's Star Still Shines for City Mothers

Chicago's relief rolls are crowded, but what about the load carried by its private charities? The Tribune today begins a series on worth-while services which Chicagoans maintain. These charities work on budgets pared to the bone. Their waiting lists are long; their need is great. If you feel the spirit of Tiny Tim this Christmas time, here is information which may aid you in expressing it.

BY MARCIA WINN.

More than 2,000 years ago three wise men followed a star in the East to find, lying in a straw-filled manger, a newborn Child.

In the heart of Chicago today there is a place, the Chicago Maternity center, unsung save by the very poor, where every night is the night of a newborn child, or of ten.

Here the guiding star is the jangle of the telephone over which a frantic voice gives a number, such as "27,460"—the center's registration number for one expectant mother—and the men and women who set out to follow this star are wise in the science of obstetrics.

As Many as 14 a Night.

In the last six years they have delivered 18,916 babies in the homes of the poor over a 210 mile square area of Chicago. Three thousand a year. Two hundred and fifty a month. As many as fourteen on a single night.

Some of the babies are born on beds of straw, some on beds padded with old newspapers, some on beds from which five other children first must be lifted. Two years ago one was born on a streetcar. A year ago one was born on a frosty doorstep. Last week one was born under the gaunt iron structure of the elevated lines in a southside alley.

Some are born in Polish homes in south Chicago, while an unemployed steel worker waits anxiously in the kitchen; some in Mexican homes

RIDICULE WOLVERINE; SUGGEST MICHIGAN BE LABELED LAKE STATE

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—A resolution calling the Wolverine "a cowardly, slothful, and gluttonous beast," and proposing that henceforth Michigan be referred to as the "Lake state" instead of the "Wolverine state" was adopted today at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Michigan Tourist and Publicity association. The Wolverine, largest of the weasel family, is nearing extinction. There are only seven wolverines in Michigan, all in the Detroit zoo—and they came from Alaska.

"SIGN OF THE HORNS" CITED AS DIVORCE CAUSE

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Carrie Cooper, a Negro maid, touched the tip of her index finger against the tip of the little finger on each hand. Then she raised her hands to her forehead in a manner suggesting horns. "She made horns like this behind her husband's back," Mrs. Cooper testified against Josephine Marotta, 36 years old, who is being sued for divorce by Giacomo Marotta, 72.

Supreme Court Justice Lewis L. Fawcett permitted Vincent d'Agrossa, court interpreter, to testify as an expert on Italian customs. "It is what we call 'Cornuto,' the sign of the horns," d'Agrossa asserted. "It may mean many things. Some people think it means the evil eye, but usually it is the symbol of unfaithfulness."

Mrs. Marotta, who was described as "a beautiful brunette" six years ago when she was acquitted of manslaughter after shooting her lover, Louis Goumas, denied that she made the sign or was unfaithful to the man she married after her acquittal.

74 to Read New Testament in 18 Hour Church Service

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A reading of the New Testament from cover to cover in an 18 hour service was arranged today by the Baptist temple, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, temple pastor and head of the world Christian Endeavor union, said seventy-four members of his congregation would read in 15 minute periods beginning at 3 a. m. Sunday, Dec. 11, and continuing without interruption until 9 p. m.

Denies Using Chorus Girls as Lobbyists

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—William P. Buckner, young Wall street financier, denied today that he had used New York chorus girls in an attempt to sway congressmen at lavish parties in Washington, D. C.

Assistant United States Attorney William P. Maloney said the broker had established a "beauty lobby" in the capital to work for the redemptio nof defaulted Philippine railway bonds. The prosecutor said Buckner had flown five chorines from the Paradise night club in New York to a hotel party in Washington in August, 1937.

"That's ridiculous," the broker, who is 31 years old, said when he was questioned about the matter upon his arrest in an alleged $100,000 Philippine bond fraud. "It would be a terrible thing," he said, "if our statesmen in Washington could be influenced in such a manner."

$5,000 Hotel Bill Denied.

Officials of the Carlton hotel in Washington also denied reports that the dashing young man had run up a bill of $5,000 there in entertaining congressmen with chorus girls.

Buckner repeated today his assertion that he is a friend of Loretta Young, the movie star, and a bundle of endearing communications taken from his luggage supported his statement.

Following his arrest last night as he stepped off the liner Queen Mary after a trip to England, Buckner anxiously telephoned Miss Young in Hollywood, "to reassure her," he said.

Cablegram Endearments.

"Darling Buck, your sweet wire Sunday seems years away," said a cable sent from Los Angeles to Buckner's London address on Oct. 15.

Another one of the cables, which cost 34 cents a word, read: "Darling, 'Suez' opened here last night. However, I am waiting here to see it with you. Please hurry, darling."

"Suez" is the name of Loretta Young's latest picture. It had its premiere in New York on Oct. 14.

Buckner, a nephew of Thomas A. Buckner, chairman of the board of the New York Life Insurance company, was released on bond of $2,000. He is charged with spreading false reports about Philippine railway bonds, causing them to leap from $11 to $31. Through his maneuvers, it is charged, bondholders were mulcted of $100,000.

GUNMEN REAP BENEFIT, JUDGE EPSTEIN SAYS

150 More Given Way Out of Prison.

Judge Benjamin Epstein yesterday assailed the indeterminate sentence act as a benefit to criminals at the expense of the public. His criticisms were made as the state board of pardons and paroles announced it was turning loose from state prisons 150 more parolees, 74 of them to Cook county. Among them are:

Earl Hardgrave.

Two WPA workers who turned to robbery after an orgy of gambling and drinking.

An Illinois Emergency Relief commission clerk who forged and cashed relief orders.

Law Aids Gunman-Parolee.

Judge Epstein's attack on indeterminate sentence was made when he found himself powerless to incarcerate permanently a parolee who had wantonly shot two policemen.

The parolee is Earl Hardgrave, 33 years old, who was sentenced to one to fourteen years in the penitentiary for assault to murder. The sentence is to run consecutively with a previous similar sentence imposed as a result of the wounding of the policemen by Hardgrave in a gun battle last Dec. 16. Under the present setup of the indeterminate sentence act it is possible for Hardgrave to be paroled in twenty-two months.

The Hardgrave case is a perfect example of the helplessness of the judges of the Criminal court who want to protect the public from vicious, gun toting criminals, Judge Epstein said. He pointed out that the judges can only impose sentence as prescribed by the indeterminate sentence act, no matter what the facts may be, and then hope that the parole board will use its discretion in favor of the public.

Reform Vetoed by Horner.

An effort to correct the condition assailed by Judge Epstein was made in a parole reform campaign led by State Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago] and Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] last year. A series of measures suggested by Frank J. Loesch, president emeritus of the Chicago Crime commission, Judge John Prystalski of the Circuit court, and all leading Chicago court and police officials, were adopted by the 1937 legislature. But then the most important bill was vetoed by Gov. Horner. The sponsors of the bill said they would fight for it again at the next session.

The proposed law would have made it mandatory for the trial judge to fix a minimum and maximum sentence for criminals. Under it the parole board would have lost most of its discretion and could have given paroles only after the minimum time was served.

"In a case of this kind," Judge Epstein said, referring to Hardgrave, "the court should be able to use some discretion to protect the public. If it were in my power I would sentence this defendant to such a term as would insure his permanent incarceration. The public is entitled at least to be sure that a mad dog like this is never set loose to prey on it again.

Court's Hands Are Tied.

"All I can do is sentence this defendant under the so-called indeterminate sentence act and hope the parole board will use its discretion in favor of the public. If ever there was a case where the defendant had a malignant heart and intent to murder, it was in this one. But under the indeterminate sentence act the court is practically stripped of discretion. For some reason the discretion is limited to the board of pardons and paroles.

"The absurdity of the law is best illustrated by contrast. If I have a young boy before me for stealing an automobile, for instance, I have no alternative but to sentence him for 1 to 20 years under the indeterminate sentence law. He may have no record other than having stolen a bicycle. On the other hand, in this case I have before me a parolee, a hardened criminal, who shot down two policemen, and the law does not even provide for him the maximum of 20 years that it does for the automobile thief."

In response to Attorney Robert Romano's plea that Hardgrave's two sentences be made to run concurrently, the judge said it was only a "miracle" that he did not kill the policeman.

"In that case," said the court, "he would now be facing the electric chair, which might be just punishment for him."

Escapes After Shooting.

Hardgrave, who previously served a term in Pontiac reformatory on five charges of larceny, shot and wounded Police Detectives Patrick Griffin and Frank Crowley when they sought to question him in front of 2021 North avenue. In the ensuing gun battle the two policemen and two civilians were wounded and Harry Thomas, a pal of Hardgrave, was killed.

Hardgrave escaped. The very next day he got into a second gun battle with a squad under Sergt. Anthony Bongiorno. He again escaped and was not arrested until last summer. At his trial one of his witnesses, Ralph Lundstrom, 904 Fullerton avenue, was trapped in perjury and was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell for contempt of court.

Although under five charges, originally Hardgrave served less than seven years on his original Pontiac sentence, which was imposed Aug. 10, 1927. He was paroled on Jan. 20, 1934, in spite of the fact that he had once escaped and had been returned to the reformatory under heavy guard.

Burglar Gets Third Parole.

All of the 150 paroles granted in November have not become effective because sponsors and jobs have not yet been found for prisoners. Among those benefiting from the board's discretion were Thomas Collins, who got his third parole. He was originally sentenced in 1928 for burglary. He was released on parole in 1931, but violated his trust and was returned. Collins got his second parole on Sept. 16, 1933. Within a few weeks he was in prison again as a result of conspiring to rob a physician.

Duncan Ferguson and Elmer Hammerquist, WPA employés, who on Feb. 6, 1936, were sentenced to one year to life for robbery, were others who receivd the benefit yesterday of the parole board's discretion. After a drinking and gambling debauch they helped an ex-convict rob a railroad employé of his pay at the point of a shot gun. Another parolee was Hector Penna, 37 years old, who in 1936 was convicted of forging relief orders for food.

Another Parole Violator Seized.

Walter Procuski, alias Walter Rapczynski, 23 years old, is the latest parolee rounded up by the Chicago police as a law breaker. He was identified yesterday by victims in ten robberies. His wife, Estelle, 21, is being held for investigation. He was paroled two years ago after serving three years in Pontiac reformatory for auto thefts. Previously he served two years in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., for auto stealing. He said he was first arrested when 14 years old.

2 TAKE A BEATING BUT SAVE HIDDEN $4,000 IN ROBBERY

Slugged and beaten by three robbers who sought $4,000 he had just brought from a bank, George Siwicki, a tavern owner and his bartender, Thomas Kilarski, yesterday saved the money and foiled the bandits. The robbers were forced to be content with $150 they found in the till.

Siwicki had just secreted the money in his tavern at 5801 West 63d street, and gone next door to a grocery, when the thieves entered. They forced Kilarski and three customers to lie on the floor, and then began their hunt through the tavern and an upstairs flat.

Siwicki returned. The robbers struck him and Kilarski with their guns when the two men insisted the money was not there. After the thieves fled, Siwicki told police that at one time they almost found his hiding place. He uses the money to cash checks.

3 STATE POLICE RADIO BLOCKADE A BANDIT TRAP

Chicago Engineer Tells of New System.

How police in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and other states can be organized almost instantaneously for a coordinated crime hunt through the use of interrelated radio communication was explained yesterday by Fred H. Schnell, radio engineer for the Chicago police department.

The present police radio system with two way short wave communication between stations and squad cars makes it possible for police to blockade effectively roads over a wide area. Recent gang captures have proved radio one of the greatest modern aids to crime fighting. Schnell cited a typical flight. Here is what happens.

Gang Heads for Chicago.

A gang of bandits holds up a bank in Ohio. They escape with their loot in a fast automobile. They hope to reach Chicago and hide out, or possibly make Milwaukee. Their route is through Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Their car can average sixty miles an hour—for many hours. They race through Indiana and approach the Chicago metropolitan area.

Indiana police notify Chicago the bandits are coming this way. Chicago police put the alarm on the air. It is picked up by stations at Waukegan, Oak Park, and Lake Forest. The Waukegan department station rebroadcasts to Elkhorn, Kenosha, Racine, Milwaukee, and Waukesha in Wisconsin.

Oak Park relays the alarm to River Forest, Melrose Park, Forest Park, and Cicero. Elgin, Aurora, and Joliet, in the meantime, pick up the word either from the Chicago police radio or the Oak Park station. Wheaton's broadcast is heard at Elmhurst.

Bandits' Chances Slim.

On the north shore Lake Forest sends the alarm to Highland Park, Glencoe, Winnetka, Kenilworth, Wilmette, Evanston, Park Ridge, and Niles Center. On the south police of Chicago Heights, Whiting, Hammond, and Gary, Ind., have received the alarm from the Indiana police.

"Thus over this wide area police have begun their blockade of roads in the hunt for the bandit car," Schnell said. "If there has been a reasonably good description of the gunmen and their automobile their chance of getting through the police is very slim."

NERVOUS BANDIT SHOOTS TAILOR IN SHOP; FLEES

One of two nervous bandits shot and seriously wounded an elderly tailor in his shop at 3184½ Milwaukee avenue last night. The victim, Aaron Nowinson, 63 years old, was taken to the Belmont hospital in a critical condition.

Nowinson was sitting alone in his shop when the bandits entered. One of them ordered him to the rear. As Nowinson turned and started to comply the bandit shot him in the right side. The outlaws fled. Nowinson lives at 2056 North Sawyer avenue.

SON CONFESSES KILLING OF HIS PASTOR-FATHER

Shot Minister When He Tried to Sober Him.

Chillicothe, O., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Slaying of the Rev. Russell H. Bready, widely known Methodist minister, was confessed tonight by his son, Robert Bready, 29 years old.

Sherif Joseph Vincent said the young man admitted he was in a drunken stupor when he shot his father to death early today in nearby Bainbridge, where they lived. The shooting occurred a few blocks from their home, Robert said, while the pastor was taking him for a walk to sober him up.

Held for First Degree Murder.

The son, who described himself as having made a career of drinking, was quoted earlier as saying he was too drunk to remember much about the killing. He was a patient in the Toledo, O., state hospital, an institution for mental cases, two years ago.

Deputy Sherif Don Lowrey said young Bready, held in jail here, would be charged with first degree murder. Lowrey and Sherif Vincent said they obtained the confession after an hour and a half of questioning.

Bready admitted, the sherif said, that he had carried a revolver with him on several occasions lately and that it was in his possession yesterday. The shooting occurred when his father tried to restrain him from taking a drink as they walked in the early morning near the parsonage.

Son Slays Minister

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Dr. Bready, who was 62 years old, was well known throughout Michigan as a speaker. He had held pastorates in Detroit, Pontiac, Grand Rapids, Port Huron, Cadillac, and Big Rapids, Mich., before going to Bainbridge two years ago. He was mayor pro tem of Pontiac in 1920.

Lived in Father's Home.

The pastor and his son lived alone in the Bready home. Dr. Bready's wife died last July. The son is married, but has been separated from his wife for several years. He occasionally worked as an accountant.

About 4 o'clock this morning, young Bready telephoned several residents in Bainbridge, a village of 800, to ask whether they knew the whereabouts of his father. He said the pastor was not home.

An hour later the Rev. Mr. Bready's body was found on the sidewalk, a bullet wound in the head. After the body had been removed to a morgue, Village Marshal Earl Edgington went to the parsonage.

Robert was partly disrobed and apparently had been awakened by the marshal's rapping. He appeared little surprised, Edgington said later, when told that his father was dead. Taken to the morgue, young Bready's only comment was: "So father's dead?"

A search of the house revealed blood in a downstairs room and three upstairs bedrooms and a pistol in Robert's room.

"This is the end of a perfect life," young Bready said later in his cell. "You can search my life from beginning to end and not find a good thing in it.

"Father was the original prohibitionist, and I made a career of drinking."

The son returned here a year ago after an absence of several months and said he had spent five months fighting with the loyalist forces in Spain.

ORDER GIRL'S BODY EXHUMED IN INDIANA QUIZ

Jury Reopens Probe Into Roadside Mystery.

Investigation into the mysterious death of Miss Frieda Borman, 22 years old, whose body was found beside a lonely road near Griffith, Ind., ten miles south of Gary, on Nov. 3, was reopened yesterday by Judge William J. Murray of the Lake County Criminal court in Crown Point.

He ordered J. Robert Doty, Lake county coroner, to exhume the body of Miss Borman and hold it in a Gary funeral home for pathological and toxicological tests. These will be made by C. W. Muehlberger, toxicologist for the Cook county coroner.

Subpena Family and Fiance.

Meanwhile, subpenas were issued for various Lake county officers, members of the dead girl's family, and her fiancé, Keith Alson, 21, of Gary, who are to appear before the grand jury Tuesday morning.

According to State's Attorney Fred Egan, the grand jury investigation is directed toward determining just how the girl died, and who was responsible if it is found to be murder. Egan said he placed the matter before the grand jury Thursday after other authorities investigating the case failed to find a solution.

The body of Miss Borman was found after she had been missing from her home in West Gary for several days. Coroner Doty first said there were no marks of violence and that the clothing had not been disarranged.

Victim Raped Before Death.

Later he reported the girl had been raped before her death. Contents of her stomach were examined by City Chemist Charles Zumfelde of Gary, who is one of those summoned before the grand jury. No traces of poison were found.

Members of Miss Borman's family told the police that it was the girl's habit to work uptown and return by street car at night. A search for her was started when she failed to come home.

Alson told officials that he had not seen her since she had visited him on a farm where he is employed, near Gary, some days before her disappearance. He said that he went to town to visit her after receiving a letter from her, and was told by the family she had disappeared. He then aided the family in the search.

At one time the officials theorized that the girl might have been killed with chloroform or committed suicide.

Prosecutor Egan said the grand jury has also sent for a transcript of lie detector tests given Alson and members of the family by Leonarde Keeler in the Crime Detection laboratory in Chicago.

Ordered to Pay

Richard Joseph Bower III., or "Sweetie Pie," ordered by jury to pay Mrs. Vashti De Berry, his "Little Flower," $739.30.

Mrs. Vashti De Berry, or "Little Flower," who was sued for $25,000 by Bower yesterday as jury made decision in case.

HER SWEETIE PIE SHOULD PAY BACK $739, JURY HOLDS

He Files a Counter Suit for $25,000.

A jury in Municipal court decided yesterday that Sweetie Pie owed Little Flower $739.30. At the same time Sweetie Pie's attorney filed a suit against Little Flower asking $25,000 damages for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment.

It all began in 1933 when Mrs. Vashti De Berry's husband died and left her $30,000 in insurance. Three years later she met Richard Joseph Bower III. She was then 40 years old and he was 26, but it wasn't long until they were close friends. She called him Sweetie Pie. He called her Little Flower.

Promises to Marry Her.

They traveled, looking for a job for Bower, Mrs. De Berry testified. They were in Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, and other places. And Little Flower paid the bills. She didn't mind, she said, because Sweetie Pie had promised to marry her.

Sweetie Pie found his job last March in a loop department store. He also found another woman, whom he since has married. Little Flower filed suit to recover $7,500 which she said she had spent on him.

The jury in Judge Joseph J. Drucker's court looked at checks indorsed by Bower, hotel bills which Mrs. De Berry said she paid for him, and money orders sent to him.

Four verses, which Bower admitted he wrote to Mrs. De Berry, also were introduced into evidence by Attorney Nat M. Kahn. One of the verses follows:

"A gardenia to you, my darling,
And may the fragrance evermore
Remind you of my devotion
Now and for evermore;
At times I may go erring,
But always stand by my side.
Remember I'll be faithful, as when
You were my bride."

In another, written in Detroit, Sweetie Pie says:

"Something is bound to happen
To make the day so sweet,
So have patience my little flower,
Remember at 2:30 we meet."

Malice Count in Verdict.

The jury added a malice count in its verdict, which means Bower can be sent to jail for failure to pay.

Bower, who lives at 222 East Huron street, was arrested on a confidence game charge preferred by Mrs. De Berry last April. He was found not guilty. The suit filed against Little Flower yesterday by his attorney, Thomas F. Dolan, seeks $25,000 for attorney's fees and other expenses, as well as to compensate for "the great mental anguish, humiliation, shame, and disgrace which the arrest caused him.

BACKS UP HIS DEMAND FOR 'JUSTICE' WITH RIPE TOMATOES; JAILED

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A disappointed litigant stood up today in the august Court of Appeals and bombarded two bewigged lord justices with tomatoes. He missed, but the justices, Sir Charles Clauson and Sir Rayner Goddard, gave him six weeks in prison for gross contempt of court.

The litigant, Frank Harrison, had been refused an appeal for a new trial in an action in which he was involved. He departed muttering. Later he returned, shouted "I want justice," and opened fire at the justices with tomatoes.

PAINTERS OFFER $5,000 REWARD FOR DUNGAN KILLERS

In order to spur the investigation of the slaying of James G. Dungan, business agent of painters' union, local 191, a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderers was offered yesterday. Dungan was shot to death in front of his home at 3116 Lowe avenue on Aug. 8.

Attorney William Rodriguez, who announced the reward in behalf of the district council of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers of America, said that the money was contributed by fourteen locals, representing 12,000 out of 16,000 members.

SHEARERS SHOW THEIR ART; SHEEP LOSE OVERCOATS

Stock Show Contest Won by Illinoisian.

Sitting placidly on the knees of husky shearers, sheep saw themselves fleeced of their winter coats at the International Live Stock show yesterday. And although they didn't like it, few of them gave even a baa of protest.

A youthful Illinois farmer won the first sheep shearing contest in the history of the show by shearing all three of his sheep in a shade under ten minutes. He was Clarence Jeffers, who came from a farm near Princeton to give the best sheep shearers from seven states and Canada a lesson in speed and perfection.

Use Big Electric Clippers.

The shearing was done with electric clippers, four times the size of those the barber uses. The whir may frighten a timid sheep, but the clippers don't hurt like the old-fashioned shears did when the shearers got in a hurry.

Now shearing a sheep is an art. You catch your sheep and with a quick twist throw your arm under his neck and put him upon your knee. He can't bite you because he hasn't any upper front teeth.

Then you run your clippers over his belly. His legs come next. Then his sides. Then his back. Part of the time you have to hold him between your legs.

If you've been careful you won't have left any wool to require what sheep men call a second cut. And you'll have a fleece that will hang together when you finish. Turn it inside out, and it's white and lustrous, the kind any sheep could be proud of.

Earns 25c a Sheep.

Hand operated clippers are practically unknown these days. Men capable of shearing sheep properly are known as custom shearers. Jeffers, 25 years old and less husky than the other shearers, enjoys that title. He travels about his neighborhood at shearing time, in May and June, and gets 25 cents a sheep for shearing for other farmers. His average is 135 sheep a day.

If you're worrying about the sheep shorn yesterday, don't. They'll be given overcoats or be kept in warm places until their coats grow in again, for their owners know sheep catch dreadful colds.

$1,000,000 AUCTION HELD

More than a million dollars' worth of prize winning animals went through the public auction rings during the two day annual sale at the International Live Stock exposition. Packingtown was heavily stocked with a supply of the nation's finest fat cattle, hogs, and sheep when the second day sale ended late yesterday afternoon. Virtually all of the fat animals, excluding breeding herds and flocks, will be made into Christmas meat.

B. H. Heide, manager of the exposition, said last night that more than 356,000 persons have visited the show, which closes with the horse show tonight. There was a crowd of approximately 59,000 yesterday, including more than 7,000 school children who were guests of the show. Heide expects the total attendance for the eight days to exceed 400,000.

$1 a Pound for Popeye.

The reserve champion steer, Popeye, brought the highest price paid for the 268 animals sold in the junior live stock feeding auction yesterday morning. He sold for $1 a pound and weighed 1,345 pounds.

Popeye, a pure bred Aberdeen-Angus, was exhibited by Edna Mae Brown, 18, of Miami, Okla. He was bought by the Pixley & Ehlers restaurant of Chicago. Last year's junior reserve steer sold for 51 cents a pound.

Miss Brown's steer was the first to be led into the auction ring on the second day of the sale of prize winning animals. The junior champion steer, Mercer, also a pure bred Abdeen-Angus, owned by Irene Brown, 14, Aledo, Ill., winner of the grand champion beef animal award in the open competition of the show, was sold on Thursday at $3.35 a pound.

Mercer will not be slaughtered but will be taken on a national tour of agricultural shows, according to Horace Millhone, representative of the new owner, the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O.

Boys and girls of the farm were paid a grand total of $42,303 for their baby beeves sold at public auction yesterday and Thursday. These were the animals exhibited in the junior live stock feeding contest, and the grand champion steer, Mercer.

The 268 baby beeves sold by the farm youths at yesterday's sale brought a total of $38,518. They averaged 1,005 pounds and brought an average of $14.30 a hundredweight.

POLICE UNABLE TO FIND PROOF OF KIDNAP STORY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Authorities tonight said they had been unable to find evidence to corroborate the abduction story told by Mary Brown, 18 years old, a Washington business school student.

The girl, who had been missing thirty hours, returned home last night, clothed only in a tattered slip. She said she had been kidnaped Wednesday afternoon by three men who held her in a lonely hut.

Her father, William B. Brown, said she had not been harmed. Police said it was unlikely that any one could have walked through the underbrush between the place where the girl said she was released and her home without incurring scratches.

Although no ransom demand was made, Brown said his daughter told him that the kidnapers had taken her with the intention of obtaining money for her release. They released her, he said she told him, when she convinced them that her father was unable to pay a ransom. Brown is an employé of the federal bureau of engraving in Washington.

GRAND JURY TOLD OF C. I. O. TERROR REIGN IN INDIANA

Act to Stop Violence at Chrysler Plant.

New Castle, Ind., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—A grand jury investigation was begun today into charges of violence allegedly employed by the C. I. O. in a membership drive at the Chrysler corporation's automobile parts factory here.

County Prosecutor Malcolm M. Edwards said he requested that the grand jury be convened because "we must have law and order in this community; we are not going to let the C. I. O. run it."

Twenty witnesses who appeared before the investigating body today, many of them victims or witnesses of the C. I. O. manhandling, were said by Edwards to have made the following charges:

1. Several nonunion men were set upon by a mob of C. I. O. members and thrown bodily over a fence at the factory.

Foreman's Jaw Broken.

2. A foreman's jaw was broken when he was struck with a piece of lead pipe as he got out of his car near the factory ready to go to work.

3. Men who did not belong to the C. I. O. and demurred at joining were tossed out of the plant and others were severely beaten.

Prosecutor Edwards said he understood that there are many more cases of violence than those brought to light, but that the victims have been silenced by intimidation. Some of the acts of violence took place in the factory, Edwards said he was informed.

"This disorder, most of which has been going on for the last two weeks, has got to stop," the prosecutor said. "Grand jury action appears the best way to bring it to a stop."

Expected to Take Week.

He said he expected the presentation of evidence would take a week or ten days. The grand jury convened this morning at the call of Circuit Judge John Morris.

A dispute between the C. I. O. group, the United Automobile Workers, and an A. F. of L. affiliate, the die sinkers' union, shut the Chrysler plant yesterday.

Twenty-two die sinkers were among those stopped at the gates by U. A. W. pickets, who employed the usual C. I. O. tactics of halting every one seeking to enter the plant who did not have a card of their union. The U. A. W. had set Nov. 30 as a deadline in a drive to unionize completely the 3,600 Chrysler employés here.

When the die sinkers were prevented from going to work the A. F. of L. affiliated electrical workers' union shut off electricity in the plant, forcing all operations to a standstill.

Nash Production Halted.

Kenosha, Wis., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—An outlaw sitdown strike by 300 members of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, today halted production at the Nash automobile plant of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation.

Some 1,200 employés of the Nash plant here and 3,000 workers of the company's subsidiary, the Seaman Body corporation in Milwaukee, were thrown out of work as a result of the strike.

Blames Agitators.

R. A. Devlieg, Nash works manager, said the strikers were discharged by the company and were ordered out of the plant by a representative of their union, but they refused to budge.

Devlieg said the strike was caused by radical agitators beyond the control of their leaders. The disturbance, he said, was in violation of an agreement between the company and the union, made when a recent strike at the Racine plant was settled. The union agreed at that time not to call strikes until disputes had first been submitted to arbitration.

17,000 Made Idle.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 2. — [Special.] — Nearly 17,000 men and women were thrown out of work here today by a strike called by a C. I. O. local at the Fisher Body plant No. 1 of the General Motors corporation.

Some 6,500 employés of the Fisher factory were made idle by the strike, which went into effect at noon. Several hours later at least 10,000 workers at the Buick Motor company were laid off after the assembly line had been stopped because of a lack of bodies supplied by the Fisher plant.

Charge Contract Violation.

The strike was called to force the Fisher plant to put a group of employés on a day wage rate. The workers concerned, estimated by the management at 900 and by the C. I. O. at 1,800, are in the metal and press departments, which at present are on a piece work basis of pay.

The decision to strike followed the breakdown yesterday of negotiations between the management and local 581 of the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the C. I. O.

In a statement issued at Detroit, the General Motors corporation charged that the strike was a violation of the contract signed by the U. A. W. and the company.

100 Pickets on Duty.

About 100 pickets were on duty at the Fisher plant gates, but no attempt was made by employés to go to work and it was reported the management did not plan to try to resume operations until a settlement is reached.

Representatives of the U. A. W. and the General Motors corporation met in Detroit to discuss the matter, but they adjourned this evening without an agreement.

MINERS PROTEST MASS CONVICTION OF 36 IN BOMBING

Fate of Progressives Up to Appeals Court.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday took under advisement the appeal of thirty-six members of the Progressive Miners of America who were found guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust law and interfering with the mails in Springfield a year ago. The defendants appealed from sentences of four years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fines of $20,000 each.

Attorney George I. Haight, representing the miners, argued that the combination of indictments resulted in a "trial by confusion" and that the matters at issue, the bombing of several coal mines, had no interstate significance.

Tells of Protest Strike.

Several times during his hour-long argument, Attorney Haight referred to "the Peabody Coal company and its good friend and partner, John L. Lewis." The violence, which occurred during 1932, 1933 and 1934, was chiefly on the property of the Peabody Coal company in southern Illinois and was the outgrowth, Haight said, of an "unapproved" contract entered into by Lewis, as head of the United Mine Workers, and the Peabody Coal company in August, 1932. In protest against the contract, Haight said, 35,000 Illinois miners formed the Progressive union and went on strike.

A series of bombings of railroad trains and other acts of violence resulted. Haight attempted to show that this was incited by the coal company and the United Mine Workers' union, which forms the backbone of Lewis' C. I. O.

Refuse to Bow to Lewis.

"These men were trying to get their jobs back and they could have if they had abandoned the new union and submitted to the domination of John L. Lewis," Attorney Haight said.

Special Attorney General W. K. Hopkins, representing the government, stressed the numerous bombings of trains, which, he said, interfered with the mails and interstate shipments.

Speaking of mass trials, Judge Evan A. Evans asked: "Isn't there a limit beyond which you can go and still expect an intelligent jury trial?"

Hopkins replied there was some confusion in the mine case and said that perhaps a better practice would be to try defendants in small groups on separate indictments.

REP. DIES TO ADDRESS EMPLOYERS OF CITY AT BANQUET ON JAN. 12

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, will speak at the annual dinner of the Employers Association of Chicago in the Stevens hotel Jan. 12. His subject will be "Americanism."

The dinner will mark the thirty-seventh year of the Employers association. The association describes Dies as "moving in the American scene at a propitious time."

Group participants at the dinner will be the color guard of the Cook County council of the American Legion, the South Chicago Sons of the American Legion, and St. Paul parish choir, of fifty voices. Raymond J. Koch will preside.

STOCK HANDLERS' WALKOUT ENTERS ITS TWELFTH DAY

The strike of stock handlers at the Chicago stockyards entered its twelfth day yesterday with little hope of an early settlement. On Monday officials of the Union Stockyards and Transit company are scheduled to meet with C. I. O. union leaders who called the strike.

Yesterday Ben Brown, president of the union, and some of his men again called on Mayor Kelly and repeated their request that the striking workers be put on relief rolls. The mayor replied the men could only get on relief as individuals by giving proof they are destitute and complying with other relief regulations.

MRS. RASMUSSEN EMERGES VICTOR IN DIVORCE FIGHT

Wins Recommendation for a Decree.

Mrs. Ritchey Farrell Rasmussen should be given a divorce from Robert V. Rasmussen, according to a report submitted yesterday by Louis J. Behan, master in chancery. The master found that Rasmussen had been guilty of infidelity, as Mrs. Rasmussen charged.

Rasmussen, who is 32 years old, is vice president of the National Tea company. Mrs. Rasmussen is 21. They were married in her home in Nashville, Tenn., on May 12 last year.

After their honeymoon, they made their home at 1430 Lake Shore drive.

Wife Wins Custody Plea.

The recommendation on alimony was that the decision be made in accordance with the agreement by which both parties allowed the case to be submitted to a master.

Tells of Other Woman.

Mrs. Rasmussen and detectives testified that Rasmussen had been with another woman in Duluth the day before the baby was born. Mrs. Rasmussen said her husband went to Nashville by airplane after the child was born there and admitted his friendship with the other woman.

Rasmussen's attorney tried in vain to force Mrs. Rasmussen to admit that she wished to divorce Rasmussen so she might marry another man.

Rasmussen opposed the suit on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction, since his home is now in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Martha Pennebaker liked to go home from night clubs early. John Paul Pennebaker preferred to go home late. She'd protest, and he'd strike her, she told Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday. The judge gave her a divorce. Her attorney, Samuel A. Rinella, said she received a $1,000 settlement. Mrs. Pennebaker is 25 years old. She lives at 815 Rush street. Pennebaker lives at 209 East Superior street.

BATTLE TO SAVE BOY, 4, VICTIM OF HIT-RUN DRIVER

Pedestrian Killed by Car of Policeman.

Physicians in the John B. Murphy hospital strove early today to save the life of Richard Schwarzkope, 4 years old, who was struck down by the automobile of a hit and run driver yesterday evening.

Richard and his sister, Audrey, 6, were returning home to 1929 Wellington avenue with a loaf of bread from a nearby grocery. At Wellington and Wolcott avenues Audrey stopped at the curb. Richard started into the street. The car, coming from the west, knocked him down. The driver fled. Sobbing, Audrey held her brother in her arms until Nicholas Funck, 1950 Diversey avenue, another motorist, saw them and took them to the hospital. Richard's skull was fractured and he had internal injuries.

Joseph Roubik, 51 years old, 2708 South 61st court, Cicero, died early today in the Berwyn hospital of injuries suffered last night at Ogden and Clinton avenues, Berwyn, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Arthur Carlson, 33, of 327 Ruby street, Clarendon Hills.

Killed by Policeman's Car.

Walter Hibbler, 60 years old, 2855 Argyle street, who was struck by one automobile and run over by another yesterday, died of his injuries last night in the Swedish Covenant hospital. He was crossing the street in front of 4838 North California avenue when he was struck by the car of Policeman John Kelly, 37, of 5424 North Western avenue. He was then run over by the machine of Hyman Horwich, 43, of 6327 North Washtenaw avenue, who was following. Kelly is secretary to Supervising Captain Joseph Goldberg.

Doctor Killed by Truck.

Dr. John Quitmeyer, 46 years old, a physician, was killed last night by a truck at La Salle and Goethe streets. He lived at 1219 North Clark street. Helmuth Harsman of 3535 Sheffield avenue was the driver of the truck.

Martin Kelly, 58 years old, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile at California avenue and Jackson boulevard. He lived at 1619 Warren boulevard. John Snyder of 1316 North 32d avenue, Melrose Park, was the driver.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 798 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 615 were killed in Chicago, where 18,756 were injured in the same period.

Body of Boy Hitch-Hiking Victim Taken to Missouri

The body of Paul Willis, 8 years old, was taken back to Caruthersville, Mo., yesterday by his mother, Mary, and sister Irene. The family of three was hitch-hiking to Benton Harbor, Mich., when Paul was killed by a truck Wednesday near Chicago Heights. Penniless, the family explained their plight to Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the county highway police. He sent them to a hotel. Contributions from Flossmoor women, police, the driver of the truck and others enabled the family to return yesterday to Caruthersville for burial.

MOVE TO FORCE RESIGNATION OF DIXMOOR MAYOR

The state's attorney's office yesterday announced it would start action next Tuesday in an effort to force Charles Special to resign as mayor of the village of Dixmoor. The announcement followed the resignation yesterday of Police Magistrate Charles A. Braun, of Dixmoor.

Charles A. Braun.

Special, Braun, and three Dixmoor policemen are under sentences of one year each on a charge of conspiracy to operate a speed trap. Judge William J. Lindsay of the Criminal court imposed the sentences last week. At that time Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin declared he would prosecute Braun on a charge of malfeasance unless he resigned by Dec. 2.

Yesterday Braun appeared before Judge Lindsay. Prosecutor Austin announced he was ready to proceed with prosecution. "However, if Braun resigns, we will not go to trial," he said. Braun resigned in open court. The charge was dropped.

Charles A. Bellows, attorney for Braun, asked that the place of Braun's incarceration be changed from the Bridewell to the county jail. He said his client is not well.

The court delayed the matter until Jan. 10, deadline for an appeal.

Early in the week Braun, Special, and the other defendants, Policemen Tony Bader, Robert Grecco, and Charles Paduano, were reported to be raising a defense fund.

A GUIDING STAR RADIATES AID TO NEEDY MOTHERS

where a tiny shrine glows in the parlor and a soft-hued madonna hangs over the bed. Many are born in Negro tenements. Last month one was born across the way from the Edgewater Beach hotel, in a room where the only piece of furniture except the bed was a grand piano.

But the babies live. So do the mothers.

Safest Sponsor in World.

This is the miracle, the scientific miracle, achieved in the ramshackle old building at 1336 Newberry avenue which rises above the clutter and the shrieking of the curbside vendors in Maxwell street This building, where lights are never dimmed, has become, statistics show, the safest sponsor in the world for a baby.

No babies are born in the building, for it is the nerve center of the home delivery service. A service for the poor. A service that is denied no one who calls and asks for it.

Its history under its present name is brief. It has no endowment. It lives from bridge party to bridge party given by women of Chicago. Yet it has an incomparable background of more than two score years of obstetrical tradition.

These were its years as the Maxwell street dispensary, founded forty-five years ago by Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, then a young intern appalled by the maternal and infant death rate in the Chicago slums. It had a double purpose, to care for poor mothers in their own homes and to teach the science of obstetrics.

Helps 27,659 Mothers.

Later, it became part of Chicago Lying-In hospital. But in 1932 its connection with the hospital was severed and it was forced to struggle on alone. Somehow it has managed. Since July 1, 1932, it has helped 27,659 mothers, either before, after or at the time of the baby's birth. It has delivered 18,916 babies with a gross mortality of less than 3 per cent. Of 2,843 mothers cared for last year, only four died of obstetric causes.

Not only are the goals of forty-five years ago still the goals of today, but yesterday work was begun toward a new goal. Since its founding, doctors and graduate nurses have thronged to the center to get their training in home delivery, but yesterday the center's first course in public health nursing was opened.

Ten graduate nurses are enrolled. Three have come from rural districts in Louisiana, one from Oregon, one from Vermont. They will be the first to take back to these rural areas—where annually 150,000 mothers have their babies without attendance—the Maternity center technique.

"Hospital training cannot teach a doctor or a nurse how to take care of a woman in her home," Dr. Beatrice E. Tucker, medical director of the center, explained. "It is impossible.

Needs Are Still Great.

To Chicago's poor, the center has become an oasis of security, science, and compassion. But it still has far to go, Dr. Tucker says. It needs an X-ray machine; mothers have died of tuberculosis because their lungs could not be X-rayed. It needs an emergency ambulance; its doctors and nurses now go by street car, which is not fast enough. Nor can they carry emergency equipment. It needs an enlarged medical library; the center cannot teach by deed alone in this era of advancement. Most of all, it needs money. It has so little.

A baby can be brought safely into the world for $10 with the Maternity center as its guiding star. Will Christmas be kind to the center?

Old Football Injury Puts Mayor's Aid in Hospital

John R. Nash, assistant to Mayor Kelly, is in Mercy hospital following a shoulder operation for an old football injury sustained while he was a student at Notre Dame university. He is not expected to be back at his desk until next week. Nash is the son of Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the Cook county Democratic central committee.

WORKMAN TO BE EX-KING'S GUEST, LONDON HEARS

Duke Plans Yule Fete for British Family.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The London Star said today that the duke and duchess of Windsor had arranged to entertain the family of a London workingman on Christmas day in their château at Cap d'Antibes, on the French Riviera. The workingman has accepted the invitation for himself, his wife, son and daughter, the newspaper said. His name is secret.

The idea, the Star said, originated with the duke, "who is anxious to spend the holiday in the company of one of the ordinary people of his country."

Family Is "Staggered."

The newspaper described the English family as "staggered" by the invitation from the former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, but said that it accepted immediately. The workingman was said to be an ardent trade unionist who never has been outside of England.

Edward often indicated an interest in British workers. He annoyed powerful interests in and out the government when, as king, he remarked during a tour of the depressed "black areas" of Wales that "something must be done."

Believed Planning Trip Home.

Deeply chagrined, he canceled his proposed visit to the United States early in 1937 when American labor organizations assailed his association with Charles E. Bedeaux, an American. Bedeaux's name has been linked with a "speed-up" system of factory production.

Today's reported invitation, therefore, was interpreted by some quarters as an effort to show that he still was on the side of the workingman. Edward was believed to be contemplating a brief return to England, a visit which, say recent reports, may take place in March.

The duke of Gloucester, Edward's brother, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain recently visited the Windsors in Paris. These visits were considered as preliminaries to break the ice for a royal family reconciliation with the former king and for his return home.

'SUSAN AND GOD' CAST SIGNS UP AS GOOD FELLOWS

Gertrude Lawrence and McGrath Head List.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Those of you who have seen Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," now playing at the Harris theater, probably will never forget her last line, "O, God, don't let me fall down again!"

Gertrude Lawrence.

Since there has been no sequel written to this play we can't say whether this character's wish was fulfilled. But we do know that Miss Lawrence is not going to fall down on the job of providing Christmas cheer for little boys and girls in Chicago. For this week she and every member of her company, which totals eleven, signed up to become Good Fellows. On Christmas eve, just before their 8:30 o'clock show, they'll take twenty baskets to deserving families.

Stage Folk Enjoy Giving.

During the last ten years it has been your Good Fellow editor's good fortune to deal with stage folk. They are among the most generous of people. These men and women who hardly know the joy of a home find themselves thousands of miles away from their dear ones at Christmas time. They will try to catch a bit of happiness by doing a good deed for others less fortunate. Miss Lawrence and her cast have set a splendid example for the hundreds of entertainers who will find themselves "in exile" at Christmas time.

Never let it be said that this lovely English actress parted without a little speech, and this one she gave informally while she and two others of her company signed up to become Good Fellows at THE TRIBUNE bureau, situated at 1 South Dearborn street. Thinking of the Christmas carols which will burst forth in the narrow streets of London shortly, she said: "On one question, at least, there is a unanimity of opinion. You may go east or west or north or south at Christmas and at the end of the road you will find the same spark glowing in the hearts of men, regardless of geographical location.

McGrath Also Signs.

"Every head in the Christian world naturally will be bowed in revered appreciation of that day when Three Wise Men followed the Star of Bethlehem and in a manger a child was born. The exultation, the ecstasy of that beloved memory should inspire us all to help those less fortunate than ourselves to enjoy a real Christmas."

The two other actors who signed up for the entire cast were Paul McGrath of Pittsburgh, who plays the part of Miss Lawrence's husband in the play, and Nancy Coleman of Everett, Wash., who portrays the daughter. Two others of the cast's Good Fellows live far from Chicago—David Byrne of Australia and Fred Leslie of England.

Gertrude Lawrence will never play a finer rôle than that which she will portray on Christmas eve—for she'll be billed as Mr. Good Fellow.

U. S. SENDS BILL TO 13 COUNTRIES FOR $2,051,707,241

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Thirteen European powers received reminders today that they now owe the United States government $2,051,707,241 on debts left over from the last war.

The semi-annual "please remit" notices went out from the state department to foreign embassies and legations here calling on their governments to pay the next instalment of their 20-year old obligations.

The amount due Dec. 15 increases by $160,217,334 the previously due sum of $1,891,489,906 and thus shoves the total unpaid above the $2,000,000,000 mark. Of the thirteen debtor nations, Finland alone is expected to pay.

The $2,051,707,241 is not by any means the total of all loans made by the United States. That sum is merely the amount that has fallen due when the semi-annual instalment paying days came around and went unpaid. The total of all indebtedness originally was $10,350,000,000. Interest has now brought this sum close to $13,000,000,000.

VIENNA CARDINAL MAY BE MADE A MONK, NAZIS SAY

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Der Angriff, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, in a Vienna dispatch today asserted that before Christmas Cardinal Theodore Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, would exchange his cardinal's robe for that of a simple monk in some Italian monastery.

The cardinal's palace was the target of a violent Nazi demonstration Oct. 8, when he was slightly injured and windows of the palace shattered by stones.

GERMANY OFFERS TO BARTER JEWS FOR MORE TRADE

Demands World Increase Purchase of Nazi Goods.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A prominent Nazi editor disclosed today that plans were being studied for making Jewish emigration possible in return for increased German exports.

Although he declined to outline specific details, the editor said the project had advanced to the point where Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of the four-year economic plan, could announce it soon.

"Jews need foreign exchange to get out," the editor said. "We haven't any. Hence, other nations must supply it. These nations, however, will insist that Germany should repay these sums from possessions left behind by German Jews.

Offers to Repay with Goods.

"There is only one way we can repay—through goods. Therefore the problem of ridding ourselves of Jews and for Jews to make emigration possible comes to this:

"How great a quantity of additional German goods are foreign nations prepared to buy from Germany? They can have all 650,000 Jews and half Jews if they will give us enough export orders."

Meanwhile, iron fences inclosing Jewish burial plots were being torn down to increase the German supply of scrap iron and newspapers took up a campaign against persons who sympathize with Jews.

The only remaining Jewish publication in Germany, Juedisches Nachrichtenblatt, appealed for the removal of the fences "as a great project for beautifying Jewish graves" and said, "inasmuch as the German reich's supply of scrap iron must be increased we want voluntarily to make this material available for re-utilization."

War on Friends of Jews.

In Ulm, placards reading "Judenknecht" ["Jews' hireling"] were affixed to stores and homes of persons whom the Ulm newspaper called "noxious enemies of the common weal."

The organ of Bradenburg and Berlin brown uniformed Hitler troop members said:

"There are certain types in Berlin who are not Jewish in blood but in behavior and point of view. We will be thankful if they are given a lesson and brought back to their own people."

The same paper said the poorer Berlin Jews would be placed in the homes of "Jewish villa owners in the western suburbs so that many beautiful, cheap apartments may become available to German Aryans."

Plan New Plea to Nazis.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Men of six nations decided today to tackle Germany again in the international effort to get the unwanted Jews out of the country under the $600,000,000 plan sponsored by United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. The action was taken by the vice chairmen's committee of the intergovernmental committee on refugees, composed of men representing the United States, Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Brazil, and Argentina.

Previously Germany ignored requests that George Rublee, American, who is permanent director of the intergovernmental committee, be invited to Berlin to discuss the Jewish emigration problem with German authorities.

Will Approach Ribbentrop.

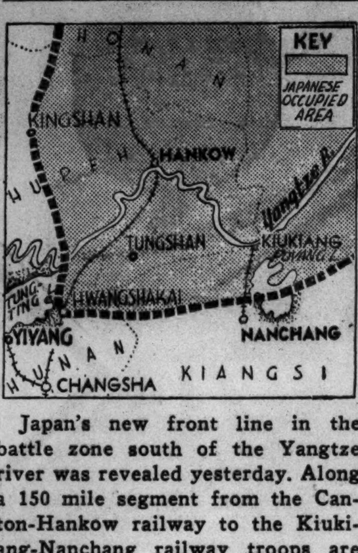
The vice chairmen's committee, on which Myron C. Taylor represented the United States, decided on a fresh effort to obtain German coöperation in a four and one-half hour session.

The new approach to Germany, it was understood, will be made by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France through Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany when the latter visits Paris next week.

There were unverified reports, also, that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German Reichsbank and former economic minister, might come to London in connection with the financial aspects of the refugee plan.

The committee heard from the French delegate of a fresh offer to admit 10,000 refugees to French colonies if Britain and the United States made "corresponding sacrifices."

Prepare for Drive



Japan's new front line in the battle zone south of the Yangtze river was revealed yesterday. Along a 150 mile segment from the Canton-Hankow railway to the Kiukiang-Nanchang railway troops are ready to open a new push southward into Hunan and Kiangsi provinces, the Japanese asserted. The map indicates this front, and also locates Tungshan and Kingshan, scenes of Chinese attacks which, the Japanese said, were unsuccessful.

RELIEF BENEFIT DISTURBS QUIET OF CHINATOWN

The quiet restraint of Chinatown was broken last night. Music swept the settlement at 22d street and Wentworth avenue. Strangers, ordinarily met with aloofness, saw bowing, smiling Chinese. Little girls thrust placards in their hands. Aged men pointed fingers. "This way to the bazar."

Within the city hall of Chinatown the old teakwood chairs were dusted, incense burned, and dark eyes smiled above white and blue and black satin Chinese dresses. Pretty girls demurely welcomed their guests.

It was a night of dignified hilarity. The many non-Chinese Chicagoans who attended the benefit bazar for Chinese civilian relief at first glanced uncertainly about. If they expected an air of mourning, they were jolted out of their sympathetic gloom.

The Chinese students of Chicago were giving the benefit, which will continue today from 5 p. m. to midnight and tomorrow from 1 p. m. to midnight.

It was a night for the young. Chinese students of Northwestern university and the University of Chicago, St. Xavier and Lewis institute shared quiet jokes with those from Loyola and Armour institute.

Standing in a semi-circle to watch Mabel Chong and Ping Kuan Len, who come from Hawaii and do the hula-hula, aged men folded hands and withheld any disapproval.

Chinese in U. S. Contribute $4,800,000 for War on Japs

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Chinese war time relief commission at Chungking announced today that Chinese living in the United States had contributed 30,000,000 Chinese dollars [about $4,800,000] for defense and relief purposes since outbreak of the war with Japan.

[Since the 1930 census showed the Chinese population of the United States to be 74,954, this would indicate a contribution of about $64 per person. The sum, however, presumably includes also gifts by others in the United States forwarded through Chinese organizations.]

JEWS IN JAPAN PANICKY; FEAR TOKIO-NAZI PACT

Government Denies It Will Discriminate.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 2.—Jews were thrown into near panic today by persistent rumors that Japan will crack down on them as a result of the newly signed Japanese-German cultural agreement.

A large number of Jewish scholars who fled Germany and obtained a haven in Japan fear that they will be ousted since the new cultural pact stipulated that Germany may recommend instructors to Japan.

Denies Jews Being Kept Out.

Tatsuo Kawai, foreign office spokesman, however, denied heatedly that there would be any discrimination against Jews on racial grounds. He said that German Jews seeking refuge in Japan, China and Manchukuo are not being kept out, as charged in some reports.

Kawai said that since Nov. 25 more than sixty Jews, probably of German or Austrian nationality, have entered Manchukuo and have been given permission to reside there.

Laws to Be Guide.

At present, he said, they are staying in Harbin and Mukden. He added that there is not a single case in which Jews were rejected on racial grounds in Japan, China or Manchukuo.

Hereafter, Kawai said, entrance will be regulated in accordance with the immigration laws of Japan and Manchukuo. These bar only poverty stricken persons and those likely to disturb peace and order.

Japs Ready for New Drive.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman announced tonight that the imperial army in the Yangtze valley was arrayed on a curving front 150 miles long between the Canton-Hankow and Kiukiang-Nanchang railways. It is ready, he said, for an impending offensive further southward into Hunan and Kiangsi provinces.

He asserted that the western wing of the Japanese forces was at Hwang-Shakai on the Canton-Hankow line thirty miles south of Yochow and about 130 miles southwest of Hankow. The eastern wing was reported to be about 150 miles southeast of Hankow on the other railway and within thirty miles of Nanchang, Kiangsi provincial capital.

The infrequently reported Kiangsi operations apparently had carried the invaders about sixty miles southward since last July, when Kiukiang fell in campaign against Hankow.

Chinese Attack Garrison.

The army spokesman said 2,000 Chinese had attacked a garrison at Tungshan, near the western end of the Kiangsi-Hunan line, but were repulsed, leaving 700 dead. Tungshan is about sixty-five miles south of Hankow.

It was said the Chinese also attacked Kingshan, seventy miles northwest of Hankow, but likewise were thrown back with heavy losses. Thirty Japanese planes, it was reported, dared a blizzard to bomb Yiyang, a town or northern Hunan.

In western Shantung province, Chinese guerrillas were reported to have recaptured Lintsing, a major city. Admiral Shen Hung-lieh, former mayor of Tsingtao, is directing behind the lines Chinese operations in Shantung.

2 WPA WORKERS HELD TO JURY.

Japanese Bid for More Trade in Honduras; Grant Easy Terms

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Nov. 29.—[By Air Mail.]—There is quite a German colony in this capital, but residents say that the activities of foreign countries are confined entirely to driving a commercial wedge rather than political.

Japan recently, in an effort to raise war funds, sold Honduras considerable goods on easy terms. Collections, however, have been difficult.

The political situation here is similar to that of Honduras' neighbors Guatemala and El Salvador—a strong man has his own way. Dr. Tiburcio Carias Andino became president on Feb. 1, 1933. At that time the constitution provided for a four year term. However, before his term was up, Carias Andino had his term extended six years to Jan. 1, 1943. But he is getting old and his admirers assert that in 1942 he will yield the office to another.

Tiny Outlet on Pacific.

Honduras is one of the larger of the Central American republics with an area of about 45,000 square miles and population of 962,685. It has a long northern coastline on the Caribbean sea with several good ports, and a tiny wedge on the Pacific with a single seaport, Amapala.

The international highway from the United States to Panama is passable through Honduras, but is not improved. Laborers are working on it.

The chief industries of the country are banana growing along the Caribbean coast, gold and silver mining, coffee growing, and cattle raising. Cane sugar, maize, and beans are raised for local consumption. Fruits are plentiful, but a little higher than in other central American countries. For instance, oranges at 12 cents a dozen are twice as high as in Guatemala.

Imports at High Price.

Canned soup is four times as high as in the United States and American tobacco seven times as high. European goods, however, are cheaper. American money is accepted in the stores at the rate of 50 cents per lempira—the Honduran monetary unit which was named for an Indian chief.

Common labor here receives 50 cents per day plus rations, but living conditions seem higher than in neighboring countries. One can see many pack trains composed of three to a dozen little mangy horses, mules, and burros. Ox carts and a few small trucks haul the heavy freight.

Every one here is polite and a policeman walked two blocks with this writer to point out a place of interest. The city's most attractive spot is a tiny park, such as a rich man might have for a back yard. It was built in 1934 and has lots of flowers, palms, and other trees. There are miniature lakes, islands, and rock bridges.

The presidential palace, a massive structure, has a beautiful interior courtyard. Most of the foreign diplomats here live in attractive houses on a hill back of the city. The hill gives a good view of the city and the valley to the south.

Nazis Warn Europe's Small Democracies to Curb Press

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2. — A warning to small Democracies generally and to Switzerland in particular to observe "integral" neutrality and curb their press in its treatment of Germany was sounded today in the Voelkischer Beobachter, official organ of the Nazi party.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR HOME TO REPORT ON AMERICAN ATTITUDE

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador to the United States, arrived in Cuxhaven today en route to report to Reichsfuehrer Hitler on the American reaction to Nazi anti-Semitism.

There was no official reception for him as the German liner Hansa docked and the pier was blocked off so it was impossible for the public to approach him.

Dr. Dieckhoff left Cuxhaven immediately by train for Berlin. He was summoned home on Nov. 18 by Hitler for a report on what was termed by the official German news agency as President Roosevelt's "singular attitude" after the United States ambassador, Hugh R. Wilson, was called back to Washington from Berlin.

BELGIAN FINANCE MINISTER QUITS; CRISIS AVERTED

BRUSSELS, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Fall of the Belgian government was averted tonight by the resignation of Finance Minister Max Leo Gerard after a break with Premier Paul Henri Spaak over Belgian economic policy.

The resignation of Gerard, a Liberal, followed an attack on the government's fiscal affairs, which are complicated by a flight of gold and a budget deficit of $40,000,000, and cleared the way for Spaak to continue his plans for friendship with rebel Spain.

For a time it appeared that Spaak would fall on the economic issue and then form a new government to demonstrate that he had the confidence of King Leopold and the country in both domestic and foreign policy. The foreign policy involves recognition of the rebel régime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain.

OUR YOUTH WILL NEVER BE FREE, HITLER ASSERTS

Explains Constant Nazi Training in Sudeten.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—German youths, whom Reichsfuehrer Hitler is educating into perfect Nazis, "never again will be free in their whole lives," the Fuehrer today told Sudetenland citizens in Reichenberg. "And," he added quickly, "they are happy in this state."

Hitler was explaining to his countrymen his efforts to educate young people to be full fledged Germans, unhampered by previous prejudices. Adults who fail to absorb Nazi ideas soon will grow old and pass on, but "the youth—that we educate," he said.

"First they enter our organization at 10 years of age and breathe fresh air for the first time," Hitler asserted. "Four years later they enter the Hitler Youth; then we don't release them for another four years. We don't let them return into the hands of their old classes. We place them in the ranks of our Labor Front, Storm Troopers, and Schutz Staffel, and if, after two years, they have not become Nazis they are polished in the Labor Service—all under one symbol—the German state.

Army Takes Over for Two Years.

"If there might be some class prejudice left after six or seven months, the army takes them up for further treatment for two years. And when they return after two, three, or four years we take them back into the Storm Troops, Schutz Staffel, and so on, and never will they be free in their whole lives, and they are happy in this state."

Hitler called on Sudetenland to "sign the birth certificate of the great German empire" next Sunday when it will elect reichstag members chosen for it by the Nazi party.

He reiterated his promises to improve the lot of his "masses," and left no doubt in the minds of all Germans that they would be submitted to the most thorough party training a nation ever experienced.

Hitler told his followers of his efforts to combine the idea of "nationalist and socialism," which alone, he said, can help create a new Germany strong enough to stand up as a nation, unhampered by its old prejudices and class hatreds.

Warns Wealthy to Aid.

An increase of production is the only method through which Hitler thinks better times can be brought about. He warned those living in plenty that they must coöperate because "it is impossible to have a healthy people if one part is well off and the other suffers."

To convince his people that the sacrifices he is demanding are justified, Hitler listed the achievements of Germany since 1933: The creation of a vast army; reintroduction of conscription and thus proclamation of German freedom; liberation of the Rhineland and introduction of the four year plan to increase production.

The year 1938 Hitler described as "the year which fulfilled the plans and hopes of many centuries."

"This year German unity showed itself as a reality which retreats before no threat of blackmail," the Fuehrer said. "We have restricted our foreign plans to a moderate scale. This year we stood up for our national rights, ready for the final sacrifice."

72 Drown as Floods Peril Southeast Area of Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 2.—Seventy-two persons were drowned, thousands of cattle perished, and houses were wrecked today when floods swept the Urfa region in the southeast, north of the Syrian border.

Overcome by Gas

Mrs. Edward Schroeder, who aided in rescue, with Tommy Killeen, 3, and his sister, Katherine, 4, who were overcome by gas in home. Their mother was also overcome.

Mrs. Della Killeen, 4018 Polk street, and two small children, Katherine, 4 years old, and Thomas, 3, were saved from probable death from gas yesterday. They were found by a third child, Theresa, 8, when she returned from school for lunch. All were ill and the house was filled with fumes from the furnace. Theresa ran for aid and the three were revived by neighbors and a fire department inhalator squad. Mrs. Killeen is 40.

3 BLAST DEATHS HELD ACCIDENT.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, 38 years old, Mack Givens, 34, and John Gibson Jr., 5 months old, all colored, who were burned fatally in an explosion Nov. 11 at 1214 Blue Island avenue. ONE MAN'S MEAT—

By CALEB

A RETURNER to our present days from the relative quiet and simplicity of Colonial times would stand aghast at one feature of modern business more instantly impressive than all others: its complexity. "How," he would exclaim in admiring despair, "do you manage to bring order out of all this apparent chaos?"

And, of course, the shortest answer to this astonished forbear would be: "The specialist. . . . A man you didn't know of or need, in your Jack-of-all-trades era. You bartered; currency was scant and fluctuating; trade areas were village, town or county; transportation was equine, and roads mere variants of Indian trails. Manufacture was what the word literally meant: a making-by-hand.

"Fixed and universal currency; a thousand per cent population increase; scientific advance; revolutions in research; education for all; the 'Machine Age'; international markets; instant communication; wind-swift transport; world credit, and stupendous finance—these have remade the America of John Alden and Priscilla. And only the simultaneous appearance of the specialist during all this evolution has preserved it." . . .

A day spent behind the scenes at Field's would furnish our bewildered visitor both confirmation and enlightenment. He would meet men and women, each of whose lives has been sharply focused on a single segment of interest: the expert in furs, the exclusive buyer of toys, the connoisseur in fabrics—the engraver, artist, designer, decorator, statistician, writer, beautician, stylist, decorator, market analyst, cost accountant, illuminating engineer, fashion expert, managing executive. A whole category of specialists, scarcely more than indicated in these names set down at random.

Only confident interdependence and co-ordination have, in turn, made it possible for these to function as one-for-all and all-for-one in the conduct of a successful store. That is why our Colonial guest from a vanished epoch would find order underlying today's "apparent chaos" . . . and discover that if "One man's meat is another man's poison", it is that very fact, capitalized, which explains the phenomenon of efficient twentieth-century merchandising.

4 GERMAN SPIES GET 2 TO 6 YEAR TERMS IN PRISON

Judge Hits Bungling by FBI Agents.

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Bungling by the federal bureau of investigation which permitted the escape of higher-ups in a Nazi spy plot was criticized today by Federal Judge John C. Knox when he imposed sentences on four defendants convicted of espionage.

It previously was disclosed that the army intelligence division first uncovered the spies, then asked the FBI to aid in capturing the ring mmebers. A general officer said that J. Edgar Hoover's insatiable thirst for publicity upset the army's plans to capture the ring leaders. Only four of thirteen persons indicted were captured.

Sell Military Secrets.

Judge Knox imposed sentences ranging from two to six years on the three men and a woman who were found guilty of selling United States military secrets to Nazi Germany. The judge indicated that had they been spies in their native land they would have died beneath the executioner's ax.

Johanna Hofmann, young red haired beauty salon employé on the German liner Europa, was given four years in prison instead of a maximum of twenty. Otto Herrmann Voss, former airplane factory mechanic, was given six years. Erich Glaser, young United States army air corps private, for whom the jury asked leniency, was given two years. Guenther Gustave Rumrich, who told on the others, received the lighter sentence of two years.

Win Democracy's Mercy.

"Had these defendants been convicted in Germany," the judge said, "their fate would have been much more fearful. Natives of a totalitarian state, they are the recipients of the mercy of a democracy.

"Some day they may concede they were fortunate to be before a court in a democracy instead of a totalitarian tribunal. In this country we spread no sawdust on the surface of our prison yards"—a sharp reference to the executions in Germany.

Terming the spy plot "aborted, puerile, and contemptible," the judge said the trial went to the edge of too great indulgence. In chiding the prosecution the judge also criticized, by indirection, the federal agents' bungling.

Bemoans Escape of Higherups.

"I cannot refrain," he said, "from commenting on the ineptitude of our own law enforcing agencies that permitted some of the defendants to escape."

He asked that in the future there be greater coöperation between civil, military, and federal investigating agencies.

Judge Knox professed the deepest sympathy for Miss Hofmann, whose faltering plea for mercy affected him deeply. She sobbed convulsively as sentence was pronounced.

"She was thrilled to think she was serving her government," the judge said, "but she has been abandoned. A pathetic creature, she should be an example to others.

"If she alone were involved, I would be glad to withhold sentence and let her return to Germany. But she is part and parcel of a system that cannot be tolerated."

Chancellor E. H. Lindley of U. of Kansas Resigns

Mrs. Bess Wagner, seriously injured, and her son, Richard Wagner, 18, killed in fire at Hammond, Ind., apartment building.

Police and fire officials began an investigation into the fire early yesterday in a twenty-seven apartment building in the business district of Hammond, Ind. Richard Wagner, 18 years old, was found suffocated in his third floor apartment. His mother, Mrs. Bess Wagner, and another woman, Mrs. Kathryn Richmond, were injured when they leaped from the third floor of the building to escape the flames. The fire started in a refuse chute and spread through the walls of the building causing dense clouds of smoke. The building is located at 140 Sibley street.

332 AMERICANS ESCAPE SPANISH REBEL AIR RAID

Get to France Just Ahead of Bombs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—A group of American volunteers, totaling 332, left Spain en route to the United States today. The troops crossed the border from Alp, Spain, to La Tour de Carol, France, just ahead of a rebel air attack, in which eighteen bombs were dumped on a railway near Alp.

The Americans have fought with the Spanish loyalists in the civil war. They were members of the Lincoln and Washington battalion of the 15th international brigade, and saw service on many fronts—Madrid, Aragon, Ebro, Teruel, Belchite.

There were no wounded in the group, but another body of 300 will include a number of casualties. This other group is expected to leave Spain soon. The Americans are going home under a decision of the Spanish loyalists to dispense with the aid of alien fighters.

Will Visit in Paris.

Maj. Milton Wolfe is in command of the Americans who reached France today. He is 23 years old and said to be the youngest field officer who fought with the Spanish loyalists.

Among the volunteers are Guy Thorp of Frankfort, Ill., a coal miner, and Benjamin Kutler of New York, who received the key of Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic fraternity, while in Spain.

The French government ordered a destroyer today to the Strait of Gibraltar. It was announced as a move to halt frequent interference with French freighters by Spanish rebel warships.

Loyalists Mass for Drive.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Spanish government command concentrated troops today in the Segovia and Toledo sectors, north and south of Madrid, apparently for some offensive movement. Insurgent air scouts spotted the troop movements.

Government attacks in these sectors, it was pointed out, might force the insurgents to shift reënforcements and delay the offensive they are expected to renew against Valencia, on the east coast.

ITALIANS HURL THREAT OF WAR AGAINST FRANCE

Paris Protests Again in Colonial Dispute.

of the humiliations inflicted by the opulent democracies on the parliamentary Italy of previous times. It is not necessary to say that not all the injustices suffered in the past have been repaired.

Called "Injury" to Italy.

"France's occupation of Tunis in 1881 was a grave injury to Italy on account of the manner in which it was carried out, of its diplomatic precedents and Italian interests which preëxisted and were preponderant in that territory. It is time it should be known that today any one wishing to be Italy's friend must repair the injuries done to it."

Tunisia at present has an Italian population of more than 90,000 out of a total population of about 2,500,000. The French population numbers 110,000. Agriculture is the chief industry of the people. Wheat, barley, and oats are the major cereal crops. A large area of the 48,300 square miles of Tunisia is devoted to the cultivation of the olive, which yields olive oil of the finest quality.

Tunisia came under French influence in 1881 when the French sent a military force into the country to chastise the Khroumer tribes, which were preying on Christian nations. The protectorate resulted.

Big Italian Investments.

The Italian colony in Tunisia has large investments in Tunisian industry and commerce, although France is by far the greatest buyer of Tunisian goods. Both Italy and France have commercial aviation links with Tunisia.

Corsica, best known as the birthplace of Napoleon, has been in France's possession since 1768. It was purchased from Genoa. The population is almost entirely Italian. It is 3,366 square miles in area. Its principal agricultural products are grain, potatoes, olives, wine, and fruits.

Nice, previous to 1860, was part of the kingdom of Sardinia. It was ceded to France by King Victor Emmanuel II. of Italy. It is situated on the Mediterranean at the foot of the Maritime Alps, and is popular among foreigners as a winter resort.

Savoy, in southeast France, forms two departments—Savoie, formerly the southern part of the old duchy of Savoy, and Haute Savoie. It has an area of about 4,000 square miles. It also was transferred to France in 1860. It had been one of the divisions of Sardinia.

Strike Ties Up Liner.

Sailors of the liner Normandie defied a government requisition order tonight and joined other crew members in a strike which French line officials indicated might delay the vessel's sailing for New York tomorrow.

The navy ministry requisitioned the Normandie this afternoon after the union of waiters, supply men, and dining room stewards decided to strike in protest against Premier Daladier's decree laws and for higher wages. When the sailors joined the movement maritime officials said it would be difficult to give the liner an entirely new crew in time for sailing at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The leader of the Le Havre sailors' union, who issued a general strike call, was ordered arrested. It was reported in shipping circles that the government might be forced to call sailors of the regular navy to man the Normandie if it expected to take the vessel out despite the strike.

Corsicans Menace Italians.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BASTIA, Corsica, Dec. 2.—Anti-Italian feeling is running high throughout Corsica as a result of the public clamor in Rome for the return of Corsica to Italy.

Police were called to protect the Italian consulate and homes of Italians residents from an indignant crowd which paraded through the streets, shouting "Down with Italy, long live France."

A mass-meeting is scheduled for Sunday to demonstrate the "Corsican's unchangable will to remain French."

RUMANIAN STUDENT ADMITS FASCIST PLOT TO MURDER RECTOR

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The government today announced the arrest of six student members of the Fascist Iron Guard who attempted to blow up the Cluj Electric plant. Three bombs shattered windows in the town the night of Nov. 5. Bombs placed at a gasoline depot did not explode.

The six arrested were students at the Cluj university, whose rector, F. S. Goanga, was wounded by an assassin Monday. One of the rector's assailants, Franco Antoniu, 23, confessed that the Cluj Iron Guard group drew lots for the assassin job.

Officials said other arrests would be made soon among supposed revolutionary plotters in the outlawed guard. A purge was ordered after the guard chief, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, and thirteen colleagues were shot dead Wednesday in what the government said was an attempt to escape their prison guards.

OFFICE PAY ROLL BOOSTED $1,988 BY LA FOLLETTE

Staf Gets Christmas Gift at Taxpayers' Expense.

Gov. P. F. La Follette.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The extent to which Gov. Phil F. La Follette raided the state treasury last month to play Santa Claus to members of his executive staf at the taxpayers' expense was disclosed today in the office of the secretary of state.

The executive office pay roll for November, it was revealed, was $5,323.92, an increase of $1,988.92 over the October total, which was $3,335.

Two new secretaries and two new stenographers were added to the governor's staf at a combined monthly salary of $910. With five exceptions all monthly salaries were increased at least 50 per cent, and the salary of two employés was nearly doubled.

Pay Boosted $160 a Month.

Miss Lillian McCarthy, private secretary to Col. Charles M. Dow, the governor's personal secretary, received an increase from $190 in October to $350 in November.

Miss Mabel E. Griswold, Gov. La Follette's clerk, whom he recently appointed to the state industrial commission, enjoyed a raise from $210 to $350.

The only three persons on the November pay roll who did not receive an increase in salary were the governor, Col. Dow, and Theodore Pierce, executive office messenger.

Today's disclosure came in the midst of La Follette's continued efforts to appropriate more than 6 million dollars from the state general fund on the eve of his retirement from office. Threatened with legal action if they audited the appropriations ordered by the governor and the emergency board he controls, Secretary of State Theodore Dammann and State Treasurer Sol Levitan refused to make the payments.

Heil Enters Fight.

When Gov. La Follette sought to force the payments which will reduce the state's general fund to approximately 3 million dollars, through a mandamus proceeding before Judge Alvin C. Reis of the Dane county Circuit court, Governor Elect Julius P. Heil stepped into the picture with a petition to the state Supreme court for a writ of prohibition.

The Supreme court heard arguments yesterday on Heil's petition to halt what Republicans charge is an illegal and deliberate raid on the treasury. A ruling is expected next week.

Staf Silent on Raises.

Members of the executive staf were silent on the salary increases they received for November. Gov. La Follette is out of the city.

What puzzled observers was that the pay roll for November—three weeks of which was after the election—was so much higher than for October, when the governor's staf worked night and day in his unsuccessful campaign for reëlection.

Republicans charged that the increases were motivated by La Follette's bitterness over his defeat. They asserted that the raises supported their contention that taxpayers paid a substantial part of the governor's campaign expenses.

Table Shows Salaries.

	Oct.	Nov.

Employés of the governor's office are not under civil service and most, if not all, of them will lose their jobs when Heil assumes office in January.

The address is expected to be of major importance, as arrangements have been made to have it broadcast nationally.

Mr. Roosevelt at a roadside press conference refused to hint at what he plans as its theme. The occasion will give him his first opportunity to give public expression on the present status of international affairs.

THE COMMUNIST-NEW DEAL HOOKUP.

Homer Martin, president of the Automobile Workers, was a reluctant witness Thursday for the Dies committee. He had been excused a number of times out of consideration for his difficulties in the C. I. O. When finally he did appear he was compelled, as a truthful man, to disclose a great deal regarding the communist ascendancy in the powerful automobile affiliate of the John L. Lewis organization.

The Dies committee was prepared for him with transcripts of two speeches he had made at Father Coughlin's church when he was talking freely of his long struggle to get the Stalinites out of key positions in his union. The final decision in this fight was made by John Lewis. It was against Martin and for the communists. The Stalinites and their fellow travelers whom Martin had expelled were reinstated and as the affair stands at present the head of the union has about lost his grip. However, the political situation in Michigan has changed and Lewis no longer controls the state government.

The Dies committee has had to make its way slowly against every form of New Deal opposition. Mr. Roosevelt has spoken in disparagement of it, appropriations have been refused, the department of justice would not give any help, and radicals have tried to smear it and the witnesses. Mr. Dies has fought his way through this poison gas. The committee in due time will make report, which will be full of information for skeptical and incredulous citizens who have been reluctant to believe that there was a working agreement between communists, left wing Socialists, academic Marxians, collective reformists, C. I. O. militants, and the Roosevelt administration. As a preliminary to a report Mr. Dies called Secretary Hull's attention to the fact that a number of organizations promoting alien dogmas, cults, and political ideas in the United States have failed to comply with the new law requiring the registration of their party with the state department. Congressman Dies suggests that Mr. Hull seek the advice of the department of justice.

The law is not an oppressive one. It requires nothing much more than identification of organizations having foreign connections. It is the mildest sort of a police measure intended to bring alien activities out into the open, where they should be. Most of the societies named by Mr. Dies have communist, Nazi, or Italian Fascist connections. Some may be subsidized by foreign governments, although that has not as yet appeared in proof.

The official organ of the American communist party in New York is the Daily Worker, edited by Clarence Hathaway, one of the party officials, and it plainly states in its masthead that it is "affiliated with the communist International." The communist International, as its name implies, is the international agent of the Stalin government. The Daily Worker is subsidized by the soviet union, at least to the extent that it receives free cable service from Moscow carrying the Stalin propaganda for publication here. It is thus, even technically, as the organ of the American communist party, an agent of a foreign government. The Nazi bunds are engaged in the propaganda work for Hitler's dictatorship and are unquestionably inspired by the office over which the loud mouthed Goebbels presides.

The least thing that the New Dealers can do is to make these subversionists comply with the law, register with the state department, and account for themselves if they sought to evade the requirements of the act.

HITLER'S PURGES.

Reports from Berlin indicate that Herr Hitler, in spite of recent successes adding to his stature as a leader, has reason to be concerned with signs of restlessness and has ordered increased activity by the secret police. Numerous arrests are said to have been made, including a number of men who were prominent as Social Democrats before absolutism took over. Although Germany under Hitler gives the outward appearance of solidity, uniformity, and passive if not wholly fanatical acceptance of the Nazi state, such a phenomenon is not within reason.

Hitler, it is true, won his ascendancy through successive elections until he polled a majority of the German votes. The Germans themselves succumbed to his party, but in the last free election, in which the country made its submission, the dissident elements were numbered in the millions. There were four or five million communist voters. There were millions of Catholic Centrists and of Socialists. There were German Constitutional Democrats. Although these parties, too numerous and too opposed in ideas to form a successful coalition, lost the election, they certainly did not lose all their convictions and nothing that has happened under Hitler's domineering suppression of every divergence of opinion can possibly have reconciled them to the terms of life which they must for the present accept.

Absolutism such as Hitler's, Stalin's, and Mussolini's is sustained by secret police. It is also supported by fanaticisms which it must keep at fever heat by constant exhortation and action, but the permeation of society by spies, provocateurs, informers, and police agents is also necessary. Neighbor must feel a dread of neighbor and one workman be uncertain as to the character of another. Despotisms live on zealotry, self-interest, and fear. Without the secret police the compressions find their explosive compactness and something touches them off. No one need imagine that Germany, Russia, and Italy are as satisfied as would appear on the surface. All three countries are sufficiently coerced at present to appear quiescent, but explosive material is stored in all of them awaiting the moment when an event as yet unforeseen detonates it.

ALL THROUGH THE NIGHT.

An examination of recent advertisments in this journal suggests that the nightshirt is coming back. The trend cannot be determined merely by a comparison of the sales of pajamas and nightshirts, for "many men wear only the coats of their pajamas and complain because the regulation coats aren't long enough." These men are, in reality, surreptitious nightshirters though statistically they appear as pajamists. For them a knee length pajama coat has been designed. No pants come with it. It is therefore a nightshirt in all but name. We wish it all success.

An entire generation has grown to manhood in this country without ever having seen a nightshirt. The word, save for the Ku Klux Klan, might well have disappeared from the language. If nightshirts are, indeed, coming back it can be predicted with great confidence that we are nearing the end of an era of unrest. Brown shirts, black shirts, etc., cannot live in the same world with nightshirts.

The men who founded this nation slept in their underwear with their rifles and pants close at hand. The nightshirt was known but it obviously was no garment in which to beat off the attack of marauding bears or Indians. Only when peace had settled over the land did the nightshirt come into general use. From 1865 to 1910 or thereabouts a man could go to bed with reasonable confidence that international boundaries would not be changed before morning. That was the golden age of the nightshirt, the era when a man did not expect to be awakened in the small hours to repel foreign enemies, negotiate with his bootlegger, listen to abdication speeches, rescue his friends from financial catastrophe, or put down a revolution.

Sometimes this period is called the Victorian age; it might more properly be called the nightshirt era. Only those who are old enough to have seen the head of a household ready for bed in 1895 can appreciate how confident men were in those serene days, or rather nights, that they would not have to appear, so attired, before their friends and neighbors. In those days the republic was secure against all enemies, domestic and foreign. Men slept in beds, not on the edges of volcanoes. The nightmares of those days became the realities of daily living to the pajama wearers.

The trend from pajamas is therefore of the utmost significance. If the zeitgeist is again wearing a nightshirt the future can be faced with confidence and hope.

THE FORGOTTEN CONGRESS.

When congress decided to grant independence to the Filipinos the terms of separation were fixed. Mr. Roosevelt now proposes to change the arrangement to suit his own ideas. He has approved the recommendations of a joint commission composed of Filipinos and administrative officials of our government. Congress is not represented. Among other things, the commission wants the Philippines to enjoy fourteen years of tarif preference after independence is achieved in 1946.

The news from Washington indicates that the proposal will not have easy sailing through congress. This is as it should be. Congress decided to grant independence to the islanders for a number of reasons. One was that the islanders wanted it, or thought they did. Another was that the possession of the Philippines presented this country with a constant danger of war against Japan in which we would find ourselves at a severe disadvantage because the war would be fought on the Japanese side of the Pacific. Still another reason was the desire of American farmers to rid themselves of the competition of duty-free fats and sugar from the Philippines.

Congress made the decision. The executive, with his commission, appears once again to be usurping the powers of congress. Whether he is acting in response to suggestions from some mysterious financial group with interests in the Philippines or in sentimental answer to Filipino appeals is beside the point. If any American business men are in danger of suffering losses they can take their complaint to congress. The Filipinos have no standing in the matter. Their spokesmen asked for independence and even hinted at revolt if they didn't get it. The newspaper, among others, favored their cause. Now the Philippine politicians say they want all the advantages of independence with none of its less agreeable implications.

They should have thought of that sooner. As long as the islands are given a favored place in the American economy they will be regarded as wards of our government and there will be an implied responsibility to come to their defense if they are attacked. It was precisely to avoid that duty that independence was granted by congress.

FORTUNATE COUNTIES.

[Rockford (Ill.) Register-Republic.]

Fortunate is the county which is able to handle its relief problem without aid from the state.

Many counties in Illinois are in this position, one of them being our close neighbor, Lee. For better than a year, Lee county has not asked the Illinois emergency relief commission for a penny of state funds. Monroe and Wabash counties, among others, have like records and Carroll and McHenry counties are other neighbors of Winnebago that have done without any appreciable state help.

Under present relief and tax laws these counties are paying the same 3 per cent sales tax as other counties pay. Approximately one-third of this tax goes into the state relief treasury for allocation to counties in need of aid. Thus, the county which does not seek aid is actually helping to support the unemployed in other more needy counties.

Short sighted counties in this position might find some basis for complaint against the situation. However, we believe the state is substantially an economic unit in which unemployment and relief problems are not bounded by county lines. The county which needs no return on its contribution to the state relief treasury is fortunate and it is the more fortunate government units that must bear the load for areas of greater need, just as the employed taxpayer carries the burden of supporting the unemployed upon his broad, capable shoulders.

The Little Lost Prince.

Frederick Brosseau de Bourbon of Chicago holds a photograph of his grandfather, Pierre Brosseau, which bears a very striking resemblance to a miniature likeness of Louis XVI., whose son Pierre Brosseau claimed to have been. Up to 1851 that Pierre Brosseau is said to have been receiving remittances from the Austrian court where the Dauphine, the duchesse d' Angoulême, was in residence. She died that year and the remittances ceased. At least the duchesse d'Angoulême believed that Pierre Brosseau was her brother.

The nuns of the Nazareth academy in Le Grange, Ill., hold many documents concerning the claims of the Brosseau family and have been investigating the records of various Canadian churches. It has been disclosed that the authorities of Montreal were so far convinced that the orphan boy in the keeping of the Jesuit priests in 1800 was the royal Dauphin that they named the street in front of the Jesuit monastery the Rue du Dauphin.

David Nichol is the best authority in the midwest concerning the history and the royal claims of Pierre Brosseau of Montreal and Chicago. Georges Le Nôtre, the French historian, places Pierre Brosseau close to the top of the long list of royal Bourbon claimants, and that Pierre Brosseau is buried in Calvary cemetery.

The Class in Political Isms.

Socialism has been defined to mean that if you have two cows you give one to your neighbor. Under communism you give both cows to the government, which gives you back some of the milk. Under Fascism you keep the cows but give the milk to the government, which gives you back some of it. Under New Dealism you shoot one cow, milk the other, and then pour the milk down the sink.

  And ever-charming spouse,
Save that, to keep the larder filled,
  I'm busier than Mickey Mouse.

No guy alive, my own, my sweet,
  Sings fewer conjugal blues;
Yet mark, my dear, the kids' propen-

But I cannot indite thee pomes

Re this laughter in Morse code [11-17-'38]: the "HI" is not only used as a laughter signal, but is also used as a "ham" greeting. For instance, if I am in Podunk, Ill., and pass a "ham" station which can be identified by its aerial, all I do is whistle the code for "HI," whereupon the "ham" owner of aforesaid station will rush out of his house and greet me as an old friend. Even though we do not know each other personally, the good old signal of "HI" is sufficient introduction.

THE CHILD WITH WEAK EYESIGHT.

PARENTS whose offspring display trouble with vision often wonder what to do about sending them to school. There is a popular opinion that boys and girls who are obliged to wear glasses have "poor sight" and should not be subjected to the strain of class work. Now the fact of the matter is that nearly all children who can see normally with glasses are able to attend regularly without the slightest inconvenience. Use of the eyes—if lenses are properly fitted—should be no more restricted than for those who do not require these corrective devices. In other words, the rules of common sense as to suitable lighting and the avoidance of fatigue should apply. For example headache—the result of strain—should indicate clearly that one has read enough.

When the sight is subnormal, however, despite glasses—either on account of an inherited defect or some one or more diseases interfering with normal function—it may be impossible to carry on routine studies successfully. For this group special plans have been devised and sight saving classes have been maintained for a number of years in the larger centers of population. They have proved highly beneficial and are being introduced rapidly into all communities in which a practical need is demonstrated.

Pupils in these special rooms use books with very large print under particularly advantageous lighting, and with such arrangements that writing on the blackboard is easily visible. In many cities students utilize these aids for study only, reciting with all the others. Thus they are not segregated from those of their age but are simply given the opportunity to prepare their lessons under more favorable circumstances.

The rules for admission call for an examination of the eyes with a report of the vision with and without spectacles. A limit is fixed for enrollment since many lads with but slight difficulty can profit under everyday instruction.

A type of child who is sometimes recommended is the one with progressive nearsightedness, even though such a one is almost normal with glasses. Opinions vary, however, as to the necessity for special attention in such instances. From the scholastic point of view it is highly desirable that all with substandard sight shall be identified as early as possible and permitted to use these additional facilities. One of the duties of the school physician and nurse is to select these cases. The advantages, of course, are obvious. Education may proceed without interruption and at the habitual pace. The optics are not overstrained, hence fatigue with its chain of annoying symptoms will not be encountered.

If a child's ability to see falls below the grade which will permit him to carry on even in classes for the visually handicapped, he should be referred to a school for the blind. These foundations are established not only for those who are totally incapacitated but for those with sight so weak [usually below 20-200] that schooling is impossible. Training of such unfortunates is a responsibility of society and most states have made adequate provision for their tutelage.

It is an injustice to any one to expect him to pursue a course of study when he is unable to see clearly. Conditions that allow such young ones to obtain the maximum degree of education have been carefully provided for in these sight saving sections and in institutions for the blind, and parents should be alert to the value of these modern facilities.

To be able to see, to work, to read, to enjoy nature is one of man's most priceless possessions. But every now and then a youngster will be found who has struggled through two or three terms, retarded constantly because from a rear seat he could not decipher the assignments on the blackboard. Hearing likewise is of equal importance and the correction of either deficiency enables the lad to start the race for life even with his fellows.

SEEKS MORE SLEEP.

S. J. writes: I find it very difficult to sleep at night. I require at least nine hours, but I usually obtain about seven. Kindly advise me how to overcome this habit.

REPLY.

Eat a light dinner and make the noon meal the heaviest of the day. Avoid excitement during the evening. Take a twenty minute stroll out of doors before retiring. A lukewarm bath may help. Some will be benefited by drinking a glass of warm milk. Have the sleeping quarters cool—not too cold; make certain that the bed is comfortable, the mattress even, and do not use heavy bedding. Cultivate mental equanimity and thus avoid worry. If high blood pressure is the cause, consult your physician. Seven hours of restful slumber for the average adult may be enough. The test comes in your reaction to drowsiness on the following day.

SHORTENING OF TENDONS.

N. M. writes: I have a shortening of the cords in the third and fourth fingers of my left hand. Gradually my fingers are closing up. A lump appeared in the cords about a year ago. What do you think is the cause, and can you suggest any help? I am 78 years old and in good health.

REPLY.

You probably are suffering from what is known as Dupuytren's contraction. This may be remedied by a delicate surgical operation which I would not advise at your age. Splinting of the parts will give some relief. In this malady the tendons actually become shorter—the result of a slow inflammatory process.

MASSAGE STOPS COUGHING.

B. L. M. writes: For many years I was troubled with coughing spells in the winter. One night I tried massaging my windpipe with the tips of my fingers. In about ten minutes the attack was relieved. Now, whenever I start coughing, I try the same plan and it always works. This may not help others, but it is successful in my case.

REPLY.

An excellent suggestion, as thereby the circulation is stimulated and the spasm of the muscles is relieved. If bronchitis is deep seated this procedure may not suffice.

MAY BE THYROID TROUBLE.

A. E. H. writes: I am very nervous and shaky in the hands. I am 15 years old. I would like to know what can be done about it.

REPLY.

Have a metabolism test made. Your thyroid gland may be secreting too vigorously. A careful diagnosis is in order.

HOT PRIMARY IN OFFING.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—With a hotly contested primary election in the offing, citizens of Chicago should take an interest in those appointed as clerks and judges in the various precincts.

They are supposed to be men and women of ability, intelligence, and integrity. Often they are required to work long hours—sometimes over twenty-four—to complete the tally.

For this work they receive $8, or about 30 cents an hour. Can you find any other position anywhere that pays as little for as difficult a task? And is it surprising that occasionally some of them yield to the lure of "easy money" promised by the local politicians? Is it surprising that errors occur?

Let's campaign for more intelligence and ability among the precinct boards and then pay them enough to assure an honest and efficient discharge of their duties.

FATHER COUGHLIN: PRO AND CON.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Although speech in this country is free and there always have been laws to protect people from libel, yet no one apparently has thought it necessary to interfere with racial or religious calumny which obviously is intended to stir up prejudice and strife in a land where religious tolerance is the core of its being.

But intolerance is like a sleeping dog; once aroused, no one knows where it may go or whom it may harm. The religious intolerance which Father Coughlin is sending into the air may yet prove to be a boomerang.

SYLVIA ARONSON.

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 1.—Just what was the objection to Father Coughlin's broadcast? Evidently the truth hurts. He has proof for his statements and this is supposed to be a country of free speech. Or are there just a select few who are privileged to speak?

VERNA MURDOCK.

Chicago, Nov. 30. — I think Father Coughlin is the most outstanding speaker of the day on world affairs and that he has no thought of raising race hatreds or any other prejudices but only tries to tell the truths to the people that are denied them by the daily press and other news agencies.

WISHING US A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Informed readers are puzzled to know what contribution The Tribune hopes to make to society and the Republican party by its silly and unrestrained perversion of the truth in its editorials, and misrepresentation and twisting of facts in its so-called news service. Anything said against the present administration, no matter what the source or how untruthful, is spread all over the front page. We recognize the right of editors to say what they please in the editorial columns. In time the public will take care of that. But I submit that the public does have a right to truthful and unbiased news.

THE MAN AND DOG CARTOON.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—McCutcheon's cartoon of a few days ago, "A Man and His Dog," was about as clever as anything I have ever seen in a cartoon. Our whole family got a tremendous kick out of it, as well as our office force, and I have sent at least a dozen copies to out of town friends.

NOT KNOCKING ANYBODY.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 30.—A. D. claims he or she is a regular reader of The Tribune. So am I; in fact since 1886. A. D. objects to Mr. McCutcheon's "glib" remark about "hell." I object to the word glib. Mr. McCutcheon is anything but a glib or flip person. His very fine cartoon shows the result of clear thinking, while at the same time pointing out one of the glaring inconsistencies by which humankind is surrounded.

Following is a passage, which I copied from a book, covering A. D.'s case nicely: "When the anthropologist speaks of primitive man he does not of necessity refer to extinct tribes of humans that passed out of existence thousands of generations ago. Primitive has a cultural, not a time connotation." There are tribes of men living today who are in a primitive state, mentally and socially, and it is these the scientist has in mind when he uses the term. There are even in reputably civilized society types of mind that are as truly primitive in their outlook as are to be found amongst so-called savages.

WPA STARTS AND STOPS.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—About ten days ago the WPA came along our block and, notwithstanding that our gutters adjacent to curbs were in perfect condition, tore up the gutters, leaving a long trench next to the curb. Both my boy and I have stumbled into these trenches and it is dangerous for any one, especially in getting out of auto.

Why do they do this and leave it for days in this condition?

CHAUFFEURS' LICENSES.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—How much longer will the hired chauffeurs in Illinois have to keep paying $3 every year for a license? Now that we are going to have a state drivers' license law why make the hired chauffeur pay so much?

How much longer is the photo racket going to be run in this state? The hired chauffeur has to have his picture taken every year when he renews his license. One photographer makes over $250 on the employés of our company every year for three days' work. Also each employé has to pay 25 cents to a notary when signing his name on the renewed application.

I think this law should be modified some because surely it does not take so much money to run the chauffeur license department in Illinois.

PURCHASING AGENT SLAPS BACK.

Maywood, Ill., Nov. 30.—I was interested in the article appearing in this morning's Tribune entitled "Grafting Purchasing Agents" and signed "Disgusted."

If this fellow was a good salesman he would not write an article of this kind. From over twenty years' experience as a purchasing agent I am pleased to throw it right back in his lap and to remind him that the practice of giving presents to P. A.'s at Christmas was started by the sales department and not by the purchasing department.

I might suggest that he go out and do a real selling job next year and when December comes around he should have enough money to give his family a decent Christmas.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a widow with a daughter of age. Husband died before his mother, who died four years ago. There are four heirs besides my daughter who is supposed to inherit her father's share.

1. The four other heirs ignore us entirely, so employed a young lawyer, and daughter and I signed a document which read [2] to give him the privilege of investigating estate, which contains a building valued presently at $10,000; also a lot valued at $6,000, bought by the city for cash about a year or so ago for right of way for a boulevard. I have since had no information concerning the estate. The lawyer sent word indirectly that it is a very complicated case.

3. Must I continue with his services, or what can I do about it? At the time I first employed him he told me he learned there wasn't any will, and also [4] it has not been probated, but [5] at the death of my mother-in-law my daughter was present when their lawyer read the will.

E. D.

1. It is not clear wheth you mean that the estate is being probated and you are ignored in connection with those proceedings, or merely that there is no social contact between the parties.

2. He would be entitled to examine the court records without any such authorization. It seems probable that the document covers other points.

3. In general, is not necessary for the beneficiaries of a probate estate to be separately represented by counsel. You state no facts to indicate that your case is exceptional.

4. In general, probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a readily saleable title to the real estate, unless the title was held in joint tenancy.

5. The Illinois statutes make no provision for the formal reading of a will. The reading has no technical significance.

State Billboards Are Part of Press Agentry.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—A comprehensive billboard program is supplementing the efforts of Gov. Henry Horner's staf of public pay roll press agents. Like the press agentry, the billboards are financed by tax funds.

Motorists entering Illinois on any of the hundreds of highways leading into this state, are met by signs. There was a time when these official signs read "Entering Illinois" or "Illinois State Line," following a style fairly uniform throughout the country. Now they read, "Welcome to Illinois, Henry Horner, Governor." Horner's name is a bold facsimile of his signature.

Billboards Mark Parks.

The state parks likewise are marked by billboards, including a feature which merchandising counselors would classify as name advertising. For example, on the wooded bluffs of the Sangamon river north of here, where public funds are reconstructing the home town of Abraham Lincoln's youth, the visitor is greeted by a sign: "Welcome to New Salem State Park." Then, in capitals half a foot high, appears the stenciled signature: "Henry Horner, Governor."

New Salem is becoming an authentic replica of the town of 100 population where Lincoln split rails, read Blackstone by the light of the fireplace, clerked in the village grocery, failed financially in a general store partnership, and began his career as a statesman. Even the stumps of a pioneer settlement in a fresh clearing have been planted among the log cabins to lend authenticity to the scene.

This scene, an impressive monument of American history, almost reverent in the eyes of Lincoln students, has not been inviolate to the advertising campaign.

Historic Inn Placarded.

The Rutledge tavern where Lincoln lodged in the attic, the inn where lived Ann Rutledge of the immortal Lincoln romance, bears a brass placard reading: "Erected 1937, State of Illinois, Henry Horner, Governor."

State auditors have no figures on how much this name advertising is costing the taxpayers. There is no record of the number of such billboards, although it is common knowledge that they are on every fish hatchery, game preserve, and on many public construction jobs as well as at every state park and every state highway entrance into Illinois.

State engineers declined to estimate the cost per billboard. Private sources calculated the cost at $9 to $11 for each board. It was pointed out, however, that all of the cost cannot be charged against the name advertising campaign. Most of the cost can be charged to the service of public information. Horner's system of adding his name merely increases the total expense, which obviously will be appreciable with a change of administrations.

Others Not Adverse.

In fairness to the governor it might be mentioned that other public officials are not adverse to seeing their own names in public places. On Cook county forest preserve signs is the name, in smaller letters than the rest of the message, of President Clayton F. Smith.

The name of Mayor Edward J. Kelly appears in neon tubing under "Chicago Municipal Sanitarium" over the entrance to this institution from Peterson road.

Does this remind you of how the dominating Democrats suppressed Republican campaign billboards in Chicago last month?

COUNCIL TO ACT FRIDAY ON FIRST SUBWAY AWARD

The city council will act next Friday on the award of the first contract for building the State street subway, Mayor Kelly said yesterday. Council approval of the award and the contractor's bond will be necessary before work can be started.

Philip Harrington, subway commissioner, will make the award, subject to council and Public Works administration approval. It is expected that the contract will go to the Herlihy Mid-Continent Construction company, the lowest of eight bidders, on Thursday. The Herlihy company bid $2,746,104 for the section of the tunnel between Illinois street and Bellevue place.

Mayor Kelly said Harold L. Ickes, PWA administrator, has accepted an invitation to attend the ceremonies at the start of the work. The PWA contributed $18,000,000 toward the $40,000,000 cost of the initial system. The mayor said he believed the starting date would be Dec. 15.

Close Hearings by Jan. 15 on Personalty Complaints

Hearing of complaints on 1938 personal property assessments will be completed by Jan. 15, it was announced yesterday by the board of tax appeals. Up to Thursday night the board had received 5,699 complaints.

EILEEN WASIK.

Mrs. Eileen Wasik, 21 years old, was being questioned by police yesterday after a man she said she had met a few hours before slugged another man and woman and tried to steal the woman's purse.

Mrs. Wasik, who lives at 340 West 65th street, said she met the stranger, a James Brown, 22, at a party. When the party broke up she offered to drive him home, she said. At 6757 Oglesby avenue Brown suddenly ordered her to stop the car. "That's my girl friend," he cried, seized a wrench, and leaped out. He struck Miss Emily Gager, 29, of 6901 Oglesby avenue, and Leo Glatz, 36, of 8659 Vincennes avenue, and tried to take Miss Gager's purse.

When his victim screamed Mrs. Wasik drove away, surrendering to police later. Neither Miss Gager nor Glatz had ever seen Brown before, they said. Mrs. Wasik said he took her wristwatch from her, during the drive, saying he wanted to examine it, and failed to return it.

U. S. SUIT NAMES BUCK IN LOSS BY CALUMET BANK

$135,526 Sought from Former Receiver.

Clarence F. Buck.

Clarence F. Buck of Monmouth, former collector of internal revenue in Chicago, was charged yesterday with mismanagement of his duties when he was receiver of the Calumet National bank of Chicago.

The charges were contained in a suit filed in federal court by the federal controler of currency in behalf of the bank. The suit seeks to recover alleged losses suffered by the bank from Buck and the two surety companies that bonded him for $350,000.

The estimated loss to the bank through Buck's alleged failure to execute properly his duties as receiver is placed at $135,526 plus interest, according to attorneys. The two surety companies named as defendants with Buck are the Eagle Indemnity company and the Royal Indemnity company of New York.

Named Receiver in 1932.

The Calumet bank went into receivership in October, 1931. Buck was appointed federal receiver on June 21, 1932. He resigned April 22, 1936. According to the suit, he is accused of failing to account for assets and collections of the bank.

Buck is charged with liquidating assets of the bank at less than the best prices attainable, with subsequent loss to the bank.

"By the neglect of Buck," the suit states, "creditors therefore were cheated and defrauded by diverse persons."

Conspiracy Case Recalled.

The suit points out that in another case pending before Federal Judge William H. Holly thirty-two persons, including Mrs. Fern North Gishwiller, former confidential clerk to the receiver of the bank, are charged with conspiracy to obtain more than $100,000 in assets from the bank.

Buck, a Republican leader in the state, also served as collector of customs for the port of Chicago. He served eight years in the Illinois senate and at one time was state director of agriculture. In 1936 he was an unsuccessful candidate for state treasurer.

Seize 2 at Delicatessen as Suspected Burglars

Two young men were held by Sheffield avenue police as burglar suspects last night following their arrest just before dawn yesterday. They are Adam Sosnowski, 19 years old, 2502 Southport avenue, and Paul Gluckman, also 19, of 2449 North Ashland avenue. Policemen Rundin Borge and Frank Thiese caught Sosnowski inside a delicatessen at 826 Fullerton avenue and Gluckman outside. Police said Sosnowski last year served six months in the county jail on a larceny charge and Gluckman six months in the house of correction on a similar charge.

ARREST REPORTS VANISH; 2 FREED; POLICE FACE QUIZ

Assistant State's Attorney Kasimir Cwiklinski announced yesterday he will question two Park district police Monday concerning the disappearance of the minute sheet in the case of Mrs. Lalah Winetraub. Mrs. Winetraub, 33 years old, 40 East Oak street, was dismissed yesterday on a charge of driving while intoxicated by Judge Stephen Adamowski in the Safety court.

Park Policemen Frank Oelsen and Arthur Peters testified that they arrested Mrs. Winetraub and Edward Craig, 1837 Patterson avenue, on Nov. 25. They were sitting in a car at Lake Shore drive and Montrose avenue. Police had been told they were driving erratically. Mrs. Winetraub was at the wheel. They said they did not see the car in motion.

Judge Adamowski ordered both defendants discharged. Assistant State's Attorney Cwiklinski then found that the informal minute sheet made out by policemen was missing. While the sheets are sometimes removed from the court room, Cwiklinski said he wanted to question the policemen about the case.

Superior Court Re-elects Niemeyer as Chief Justice

TWO ARRAIGNED ON ICE CREAM TRUST CHARGES

Two of the twenty defendants named in the ice cream indictment in the government's anti-trust action against the milk and ice cream industry pleaded not guilty yesterday when they were arraigned before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

They are C. S. Hutchinson of Des Moines, Ia., vice president of the Beatrice Creamery company, and Ernest H. Daniel of Washington, D. C., president of the Carry Ice Cream company. Dec. 12 has been set as the date for the arraignment of the other defendants. Hutchinson and Daniel also entered pleas of not guilty for the corporations they represent, which also were indicted.

Various Readers Select Year's Best from Mystery and Detective Stories

Mystery and detective fiction is said to be relished by the most massive brains. The harder the day's work, mentally, the more like a homing pigeon one flies to a relaxing mystery, the experts declare. There are men [and women, too] for whom nothing makes so exciting a Christmas gift. Here are the season's outstanding tales as chosen by the staf of TRIBUNE reviewers.

There seems to be a good deal of foul play in the social register this year. Three of the year's best mysteries are about "nice people."

The Glass Slipper, by Mignon G. Eberhart [Doubleday Doran, $2], is a perfect emulsion of love and murder among Chicago's better folk. [Nov. 4.] The Wall, by Mary Roberts Rinehart [Farrar & Rinehart, $2], also is polite murder in the social set . . . of Bar Harbor . . . with a dash of romance. [July 11.] Racing yachts give breeziness to Murder in Newport, by Gerard B. Lambert [Scribners, $2], with an unusual dénouement based on an old gadget now used in crime detection. [July 12.]

Gracie Allen in person helps solve the doing-in in The Gracie Allen Murder Case, by S. S. Van Dine [Scribners, $2]. It's funny. [Oct. 28.] File on Claudia Cragge [Morrow, $2.25] provides a real crime file, like those at headquarters, and lets the reader be as good a detective as the professionals—if he isn't dumb. [Oct. 26].
F. B.

The Listening House, by Mabel Seeley [Crime Club, $2]. Plenty of murders arising from a long dead scandal in an eerie, forbidding house. [Sept. 9.]

The Whispering Ear, by Clyde B. Clason [Crime Club, $2]. A novelist's Hollywood contract, a case of identical twins, the Temple of the Whispering Ear—all held together by the red thread of death. [Nov. 4.]

The Spymaster, by E. Phillips Oppenheim [Little Brown, $2]. International intrigue in modern London, an uncanny prophecy in view of actual developments in European affairs. [Nov. 10.]

The Christmas Tree Murders, by Joel Y. Dane [Crime Club, $2]. A pleasantly seasonal little story that vibrates with horror. [Oct. 7.].
C. L.

Trent Intervenes, by E. C. Bentley [Knopf, $2]. One of the best collections of short mystery stories since Sherlock Holmes. [Oct. 24.]

Lycanthrope, the Mystery of Sir William Wolf, by Eden Phillpotts [Macmillan, $2]. A story of horror and lycanthropy which can be placed next to Dracula on the shiver shelf. [Sept. 20.]

The Crooked Hinge, by John Dickson Carr [Harpers, $2]. A story of terror and mystery at an old English manor house. [Oct. 5.]

Banbury Bog, by Phoebe Atwood Taylor [Norton, $2]. Another Asey Mayo Cape Cod mystery and one of his best. [Oct. 8.]

A Blunt Instrument, by Georgette Heyer [Crime Club, $2.] A gay and witty account of a murder in a small London suburb. [Oct. 7.]

The Corpse with the Grimy Glove, by R. A. J. Walling [Morrow, $2]. One of Walling's topnotch mysteries; the strange death of a financier at an English country house. [Oct. 12.]

The Mystery of the Hushing Pool, by J. S. Fletcher [Hillman Curl, $2]. Posthumous work by one of England's leading writers of mystery fiction, and one of his best. [Oct. 18.]

Mystery in White, by Jefferson Farjeon [Bobbs Merrill, $2]. The shivery murder story of a party of travelers marooned in an English country house over Christmas by a blizzard. [Nov. 25.]

The Fashion in Shrouds, by Margery Allingham [Doubleday-Doran, $2]. One of Miss Allingham's most entertaining accounts of Albert Campion's deft solving of a baffling mystery. [Oct. 7.]

Follow the Saint, by Leslie Charteris [Crime Club, $2]. Contains three high speed separate adventure episodes of the inimitable modern Robin Hood. An ace volume in a long list of rattling good crime stories. [Nov. 18.]
A. C.

Murder on Safari, by Elspeth Huxley [Harpers, $2], is among the best mysteries of the year. The story has for a colorful background an African big game hunt, a de luxe expedition on which more than one person meets death, but not at the fangs of a wild animal. [May 25.]

Death Casts a Lure, by Madeleine Johnston [Crime Club, $2]. Murders in a private fishing club in the wild Canadian bush country, the suspects both the vacationist members and the half-breed natives. An expert mystery with a journalist detective. [Dec. 2.]
E. W.

To Wake the Dead, by John Dickson Carr [Harpers, $2]. Mr. Carr is a master of the eerie detective story. This is a "whodunit" with fine deductive reasoning. [March 1.]

The Four of Hearts, by Ellery Queen [Stokes, $2]. If it's more deductive reasoning you want, Ellery Queen is your man. Here he is thrown into the mad Hollywood scene, finds a couple of murders, and has to resort to a daring scheme to stop some more. [Oct. 6.]

Challenge to the Reader, an anthology edited by Ellery Queen [Stokes, $2.50]. Twenty-five of the best detective stories written in the last forty years are offered here in anthology form for the first time. As an extra bit of difficulty for the reader, the detective in each story is given a pseudonym, so you have to discover his identity as well as the villain's. [Nov. 3.]

A Varied Group with Appeal for General Tastes

BY WILL O'NEIL.

Authors and publishers must have a reason for all of the books they turn out each year. In some instances the book gives no clew to the reason for its being. In other instances the book, once started, practically compels a complete reading. Here are a few of the latter classification read during the year:

Dry Guillotine, by René Belbenoit [Dutton, $3]. Belbenoit escaped after fifteen years of living hell in French Guiana prison colonies known as Devil's Island. He lugged his thirty pound manuscript to the United States. His book is fascinating.

Our Amazing Earth, by Carroll Lane Fenton [Doubleday Doran, $4.50]. This fulfills a long need for a humanizing of geology. Fenton is master of his subject and has the ability to let others in on the secrets of his trade without straining their minds. The supposedly dead earth comes alive under his touch.

It's All Adventure, by Peter Freuchen [Farrar & Rinehart, $3.50]. Bearded Peter carries on from his stopping point in "Arctic Adventure." Life in Denmark has its amusing complications when seen through eyes conditioned by years of living in Greenland. Freuchen has many an interesting slant on civilization.

Edison's Open Door, by Alfred O. Tate [Dutton, $3]. Tate was the late inventor's private secretary. He tells of the inventor's and his own life with a gentle whimsy that carries the reader back to the turn of the century.

We Too Are the People, by Louise V. Armstrong [Little Brown, $3]. Mrs. Armstrong was a relief administrator in a northern Michigan county. This appears to be the first time a social worker has broken the traditional vow of secrecy and told all, with emphasis on her own views of what's right about relief giving.

Underground News, by Oscar E. Millard [McBride, $2.75]. This is the story of the newspaper the Belgians published in defiance of their German conquerors. The publishers dropped out one by one, but the paper lived through the war.

F. O. B. Detroit, by Wessel Smitter [Harper, $2.50]. Machines master a man in this novel of the automobile industry.

Age of Consent, by Norman Lindsay [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50]. In this novel, Bradly Mudgett is an artist who has peculiar adventures in Australia. The many chuckles that he carries on his broad back come from a source subtly above the belt line.

Looking Behind the Censorships, by Eugene J. Young [Lippincott, $3]. This is one of the best, if not the best, analysis of what's going on in Europe. The author is the cable editor of a New York newspaper.

It Costs to Be President, by Henry L. Stoddard [Harper, $3.50]. Some interesting tales by a man who knew a good many Presidents.

Invisible Stripes, by Warden Lewis E. Lawes [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50]. Another discussion of the United States' penal system by a man well qualified to discuss the subject.

These Choices Cover a Broad Reading Range

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

From ancient Egypt's moonlit nights to Bohemia's bloody years of war, from the habitues of Paris literary salons to the scheming little men who make revolutions in Mexico, from an Arizona tourist camp to Goshen's Hambletonian track runs the course of this reader's literary fare for the year. Here, then, are the highlight books of the stack that has accumulated since last holiday season, not listed in any order of preference:

Life of Christ, by Hall Caine [Doubleday Doran, $3.50]. The archeological technique applied to literature uncovers a monument of vast proportions, revealing infinite detail about the time of Christ, even though it fails in some measure to reveal the personality of Christ as known to the people of his day.

Our Lady, by Upton Sinclair [Rodale Press, $1.50]. Brilliant, incisive, delicately handled, this story of Mary's translation to modern times and her puzzlement over our attitude toward her son, Jesus, gives the briefest yet most human picture of Christ to be found in modern literature. It succeeds where Caine's work fails; fails where his more thorough study succeeds.

Never to Die: The Egyptians in Their Own Words, edited by Josephine Mayer and Tom Prideaux [Viking, $3.50]. From the recorded writings of ancient Egypt comes this charming anthology of folk literature which clothes with life the splendors that have come to us very dead and very dusty from the tombs of the Pharaohs.

Wallenstein, by Francis Watson [Appleton-Century, $4]. Indigent nobleman that he was, Albrecht von Wallenstein stormed his way to heights of glory and power seldom equaled in history—yet the bloody war of Thirty Years that made him a man to remember also doomed him to disappointment and death. A long, scholarly, but very full blooded biographical history.

The War Against the West, by Aurel Kolnai [Viking, $4]. Tribal gods stalk Germany today and the free civilization of Christianity faces the uncompromising threat of their culture. Kolnai recognizes the problem as it is presented by Nazi writers and in a hard to read book creates the year's finest picture of the nature of national socialism.

First Act in China, by John M. Bertram [Viking, $3]. China's present war with Japan has produced the usual welter of writing—some good, most of it bad. Amusing, informative, revealing of sides to principal characters that no other writer has discovered, this too-little publicized book must be placed in the first rank of the Sino-Japanese bibliography.

Glass Houses, by Carleton Beals [Lippincott, $3.50]. Twenty years in Latin countries prepared Carleton Beals for this highly entertaining and important background study of the disturbances in three southern nations —Mexico, Spain, and Italy. It is at once a travel book, a biography, a history, and a commentary, and it is good in each rôle.

Westward Under Vega, by Thomas Wood Stevens [Covici-Friede, $2]. Fragile, yet heart warming, this little novel in poetry reveals the inner qualities of two youngsters in love who set a skylark course westward and discover instead the tragedy and beauty that makes them mature and wise, and more in love than ever.

From a Paris Scrapbook, by Richard Le Gallienne [Ives Washburn, $2.50]. Perhaps because of the nostalgia it engendered, this scrapbook of intimate reminiscences about Paris was a charming, summery interlude in a season of heavy reading. It proves nothing — except that Paris is a lovely place.

Europe's Recent Crisis Is Subject of Volumes by Two Noted Authors

Two small books by two outstanding writers, Hendrik Willem van Loon and Christopher Morley, have just been published, each concerned with the recent European crisis.

Mr. Morley, in "History of an Autumn" [Lippincott. $1], gives a mental history of the average man during the most foreboding moments of our lifetime. He calls it a Christmas card for a Christmas that might never have been.

Mr. Van Loon's "Our Battle" [Simon & Schuster, $1], answers Adolf Hitler's "My Battle" and calls to action all people who are still free to take up the struggle.

CHRISTMAS BOOK REVIEWS

Leading Novels of Year Boast a Sturdy Reality

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The outstanding novels of 1938, almost to a book, have had a certain stanch reality about them, and at the same time have been "escape" literature in the sense that they lifted the reader out of his own life into scenes so exigent that they made him forget his surroundings and their demands.

Surveying the year's most interesting fiction I find that approximately twice as many novels of distinction have modern settings as historical backgrounds. That is true of the best of the year's American and English fiction. Continental fiction that has come to us in translation seems about equally divided between contemporary life and the past.

American Fiction with Contemporary Setting.

The Yearling, by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings [Scribner's, $2.50]. The year's most beloved novel, already a classic. A simple, moving record of the coming of age of a boy in a wild Florida setting, with nature as real as the humans who live by her indulgence.

Black Is My Truelove's Hair, by Elizabeth Madox Roberts [Viking, $2.50]. With the true poet's beauty of prose, Miss Roberts tells of a Kentucky Glen girl's sudden flaming mistaken love, of her renunciation of it, of her proud, bitter days of homecoming, and of her final happiness. Has the simplicity and the distinction of a ballad.

The Great American Novel, by Clyde Brion Davis [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50]. One of the realest novels ever written about a hard working American newspaper man, a frustrated soul who wanted to be a novelist.

Bricks Without Straw, by Charles G. Norris [Doubleday Doran, $2.50]. An understanding novel of two generations and their inevitable clashes.

Mr. Despondency's Daughter, by Anne Parrish [Harpers, $2.50]. A devastating but tender satire of the sort of beautiful, selfish woman who gets everything she wants by pretended humility and assumed sweetness.

To Remember at Midnight, by Michael Foster [Morrow, $2.50]. Not so memorable as his first novel, "American Dream," this is the oft-recorded tale of a great American actress told with a new strength.

Remember the End, by Agnes Sligh Turnbull [Macmillan, $2.50]. The author of "The Rolling Years" here pictures a Pennsylvania millionaire who deliberately sacrificed to his ambitions his own sensitiveness for beauty, but was unable to subjugate his son's.

The Noise of Their Wings, by MacKinlay Kantor [Putnams, $2.50]. Mr. Kantor, who has done so much fictionally about the civil war, here chooses the present for his background and the search for an extinct pigeon as his theme. Not his best, but well written.

Novels by Chicagoans.

Wisdom's Gate, by Margaret Ayer Barnes [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50]. This continues the story of the marriage which shocked the family as "Years of Grace" closed. An understanding intimate record of a modern, swiftly paced family relationship, involving ex's and in-laws as well as the large family itself in a Chicago suburb.

No Star Is Lost, by James T. Farrell [Vanguard, $3]. An almost day by day record of the lives of children in an Irish family on Chicago's south side, a bitter story, continuing "A World I Never Made." Probably will be, when finished, another "Studs Lonigan" trilogy.

All the Year Round, by Dorothy Aldis [Houghton Mifflin, $2]. A lithesome human tale of a few critical days in the life of a middle aged mother of three grown or adolescent children and a husband who is both. Chicago and suburban background.

It's Not My Problem, by Kenneth Horan [Doubleday Doran, $2]. A very amusing fictionized diary of one year in the author's life which followed her success with her hilarious reminiscential "Remember the Day." Background—Evanston and Chicago.

◆

Lost Daughter, by Louise Redfield Peattie [Putnam's, $2]. The story of a girl who had a haunting feeling that she was not her parents' child—and wasn't! California background.

This Is Me, Kathie, by Julia Truitt Yenni [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2]. An unassuming but delightful tale of the quiet sister of the village beauty somewhere in the midwest. A first novel.

Woman About Town, by Allis McKay [Macmillan, $2.50]. A zestful light novel about a young artist in an advertising office in Chicago. A first novel.

Historical Novels.

All This, and Heaven, Too, by Rachel Field [Macmillan, $2.50]. This most fascinating of tales is fictionized fact—the story of the author's great-Aunt Henriette, who was the most notorious woman in France in her day when she was drawn into a murder case that had serious historic repercussions, and who became famous in America as the wife of Henry Field, brother of the man who laid the first Atlantic cable, Cyrus Field. The most popular novel in America today.

The Buccaneers, by Edith Wharton [Appleton Century, $2.50]. The unfinished manuscript of what would certainly have been one of Edith Wharton's most brilliant, ironic records—of the conquest of London society in the 1870s by two beautiful young Americans. An interesting study in her technique as well as an excellent novel, even unfinished.

◆

Dynasty of Death, by Taylor Caldwell [Scribners, $2.75]. A long, torrential tale of the generations of an American family whose fabulous wealth comes from the manufacture of munitions.

And Tell of Time, by Laura Krey [Houghton Mifflin, $2.75]. Another first novel of distinction. The turbulent political excitements of Texas in the aftermath of the civil war give this long novel something of the quality of "Gone with the Wind." The most popular first novel of the year.

The General's Lady, by Esther Forbes [Harcourt Brace, $2.50]. A tense tale of the wife of a rebel general and a British officer in Massachusetts in the taut times of the American revolution.

Three Harbours, by F. van Wyck Mason [Lippincott, $2.75]. The American revolution is also the background for this full bodied tale of the maritime people of colonial America and of Bermuda—a neglected dramatic phase of history.

Trumpets at Dawn, by Cyril Harris [Scribners, $2.50]. Another tale of the American revolution with a different slant—showing the colonies not at all united in warring against England. Moving, sometimes rollicking.

Free Land, by Rose Wilder Lane [Longmans, $2.50]. An unforgettable novel of pioneer days of homesteading in the Dakotas. A spring book still remembered.

She Was Carrie Eaton, by Elizabeth Corbett [Appleton Century, $2]. A tale of the girlhood, just after the civil war, of "Mrs. Meigs," the most popular old woman in modern fiction.

◆

The Start of the Road, by John Erskine [Stokes, $2.50]. Walt Whitman as a young man in New Orleans is the hero of this not at all flippant tale by the author of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." It propounds a new theory of Whitman's inspiration.

First the Blade, by May Merrill Miller [Knopf, $3]. A pioneer novel of the unsettled wilds of California and the story of a girl who leaves the cultured background of civil war Missouri. A first novel.

The Fathers, by Allen Tate [Putnams, $2.50]. The first novel from the pen of one of the best of southern poets is a delicately written but not a delicate tale of the civil war.

First Novels.

Other interesting first novels written by Americans are:

The Back Door, by Julian Meade [Longmans, $2.50]. The author of "I Live in Virginia" here writes tenderly but amusingly about the back door people, Negro servants.

Old Haven, by David Cornel De Jong [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50]. The quiet life of a family in Holland—the author's ancestors—is happily recorded in this novel, which won a $1,000 fellowship.

Young Man with a Horn, by Dorothy Baker [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50]. Another $1,000 fellowship novel, unusually good. Records the life of a trumpet player in a jazz orchestra. One of the year's memorable books as far as originality of material is concerned.

What People Said, by W. L. White [Viking, $2.75]. An unusually accurate recording of life in a small city in the midwest. Published in April, but remembered.

Roots in the Sky, by Sidney Meller [Macmillan, $3]. A long, highly detailed tale of a Jewish immigrant family in San Francisco.

American Novelettes.

The Fifth Column and the First Forty-nine Stories, by Ernest Hemingway [Scribners, $2.75]. Contains the first play from Mr. Hemingway's gifted pen about the Spanish revolution—and forty-nine short stories, of which three are new.

The Long Valley, by John Steinbeck [Viking, $2.50]. "The Red Pony," a memorable little tale, previously published in a limited edition, and thirteen other stories make up this collection by the author of "Of Mice and Men."

The Journey of Tapiola, by Robert Nathan [Knopf, $1.75]. A very short whimsical tale of a Yorkshire terrier's search for adventure which nearly ended in the New York garbage dump. Some think it symbolic.

English Novels.

Rebecca, by Daphne du Maurier [Doubleday Doran, $2.75]. The most popular of the English novels today. A tale of a forlorn young girl who marries a fabulous English gentleman and his fabulous house, and finds his dead first wife, Rebecca, a terrifying memory. It turns into a supremely good mystery. Told beautifully, it is a thriller de luxe.

My Son! My Son! by Howard Spring [Viking, $2.50]. A moving tale of a father's love which has been a best seller ever since its publication in May. The first novel of a famous English literary critic.

◆

Testament, by R. C. Hutchinson [Farrar & Rinehart, $3]. An impressive picture of the two Russian revolutions of 1917, and especially of one man who was at the same time a victim of and a victor over lost causes. Has the "feel" of the great Russian novels.

Dr. Bradley Remembers, by Francis Brett Young [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75]. A long, gently chronicled story of an English country doctor's life.

The Joyful Delaneys, by Hugh Walpole [Doubleday Doran, $2.50]. One of Mr. Walpole's lesser works, but an amusing tale of a family and a house in London.

The Doomsday Men, by J. B. Priestley [Harpers, $2.50]. Also a minor work of a major writer, a thriller which at times is pretty nearly a dime novel. Background, California and the desert.

◆

Apropos of Dolores, by H. G. Wells [Scribners, $2.50]. This seems to be a year of minor opuses of major literary operators. Mr. Wells here indulges in a savage satire of the seeking lady.

The Valiant Woman, by Sheila Kaye-Smith [Harpers, $2.50]. Has as heroine a modern counterpart of "Joanna Godden" in the author's favorite Sussex background.

In Hazard, by Richard Hughes [Harpers, $2.50]. An amazing and terrifying fictionization of a hurricane at sea.

Spella Ho, by H. E. Bates [Little Brown, $2.50]. From 1873 to 1931, the hero who has two obsessions, money and women, and the great house, Spella Ho, live in these pages.

◆

House of All Nations, by Christina Stead [Simon & Schuster, $3]. An immense novel with 126 characters and with all of Europe and the two Americas for background, devoted to man's greed for money. By an Australian living in America.

The World Is Mine, by William Blake [Simon & Schuster, $3]. A long, dashing picaresque tale of a Spaniard who became the richest man in the world during the world war.

Derelicts, by William McFee [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50]. A tale of a modern "Lord Jim," by the best of the Joseph Conrad disciples.

Historical English Novels.

Garland of Bays, by Gwyn Jones [Macmillan, $3]. A witty, robust, braggart tale of Elizabethan England with, as hero, Robert Greene, one of the Shakespeare-Marlowe group.

Crippled Splendour, by Evan John [Dutton, $2.50]. England, Scotland, and France of the fifteenth century are brought alive in this exciting story of James I. of Scotland.

Count Belisarius, by Robert Graves [Random, $3]. A brilliant recreation of Constantinople of 500 A. D., the age of the Emperor Justinian.

Dead Ned, by John Masefield [Macmillan, $2.50]. Told in the quaint style of the eighteenth century, an adventurous tale of a young doctor of that day executed for murder who lived to go to Africa. By England's poet laureate.

Foreign Novels.

Man's Hope, by Andre Malraux [Random, $2.50]. Brilliantly and epically chronicles the Spanish revolution.

Wolf Among Wolves, by Hans Fallada [Putnams, $3]. A gigantic novel about post-war Germany when inflation made involuntary wolves of even the gentlest. By the author of "Little Man, What Now?"

Ships in the Sky [published in January] and The Night and the Dream [published in September], by Gunnarsson [Bobbs Merrill, $2.50 each]. Two volumes of a long, impressive autobiographical novel of childhood on an Icelandic farm. Translated from the Danish.

Perri, by Felix Salten [Bobbs Merrill, $2.50]. A tender life and love story of a little gray squirrel by the Austrian author of the unforgettable "Bambi."

◆

Foreign Novels with Historical Backgrounds.

Joseph in Egypt, by Thomas Mann [Knopf, two volumes, $5]. The continuation of one of the great epics of our day. Biblical background. Translated from the German.

Shadows Around the Lake, by Guy de Pourtales [Knopf, $3]. Records the life of a Swiss musician before and after the great war, with Geneva, as much as the human characters, living in these pages. Winner of the Grand Prix de L'Academie Française and the Heinemann prize in England.

The House of Tavelinck, by Jo Van Ammers-Kuller [Farrar & Rinehart, $3]. Holland's revolution in the eighteenth century is the background of this powerful tale of political intrigue and romance. Translated from the Dutch.

Death of a World, by Jules Romains [Knopf, $3]. Volume seven of the "Men of Good Will" series, France's great modern epic. Time: 1914.

The Survivors, by Rene Behaine [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50]. One volume in a work running to many, by the man Ford Madox Ford calls "the most remarkable living novelist."

Meek Heritage, by F. E. Sillanpaa [Knopf, $2.50]. A bleak tale of the farmer and the earth in Finland from the late 1860s to the Finnish proletarian revolution. By Finland's leading novelist.

The Saga of Frank Dover, by Johannes Buchholtz [Putnams, $2.75]. An epic of South Africa in the time of Rhodes and Kreuger. Translated from the Danish.

The Dictator, Phenomenon of Century, Takes an Important Role in 1938 Books

BY CARL WIEGMAN.

That amazing twentieth century phenomenon—the dictator—was the subject of some of the most interesting books of the year. Some of them, coming off the presses as Adolf Hitler paraded into Vienna and as he laid down the terms at Munich, were almost as timely as the newspaper accounts of the events. For an understanding of what has happened and what might happen the following are recommended:

The School for Dictators, by Ignazio Silone [Harpers, $2.50]. This brilliant book, by the author of "Bread and Wine," is a modern version of Machiavelli's "Prince." Silone's chief characters are Mr. W., a possible future dictator of the United States, and Thomas the Cynic, a European political refugee who instructs Mr. W. in how to pursue his objective. Silone does not ridicule Fascism. He is in deadly earnest, and that's the way most Americans will be after they read the book.

◆

Peace with the Dictators, by Norman Angell [Harpers, $3]. Writing before the peace of Munich, Sir Norman turned out a discussion of England's problems that is unclouded by foggy London prejudice. He states the case for Germany and Italy better than any of their spokesmen ever have done.

Britain and the Dictators, by R. W. Seton-Watson [Macmillan, $3.50]. This is a careful study of events from Versailles to the seizure of Austria, by a professor of history at the University of London. As an apology for British foreign policy it is first rate.

◆

The House That Hitler Built, by Stephen H. Roberts [Harpers, $3]. Mr. Roberts, an Australian historian, is unbiased, if anybody can be unbiased, about Hitler. His clear analysis of Nazi party history, Nazi leaders, Nazi policies and problems is becoming a standard work on the subject.

Unto Cæsar, by F. A. Voigt [Putnam, $3]. Mr. Voigt, foreign affairs editor of the Manchester Guardian, discusses the religious implications of Marxian socialism and national socialism—an angle that only recently has been getting attention in America.

Heredity and Politics, by J. B. S. Haldane [Norton, $2.50]. Prof. Haldane of the University of London demolishes the Nazi theories of racial dominance and tells how little is known and how much is not known about the science of heredity.

Saints in Summertime, by Brinckerhoff Jackson [Norton, $2.50]. This novel, printed during the summer and cursed with a title that sounds like hammoc reading, got too little attention. It tells the story of the struggle between government by reason and government by emotion as well as it could be told by half a dozen scholarly nonfictional works.

◆

Several good omnibuses of knowledge were published during the year. One of them is The Law and Mr. Smith, by Max Radin [Bobbs-Merrill, $3]. It is a fine account of the development of legal institutions and ideas, and of how the complex fabric of the law has been woven from customs, taboos, religion, philosophy, and historic and economic events.

Another good outline of knowledge is Architects of Ideas, by Ernest R. Trattner [Carrick & Evans, $3.75]. Mr. Trattner outlines the great theories—the solar system, fire, heat, light, disease, etc., and traces the story of the men who produced them.

TRAINING MIND AND BODY, GOAL OF THE CITADEL

School Is in Greatest Era Under Summerall.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—If every boy had a chance at such training in mind and body as is offered at The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina, America's future would be safe in all ways.

This is the conclusion of this writer after three days' study of this institution, one of the oldest colleges of its kind in the country, now entering its greatest era under the leadership of Gen. Charles P. Summerall.

Gen. Summerall is the possessor of a brilliant record, both as a leader of fighting men and as a peace time administrator. His command of the famous First division during the world war won him numerous medals for valor. He was almost the last of American corps commanders in France to remain in active service. He retired in 1930 after serving four years as chief of staf, the highest post in the active service of the army.

Good Citizenship Stressed.

Military training is only one feature of life in this college. It produces a citizen who is capable of becoming a good soldier when the need for such service arises. This is important, as the history of this country has shown, but what is more important is the physical and mental discipline enforced in everyday life, the unfoldment of wide horizons of true pleasure and achievement against a core of religious security.

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth," is the line engraved over the entrance to the new chapel, the spiritual center of cadet life, where the gray coated, straight, firm young figures converge a thousand strong for daily morning prayer and Sunday service under various preachers. Often some of the cadets go there to meditate alone in the dim light that is strained through thirteenth century blue and glass of other colors surrounding figures symbolic of the great traditions of mankind, and of their institution.

Rigorous Life Prescribed.

Life is Spartan at The Citadel, and little room is left for what is called self-expression in the educational field. Courses are prescribed, and every hour of the day is accounted for. There is no chance for dissipation. There is every chance for a well rounded development of personality in the form of extracurricular activities and recreation, in writing, speaking, leadership of all kinds.

The restraint and discipline comes in personal habits, care of the body and clothing, regularity of hours, credits in required subjects. In other words a core of sound learning is required, and high standards of personal behavior. There would be no growth of atheism or communism possible here, and no such freedom of self as that expressed recently in the black shirted organization of high school youth in Oklahoma City.

Out of this school since its organization as a state arsenal guard in 1842 have come leaders in war and peace, and its product is such today that all its graduates are in demand. They have had four years of intensive training in how to relate culture to life.

Corps Doubled Since 1933.

The cadet corps has doubled since 1933, with 1,068 now on the roll, more than half from outside the state. The national character of the place is shown by the display of flags from thirty-four states and two foreign countries along the chapel walls. The state and federal government contribute about 50 per cent of the cost of educating each boy.

The expenses to the cadet are not heavy, about $550 a year, and the college is a perfect democracy in so far as cadet life is concerned. Each boy wears the same kind of clothes, except those who have risen by their own efforts to the insignia of officers. They live in the same kind of rooms, which they have to take care of themselves under daily inspection. The son of a millionaire and the son of a janitor may share the same room and the same kind of ambitions.

The new Citadel is imposing in its location and structure. It occupies a 200 acre tract along the Ashley river on the edge of town, the barracks and class room buildings set around a 10 acre parade ground, facing the beautiful new chapel. The buildings are uniform in shape and size, stone colored, and of modernized Spanish-Moorish architecture.

Open on Wide Courts.

Inside the sally port, or entrance, where every first year man is required to salute the emblem of the college, the buildings open to wide courts, where the infantry and artillery companies are formed for inspection and for march formation. The quarters open on inner balconies which run around the court.

A colored flag is displayed at various hours of the day showing what kind of clothing is required for each period. The cadet officer walks into each room during inspection hour and notes down in a book any irregularities. The cadet stands at attention while his room and clothing are being looked over. The shoes must be in a certain order, the clean shirts piled according to color, all bags and suit cases open, every article in its place. Otherwise there is a demerit mark.

The whole life of the cadet is taken into consideration in marking him for promotion—his bearing and appearance, his manners, his work in drill, as well as his rank in studies.

Discipline Like West Point.

The discipline is modeled on West Point. There are no cuts from classes or chapel unless for sickness. In that event there is a well equipped hospital ward or room waiting.

The college is now in a period of great building activity. During the last three years $1,200,000 has been spent in new buildings. With the new barracks that will soon be ready for use, the college can increase its enrollment to at least 1,400, the number that the chapel seats. There will be seats and tables for 500 in the cheerful new library.

By 1939 there will be a new armory, costing $640,000, with a floor capable of holding 8,000, galleries for 3,000, shooting ranges, demonstration rooms, offices for the military staf, and the center of that feature of the training. A third story is being added to the engineering hall, with a new hydraulic laboratory. The mess hall is being enlarged and a row of new quarters for the faculty will be built along the river side of the campus.

Summerall Stands Like Rock.

Gen. Summerall, who is a graduate of West Point, where life, he says, "is as hard as nails," has blended into his leadership here his wide knowledge of the world and of men, an understanding heart, the army way of getting things done despite all hardships, deep patriotism, and religion. His aim is not militarism but a thorough preparation for life and citizenship, which includes the soldier qualities. He is kind but firm. When a boy has been dismissed after the second offense of drinking at a football game nothing will move the general to revoke the dismissal. He stands like a rock against the appeals of friends and politicians.

"My duty," he says, "is to The Citadel." And duty is to him as strong a word as it was to Gen. Robert E. Lee, who after the surrender to Grant became a college president in Virginia.

Gives Education Ideas.

Gen. Summerall has firm ideas about education. It should be for all, completely democratic. He opposes with feeling the theory that the college is for the few, the select, the most gifted. In his opinion it is the C men, those who are of passing grade only in their studies, that more often develop other qualities of personality and leadership that make them the stable citizens that this country needs.

"A sound preparation in mathematics is one of our fundamentals," he says. "This is essential to mental strength. And no man is educated unless he knows something of the elements and forces that are taught in physics and chemistry. The atoms and molecules behave the same here as they do in California or Harvard.

"In the languages we teach French, Spanish, and German and make a specialty of our own language. Nothing is spoken in the class room except the language taught. They must learn to speak and understand as well as read. For our own language we have a voice recording machine for each cadet. They find out how they talk and then correct their weaknesses.

Recreational Phase Included.

"We teach business and engineering, preparing for post graduate courses. In seeking to translate factual knowledge into culture, we have organized many recreational clubs and activities. The problem is to teach the students to think for themselves. There are nine departments engaged in this. It is hard work to get a C mark, but many outstanding leaders are developed here.

"We say that you can get a better education here than anywhere else, and at the same time one that fits a man to serve his country, the highest duty of a citizen. He can command a company or a battalion. The military code of honor and ethics is thrown in. The result has been that we have not been able to fill all the applications from employers.

"A peculiarity of this institution is its religious tradition. More than half of the cadets go every Sunday evening to Bible class under Charleston pastors. They continue through three years and get a certificate. There is no proselyting here. We try to have each cadet keep his own faith and develop it. In our Sunday morning pageants we have pastors from all the churches in rotation, including rabbis and priests. Catholic mass, Jewish and other services are held besides the regular chapel services.

Seek Phi Beta Kappa Chapter.

"We have dancing and hops so that social manners will be developed. In football we teach the boys to last through a game. There are science clubs, political forums, music and literary societies, and all forms of wholesome recreation. An effort is now being made to form a Phi Beta Kappa chapter, for many of our faculty members are outstanding in their field. Their faculty bulletin contributions show a wide research and scholarship.

"There is academic freedom here but nothing is taught as truth that is not in accord with the accepted wisdom of mankind through the ages.

"The Citadel is interwoven with the history of this state and section. Emphasis is placed upon preparation for useful, constructive citizenship, on the training of men who by learning to obey learn better to lead others. We are giving college courses that we endeavor to put above the usual standard. It is not just another college. It is extraordinary in its inception, in its faculty, in its surroundings, in its history, in its graduates.

Code Expresses School Ideals.

"The basic work is two years of college English, one year of college history, one year each of college physics and chemistry, one year of college mathematics and one year of modern language. All must take the full course in military science."

The ideals of The Citadel as expressed in a code earnestly commended by Gen. Summerall include the following:

"To revere God, love my country and be loyal to The Citadel.

"To be truthful, honest and sincere in every act and purpose and to know that honorable failure is better than success by unfairness and cheating.

"To perform every duty with fidelity and conscientiousness and to make duty my watchword.

"To refrain from intoxicants, narcotics, licentiousness, profanity, vulgarity, disorder, and anything that might subject me to reproach or censure within or without the college.

"To cultivate dignity, poise, affability and a quiet and firm demeanor.

"To improve my mind by reading and participation in intellectual and cultural activities.

"To keep my body healthy and strong by physical exercises and participation in manly sports.

"To be generous and helpful to others and to endeavor to restrain them from wrong doing.

"To face difficulties with courage and fortitude and not to complain or be discouraged.

COURTNEY'S AXMEN SMASH 2 SYNDICATE HANDBOOKS IN RAIDS

Four handbooks, two of them said to belong to the Johnson-Skidmore syndicate, fell under the state's attorney's ax squad raids yesterday. Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan said that the syndicate books were especially singled out to halt rumors that the campaign against gambling had halted.

"There has been some talk about slacking up," he said. "This will show we are not."

It was reported that the syndicate had opened the two places as a test. One was "The Horseshoe" at 4721 North Kedzie avenue, where 300 persons were gathered. The other was at 6241 Cottage Grove avenue. The other two books raided were at 777 Van Buren street and 1115 Wilson avenue. Yesterday's activities of the ax squads brought the total books raided since the campaign began to 680.

DIETARY INFORMATION GLEANED FROM A FAMILY ENCYCLOPEDIA, PUBLISHED IN 1831: Beets are fine for cattle, but apt to produce flatulence and disorder of the stomach in man. . . . Nuts, freely used, produce thirst, nausea, pain in the stomach, and headache. . . . Too much fruit causes cholera. . . .

"The alimentary properties of apples are not great, but when fully ripe they are not unwholesome. . . . Sweet and palatable apples are least fit to be eaten in a raw state. . . . Apples ought not to be eaten raw, but either roasted, stewed, or boiled.

"It is very rare to find tea perfectly pure. The Chinese are always mixing herbs with it to increase the quantity. . . . Any injurious effects of tea are due to the hot water, not the tea." . . .

Lemonade corrects "the putrid tendency of animal food in the summer, but if too freely taken has a tendency to produce stone, gravel, and gout."

Sugar is refined by boiling it in limewater "mixed with a certain portion of bullock's blood."

Prunes, which are dried "plumbs," are "of grateful taste." . . . Large plums are "more dangerous" than small ones. . . . "When on the eve of decay, pears are "especially obnoxious and likely to produce cholera."

I think the cruel author of this more than 100 year old book must have aimed to take the pleasure out of eating. . . . He probably frightened many of his readers completely out of their gustatory fun.

Teen Age Child Likes New Idea for Yule Trees

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Just about everything's highly styled these days—not only clothes, but the common every day, utilitarian things of life. The result has been much beauty where before there was only mediocrity, or even sordidness. In a way it is a realization of the dream of William Morris of pre-Raphaelite days.

Today I want, in my humble way, to style Christmas trees for you. I mean, the trimming of them.

Yesterday we high styled the traditional tree, the tree that is trimmed with everything under the sun in the way of ornaments and decorations, old and new, things beautiful and also quaintly ugly.

Today we'll go in for color schemes in trees. This will appeal only, I'm quite sure, when your children are in high school and begin to have a flair for the snappy or swanky.

So, why not let them trim a tree all in white and silver and red? Even the light bulbs can be made to match. Or gold can be substituted for the silver and white. Or they can evolve their own color scheme.

For the baby's first tree I am unequivocally in favor of a table tree, or at least a small tree, done all in silver and white. This makes a beautiful tree, with a star for a top ornament, or anything else very special that you can pick up. Of course, if your baby is only a few months old this Christmas, the tree won't register—so don't feel "flat" when you hold him up before it [as I did], and he doesn't respond. In that case you might carry this silver tree over into his second Christmas.

The tree itself has always been, to us, as important as the decorations. If you're persistent enough in shopping, even if your budget is limited, you can find a symmetrical tree with full branches and a good top. There is one evergreen that keeps its needles longer than any other and I'm going to try to find out its name from a nurseryman this year.

The next practical consideration is supporting your tree. Before the time comes to set it up, provide a standard that does the work. Either make one of wood with a base and side supports, or buy one. There are good ones at small cost, nowadays, that can be kept from year to year.

Another thing that used to bother us was hiding the stand in an attractive way. We tried different things each year. Then, one season we were decorating the house with branches cut from an extra tree when we hit upon the scheme of laying small branches of evergreen around the bottom of the tree. Your market man usually has a poor tree which you can cut up and use in this fashion.

Architects Put Gayety in High at Movie Ball

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

SIX years ago the architects of Chicago gave a Latin Quarter ball that set a record for gayety that has not been equaled, nor even approached, until last night, when the same group gave another ball. This time they chose a more varied background, sets from fourteen major movies. That last night's ball was as gay, as full of atmosphere and hilarity as that other one, is an achievement of which the hosts may well be proud.

It was a wonderful party, one that will be remembered just as long as the Latin Quarter one was, and that is saying something. People have talked for six years of that marvelous success. Last night's party may be remembered even longer, for with the variety of subjects that the architects had as material it isn't surprising that they "went to town" in even a bigger way than they did before.

◆

The primary object of the ball was to raise money for the architects' traveling scholarships and to establish an atelier for architectural draftsmen in Chicago. But the secondary one [and the main one, if you ask me!] was to give every one of the 3,000 persons who attended a time such as he or she will not forget for a long time. "No civilized man ever regrets a pleasure, no uncivilized man knows what a pleasure is," said or wrote Oscar Wilde once upon a time, and Nathaniel Owings chose that quotation as one to print in big letters upon a screen in the set of "Dramatic School." It might well be the motif of the ball.

◆

From the moment one entered the Fountain room of the Drake hotel, where a model, dressed in nothing more concealing than a hairnet, held the place of honor in the center of the fountain, until he finished visiting the sets, he was "Having Wonderful Time."

That wasn't one of the movies portrayed, but it was all of them. The movies were:

"Suez," where all the gambling games were.

"Artists and Models Abroad," where there was a constant parade of lovely ladies, dressed and undressed, and where the evening shows were held.

"The Great Waltz," where old-fashioned corsets covered the lights and hoop-skirted ladies swished to Viennese waltzes.

"Jesse James," where a bar was the piece de resistance—there was a bar of sorts on every set, though.

◆

"Union Pacific," which was a replica of George M. Pullman's private car and which was occupied by an organist, two maidenish looking ladies, and a monk with long white hair and long white beard at the moment I walked through.

"Dawn Patrol," which was a dimly lighted estaminet.

"The Sisters," which was a subdued sort of café, the sort of place where one goes when one doesn't want to be seen.

"Zaza," where wicked looking ladies flirted and coquetted to their hearts' content.

And "If I Were King," which was the most surrealistic of the lot.

◆

But to pause for a moment at the fountain and its Venus; but not quite as long as the unbelieving gentleman who left the ring of admiring spectators and stepped into the water for a closer view.

Earlier in the evening the Venus was attired in six inches of black felt and a rhinestone butterfly. The black felt masked her eyes. The butterfly didn't.

She posed atop a box in the middle of the fish pond in the upper lobby. A spotlight revealed her charms, but only in full to those who had the price of admission. The others, who came to watch and paused to gape, stood in the main lobby, on a lower level. Between them and the red-headed Venus was a waist high screen.

The architects had announced that they were going to do the sets as they thought they should be done rather than as Hollywood had done them. They did. And the results showed that Chicago's architects are surrealists, all of them. Their sets were so imaginative, so far removed from the natural sort of backgrounds and sets to which movie fans are accustomed that we doubt if Czar Hays of the movies would approve of them. In fact, we are sure he wouldn't. But the 3,000 at the ball did, and that was what mattered.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey wore a gown that represented the invitations sent out by the architects. It was a chartreuse satin trimmed in gold and black, and on a back panel were painted all the illustrations used on the invitations and the programs, harlequins, clowns, and all sorts of odd figures. They typified the carnival atmosphere of the whole party. For that was what it was, a good old-fashioned carnival, even a country fair, with side shows and all the other features that make country folk look forward all year to "the fair."

Mrs. Dewey Jr. wore an original model sent from Hollywood for the "Artists and Models" set. It was a Balinese costume of white satin and her headdress was a Medusalike affair of lacquered white crepe. Mrs. Francis Stanton was Catherine the Great in a black velvet, long-trained gown studded with rhinestones. Mrs. Clifford Rodman was stunning in a short spangled skirt with a bodice of sequins and a huge black Merry Widow hat. Choosing a costume for the ball was merely a question of deciding what was the most becoming, for every period practically was represented in the sets.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Follansbee were among the first to arrive. They were costumed as a country girl and boy. Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair came with the Ambrose Cramers and her costume was one of the most original at the ball. She was dressed as one of the forest creatures from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Mrs. Adlai Stevenson was charming in an ostrich feather hat and hooped skirt to fit in with the "Great Waltz." Mr. Stevenson was attractive in side burns and confided to a few intimates and the gate man, of course, that he belonged "In Old Vienna" whether or not the Architects had provided that set.

◆

Mrs. Howard Linn, as a belle of Emperor Franz Joseph's ball, wore a short, close fitting black velvet jacket collared in sable, with a full skirt of gray, black, and white. Her high coiffed curls were ornamented with a black velvet "doodad."

Miss Harriet McLaughlin was stunning in poppy red velvet hoop skirts and three giant poppies tucked in her chignon. Arthur Meeker Jr. limited his disguise to grease paint. As a matter of fact, most of the men added only grease paint, false eyebrows, and mustaches and sideburns, and diplomatic decorations to their formal evening clothes to turn them into movie stars.

◆

Alfred Shaw was François Villon in his "If I Were King" set and his wife, formerly Rue Winterbotham, was a perfect Zaza. Mme. Suzanne Noble was another Zaza and Mrs. Philip Maher was Zaza in Claudette Colbert's costume.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler was Mrs. Harpo Marx in sequins to the knees and below were ostrich feathers. Mrs. Montgomery Orr was charming in a green off-the-shoulder gown trimmed in mink and pearls. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, lovely in pink tulle, bouffant and voluminous, was one of the belles of the ball. Mrs. Curtis Munson was a maharajah.

◆

Mrs. Scott Linn was a gay Merry Widow in black with white feathers. Mrs. J. Andrews King wore a large straw bonnet and a gold net gown, flounced. Mrs. O. E. Van Alyea wore her own ivory satin wedding gown, which was of an earlier vintage than one might suppose, for it also had been the wedding gown of her aunt, Mrs. Charles G. Bill of Hartford, Conn. Mrs. Arthur G. Cable wore a picture hat of black velvet trimmed with ostrich feathers and a tight fitting black velvet gown. Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II. was beautiful in baby blue taffeta and a tremendous tricorne hat of pink and blue ostrich feathers. Her husband was a sultan.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the note book:

If you're one who has trouble "doing" the hair on the back of your head look into the matter of the new mirror that can be hung around the neck, leaving both hands free. Does it sound like a pretty unwieldy contraption? It isn't at all. It's the size of a good hand mirror and is on a light weight frame that fits snugly around the neck; when not in use it folds in compact form.

◆

This has three adjustments so you can get a full reflection of the back of your head from any angle. With both hands free it's much easier to curl the back hair. It's even a bit more convenient sometimes to work on your face—plucking eyebrows, for instance. While you pluck with one hand you can hold the flesh steady with the other. It doesn't give such a bad twinge that way. And lots of women find they do a better job using two hands when they apply mascara. They can hold the upper lid steady.

We're told men like this mirror for shaving. It's not expensive and it comes in three finishes. If you like to know the worst get a double one—one side magnifying.

And, to save your dark clothes and help you keep that well brushed look, do see the brand new makeup cape to slip over your shoulders when you powder your nose or comb your hair. They're slick. Not bulky because of some smart designing and the new fabric of which they're made.

They're in lovely colors, each one has a little pocket and they slip over the shoulders in about one second flat. The woman who owns one will use it. And they have possibilities as gifts!

A Great Movie Makes a Quiet Debut in Town

"A MAN TO REMEMBER."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"A Man to Remember" is a picture to remember.

This photoplay boasts no big names. It was heralded by no publicity fanfare. It just eased quietly into town with a cast of sterling players, and will greatly impress the selective few, even though it may not enthuse the many.

The main rôle — that of a small town doctor — is played by Edward Ellis, who is one of the screen's ablest supporting players. In this particular characterization he is especially fine, always himself, but reminding you forcibly, at times, of the late Will Rogers.

◆

The picture, starting with a funeral procession—as did "The Life of Virgie Winters" — recollect? — flashes back over the life of the simple man so sincerely mourned. . . . It picks him up as the widowed doctor enters the town, accompanied by his small son, and details the career of the old fashioned but capable country physician whose personal ambitions are all laid on the altar of service to the needy.

The first part of the film drags some and is a little soppy in spots. But it becomes increasingly absorbing, because of the honesty of portrayal, the spontaneity and sincerity of the dialog delivery—in the main—and the credible coloring of backgrounds and characterizations.

◆

The doctor's shrewd understanding of his fellow men, his dry though kindly ability to put them in their places, and a David Harum-esque faculty for getting what he wants for the community, will tickle you.

His death has no sting for the observer, and the story ends on a smile.

I thoroughly enjoyed "A Man to Remember" and something tells me that so will most of you.

Rudy Vallee Explains His Swing at Heckler at Night Club Show

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Rudy Vallee said today that the reason he "shoved" a heckler last night in a hotel night club was because "the annoyance affected others" and because "he swung first."

A large group of notables, including Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman of New York and many film figures, heard the heckling during the Vallee show and saw Vallee push the guest off his chair. The heckler then left the room.

"I would have taken the matter more calmly," Vallee said, "if it hadn't been that I had many people of artistic temperament in my show, including a young lady. The unpleasant remarks which we all kept hearing reached a climax in my last number, 'Where To.' I preferred to finish the show before asking the guest to leave. I went over to ask him to do so, but before I could do so he made a wild swing and I simply pushed him."

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Censorship.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 2.—Charlie Chaplin, who was going to employ his next picture to kid Hitler, won't. . . . Instead the dictator that Chaplin will bring to the screen will be from a fictitious kingdom. . . . Why the about-face in Chaplin's plans? Censorship! . . . They don't call it censorship out here. They phrase it more delicately as "a suggestion." . . . But it works.

"Idiot's Delight," with Gable and Shearer, will come to the screen laid in a mythical kingdom and reference to munitions and war will be played down to the vanishing point. . . . Warner's sent "Devil's Island" back for retakes as a result of a "suggestion" from the French government.

In this highly surcharged political atmosphere the movie makers must avoid all dialog that is even faintly insulting to nationals of other countries. . . . In "Four Men and a Prayer" they delated all references to "English dogs." . . . "Rosalie" was trimmed for foreign release because it showed revolutionary scenes.

"The Great Waltz" will have all revolutionary scenes clipped out. . . . In "Red Barry" the censors yanked the scene where a Russian walloped a Chinaman on the head. . . . All street rioting scenes were cut out of "Filming the Big Thrills."

◆

In "Wells Fargo" Chinese servants, without pigtails, were shown working shoulder to shoulder with white employés. . . . The pigtail, in China, is a reminder of coolie slavery, and if Paramount had shown them with pigtails it would have resulted in a year's ban on that company's flickers. . . . You will never see a Chinese servant, unless he is pictured working with a white, for the same reason.

In "Rasputin and the Empress" England eliminated all the garden scenes and dialog between the czar and czarina. . . . "The dialog is of everyday things," ruled the censor. "Royalty never talks about everyday things."

As a result, all studios have men who do nothing but check scripts and daily "rushes" in Hollywood to forestall diplomatic repercussions. . . . Their word is final, too, and the biggest directors in the business can rage and rant without changing the foreign expert's decision.

This took definite form after M.-G.-M. lost a costly libel award to Prince and Princess Youssoupov as a result of "Rasputin and the Empress." . . . The picture suggested that Youssoupov had killed Rasputin because his wife had been seduced or raped, and too late came the realization that the Youssoupovs were alive and very indignant. . . . Fanny Holtzmann, woman barrister [she originally came from Brooklyn], took the case and had it tried in England, knowing that country's rigid defense of a person's character. . . . The Youssoupovs won easily.

◆

Just recently the release of "Suez" stirred up some protests from the descendants of De Lesseps. . . . On the screen De Lesseps was portrayed by Tyrone Power. . . . In real life De Lesseps was about 64 years old when the canal was completed. . . . Instead of remaining single, as Power was portrayed, De Lesseps had been twice married and had twelve children. . . . Zanuck eliminated the children and the marriages because it would be difficult to glamorize a hero with a brood of twelve.

Paul Muni, I think, does a far better job of presenting a believable historic portrait. . . . Muni, being older than Tyrone, is able to show them at any age. . . . He would have been believable, for instance, as a 64 year old builder of the Suez canal. . . . Power, of course, is much too youthful to project older men.

◆

Gun play and gangster films are sliced to pieces both in America and abroad. . . . "Broadway Musketeers," "Saint in New York," "Time Out for Murder," "Reformatory," "The Last Gangster," "Girls on Probation," "King of Alcatraz" were barred in their entirety from many foreign markets and blue penciled liberally in America. . . . Rumania, because it considered the picture immoral and destructive to youth's ideals, refused to release "Dead End."

◆

All foreign countries refuse to permit one of their nationals to be pictured as a villain in an American picture. . . . As a result, throughout the world it is commonly believed that all villains are Americans.

In "Think It Over" most states deleted scenes showing an incendiarist burning a building for insurance. . . . In "They're Always Caught" most state censor boards nixed the shot where a hoodlum is shown attaching a bomb to the city official's auto.

Foreign censors are so convinced that Hollywood is ever trying to "put one over" on them that typical American slang phrases are invariably deleted. . . . Phrases like "What the devil?" "What in blazes," "What the Sam Hill," and the like are scissored immediately, for fear that they pack a meaning that does not appear on the surface. . . . Despite the assurances of United States film makers that these are only colloquialisms, the foreign censors continue to see red whenever they appear on the sound tracks.

Week-End Will Be a Gay One for Debutantes

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS week-end will be a gay one for the debutantes as there are many parties scheduled for them. One of the gayest will be a dinner-dance Mrs. Robert C. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, and Mrs. Orr Perkins are giving tonight at the Germania club for their daughters, the Misses Nancy Eddy Orr, Alice Wyeth, and Nora Perkins. It is to be a Mexican party, and the dance floor at the club has been decorated to look like a Mexican village square. There will be Mexican music for dinner and a swing band will play for dancing afterward.

The hosts have asked every one to come in costume, and in order to make dressing easy for their guests, Mexican sombreros were ordered from Mexico City and arrived in Chicago yesterday, to be distributed at the club tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Karcher are giving a birthday party for their debutante daughter, Miss Barbara Willson, this evening in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel. Miss Willson will be eighteen tomorrow.

Another eighteenth birthday that will be celebrated this week-end is that of Miss Marie Blanche de Brotonne McCormick. Miss McCormick's birthday is next Thursday but she is giving a small cocktail party in her parents' [the Leander McCormicks'] apartment at the Ambassador hotel tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard to Give Party Tomorrow.

Mrs. William Gold Hibbard is giving a small tea at her Winnetka home tomorrow for her debutante niece, Miss Mary Hale. Miss Hale is the elder daughter of the William B. Hales.

The post-debutante and young married group, often neglected at this time of the year in favor of debutante and subdebutante festivities, will make merry at a cocktail dance at the Racquet club from 4 until 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The hosts are three popular young bachelors, Daniel Lawlor, Ralph Swanson, and Brayton Slade. They are entertaining for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Guenzel [Elizabeth Chittenden Skinner of Minneapolis], who were married last September in Fish Creek, Wis., and who now are at home on Chicago's north side.

George Everitt Jr. is entertaining at cocktails at home in Winnetka tomorrow afternoon for Miss Jean McIntosh and William Heyn, who are to be married on Dec. 17. Mr. Heyn and

Nut Colorings Among Best of Gift Kerchiefs

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Heed this warning: Buy your gift handkerchiefs immediately. The newest ideas are going fast before the rush of shoppers. Because of the buying rush there isn't much hope for the laggards.

If you spend your money for color, see the "nut" handkerchiefs, walnuts, acorns, and pine cones, with good dark green foliage, printed on sheer linen. These are especially good for those who wear tweeds or wool suits and coats.

The big dither is over the return of exquisitely fine white handkerchiefs . . . those vaporous beauties are as thin as a film. Decorated with fragilly feminine embroidery, they are the essence of ladylike kerchiefs. Fine lace edging, delicately fine appliqued designs in fanciful outlines, and flawless hand work mark these as especially beautiful finds for the Christmas lists.

Evening kerchiefs are still huge and made of chiffon. Some new arrivals have colored sequin accents in bow knots, double circles and the like. Black, high colors, pastels, and white are the colors. Initialed handkerchiefs have letters that can be seen across the room. Some have the flowing script initials in contrast color, others with the letters in a shade much darker than the linen square. Among these, the pale yellow, the bonbon pinks, greens, and blues are outstanding. Script initials further accented with exceptionally decorative scroll-like embroidery are exquisite. The hems are a mere line [they're so fine] and the embroidery looks like frost.

Color seems rather on the wane although you'll find lots of such showings. The all whites are stressed to go with all the more feminine clothes. Daintily embroidered white squares in colors feature English garden scenes. Some new white affairs are printed with most realistic roses. Supplies, no matter how plentiful, vanish daily. If you want the new items, you'll have to shop with speed.

Her Second Choice

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright, 1938. By Elizabeth York Miller.]

SYNOPSIS.

Nora Stacy plans to sail for Calcutta to marry her fiancé, irresponsible Jim Murdock. Jim's family live next door to the modest English country home where Nora lives with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Callender. Her aunt is opposed to the marriage and would like Nora to encourage Bob Matherson, a rich young bachelor and the new owner of Fairways, a nearby estate, who seems to have fallen in love with Nora. Then Nora receives a terse letter from Jim, breaking the engagement. In her heartbroken grief Nora writes Jim that she'll marry the first man who asks her. She hears Jim is returning home for Christmas with a wife. Nora and her aunt are invited to a dinner party at Fairways. Mrs. Callender notes one of the women guests, Mrs. Pearl Almy, is greatly upset when Bob and Nora disappear from the house. Bob takes Nora up to his tower room and proposes. Nora accepts and agrees to marry him before Christmas. Mrs. Callender learns that Pearl Almy had expected to marry Bob when her divorce went through.

INSTALMENT VI.

AN UNTIMELY RETURN.

Although from Mrs. Callender's point of view, things were going along nicely and at such a swift pace, she had her little private worries. One of them was Mrs. Almy.

It was incredible that the woman had settled into that cottage, no more than a couple of hundred yards from Fairways, and was still apparently on the best of terms with her rich young landlord. One was always running into her in the village or meeting her racing her bull terrier over the common, and she had got her face back into its proper position after that slipping it had suffered the night Bob announced the engagement. And naturally Mrs. Almy had been invited to the wedding, since practically everybody in Green Mallows was invited. There had been no question of leaving her out.

Whenever Mrs. Callender ran into her or even heard her mentioned, she experienced a sinking feeling, and she devoutly hoped her psychic sense wasn't working properly, for over and over again her bones told her that this wedding, into which she had put so much effort and over which she had pretty well beggared herself, would never come off.

But even Aunt Dorothy had not remotely dreamed of the worst that could happen.

They had now only three days to go, and it was the fifth of December.

Nora had gone over to Fairways to see Bob about something in connection with the catering arrangements, since Aunt Dorothy had a twinge of rheumatism and was advised to take to her bed lest it develop to a point where she might find herself a cripple on the great day.

That afternoon, the first time almost, since she had promised to marry Bob Matherson, Nora felt completely sane and almost happy. They had had tea, just the two of them, in the big hall by a roaring log fire, and discussed their honeymoon plans, after the catering question was settled. They were going to Sicily for a month, and then perhaps to Egypt, if Bob could manage to be away so long.

And then, just as Nora was about to leave, saying that she really must get back to look after Aunt Dorothy, Bob was called to the telephone by some one from his office, and it appeared he would be held up for some time.

So as she did not want to wait, Nora started off across the common alone.

She was almost home when she saw a tall, familiar figure swinging along in her direction, and her heart seemed to jump into her throat.

Yes, there was no mistaking that figure, and no possible way of avoiding an encounter, for already he had seen her.

It was Jim Murdock of all people, and Nora had been told that he would not be returning until the Tuesday before Christmas.

In a fraction of a moment they had brought up face to face, and for a wonder Jim's was not wearing a smile.

He took Nora by the arms with so harsh a grip that she almost cried out.

"I have been looking for you," he said, harshly, and without preamble "What does this mean, that you are going to be married?"

Nora set her teeth and turned her face from him.

"Why should it matter to you?"

"Because it does matter—and you are not going to marry anybody but me. Understand that, if you please."

She wrenched herself free and took a step backwards, staring at him with an expression of horrified bewilderment.

"But your mother said . . ."

And then Jim Murdock did laugh, but there was an edge on it.

"I know, she probably told you I was going to be married. But I got out of it. I can get out of anything I don't want to do—and so can you."

Only three days before her wedding, but she could get out of it if it was something she didn't want to do.

Here was the answer to the passionate hope in her heart when she dashed off that letter to Jim, an ironical answer to prayer, if you like.

It had brought him back to her and he was free to marry her. He said he had "got out of it." Nora knew she ought to despise him for his double dealing both with her and the other girl. She knew by now that Jim had proved himself to be all that Aunt Dorothy's psychic sense had predicted for him, a man whose lack of stability would always show him up in a crisis.

What he had done to her once, he would do again if occasion arose. And yet, the very sight of his mocking eyes and raffish smile, stirred to life the flame she had tried so hard to smother.

"Perhaps you don't want to get out of it," he said. "Who could blame you? The man stinks of money—simply rolling in it—and I haven't even got a job, now. I chucked it on your account, I'd like you to know, because I heard you were throwing yourself away on this rich bounder. In a fit of temper, of course! Just because you wanted to get even with me, when as it happened I was in the worst hole I have ever been in in my life. There's a woman for you!"

If Nora had possessed any common sense at that moment, she would have known that whatever the reason was, Jim Murdock had not chucked his job on her account.

Every word was a stab, and how wickedly he had distorted the truth. She was not marrying Bob Matherson because he was "rolling in it." She had accepted him because in a grim, fatalistic sort of way, she felt morally obliged to. Hadn't she sworn she would take the first man who proposed to her? But she could not argue with Jim about that. She could not even reproach him as he deserved. He was making her feel that she, not he, was the traitor. It had always been like that, for no living soul could prove to Jim Murdock that he was to blame for anything.

If only she could get away from him and reach the shelter of home where she might be able to collect her wits and decide what in all honesty she ought to do.

She had a flash-back view of herself only half an hour ago, sitting by the great fireplace at Fairways, cosily chatting with Bob, almost happy that she was going to be safely his wife. It was about the first time she had had a close view of Bob in such intimate circumstances.

And now the picture of a peaceful, and perhaps contented future was destroyed. Everything had gone with the wind, in the face of Jim Murdock's untimely return.

"Nora, I'll swear you still love me!"

He had her in his arms then, before she knew what was happening. It was of little use to struggle, for he was stronger than she was, but as he pressed his lips to hers she smelled alcohol on his breath and was repelled.

"Let me go—please let me go," she pleaded in a shaken whisper.

"Will you come away with me? I'll let you go, if you'll promise . . . Darling Nora—please!"

He was going to coax and plead and make love to her now. She knew his moods; they could change in a flash and this was the one she had been dreading, for it would be almost impossible for her to resist him.

"I can't promise anything," she cried. "I'm too confused even to think . . . O, please give me time to think———"

Again she tried to break free, and suddenly there was the excited yapping of a dog beside them, and a woman's voice called out sharply: "Come here, Bonzo!"

Jim released Nora like a shot and when the owner of the dog had reached them, they were standing well apart. For all of that, she might have seen them together.

It was Pearl Almy.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Ezio Pinza returned to the stage of the Civic Opera house last night to practice his old specialty—the enactment of the part of the devil. The powerful Italian basso devoted himself not to the heaven defying devil of Boito's "Mefistofele," but to the comparatively mild, almost good natured devil of Gounod's "Faust." Here is a demon who sings nice, simple tunes—albeit in minor mode—and who is not too proud to do a little clowning when an opportunity for comedy comes along.

Mr. Pinza's majestic person and cavernous voice—to say nothing of the weird lighting effects which the technical director gave him—rendered his more sinister sequences as terrifying as Gounod's melodious score permits. His comedy was deft and effective.

Joseph Bentonelli made a handsome Faust—a Faust whose first greeting to Marguerite was tenderly and beautifully sung. Again and again throughout the evening Mr. Bentonelli used tone colorings of a really fetching loveliness and phrasings that became genuinely eloquent. He still has trouble preserving the smooth texture of his voice in exceptionally difficult passages. Also there is a tendency to become somewhat mechanical when he allows dead tradition rather than living emotion to dictate his vocal or histrionic behavior. An example of this sort of thing came toward the end of the "Salut Demeure."

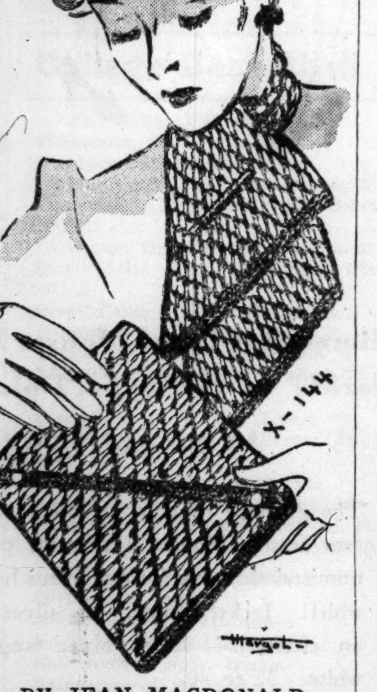
Carlo Morelli was roundly applauded for his sturdy performance of Valentine's second scene air. So was Helen Jepson for her exhilarating "Jewel Song" one act later. Elizabeth Brown's enactment of Siebel was characterized by considerable animation.

The opera company inclosed in the program books a brown piece of paper whose dour color fitted perfectly the gloomy news which it carried.

Attendance is running below last year, the deficit is piling up—all this in spite of the fact that the company has been supplying high grade performances at less than the New York or San Francisco cost.

The opera company requests interested persons to become backers of the project, even though the contributions may be as little as $1.

Purse and Scarf Set Is Perfect as Knitted Gift



BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Knitting needles still are flying and dozens of small items are turned out to take care of the holiday exchange of gifts. The purse and scarf knitted in two colors are an ideal gift for this time of the year, and young and old are grateful recipients of this set. It is not a difficult knitting job and will take little time to complete.

For instructions for knitting the purse and scarf set, No. X-144, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Front Views and Profiles

New Version.

A doctor in Arkansas received a call to come to a mountain cabin. He found a boy badly shot up.

"Who is he?" he asked the cabin owner as he began to take out buckshot.

"My son-in-law," replied the mountaineer.

"Who shot him?" inquired the doctor.

"I did," was the answer.

"What did you want to go shooting your son-in-law for?" persisted the doctor.

"He wasn't my son-in-law this morning," retorted the hillbilly.

Big Blow.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, supping after her Whiteoaks performance, told about her experiences in the recent hurricane in New England and the loss of fine trees on her Long Island place. She was playing in Boston at the time. The wind was terrific, she said.

Roles.

Drama critics and theater goers sometimes have said that Miss Barrymore always is Miss Barrymore, whatever her rôle. It has been suggested that this criticism has had something to do with her selection of such rôles as her present one of a 101 year old woman, of that of a nun [Kingdom of God], and of that of a Negress [Scarlet Sister Mary].

"Why don't you play the kind of part your fans want, that of a queenly woman?" suggested her host and old friend, Ernest Byfield. "Get a good historical play. Be a queen. Or play Dolly Madison. Even if you turn Dolly Madison into Ethel Barrymore instead of Ethel Barrymore into Dolly Madison," he added.

Miss Barrymore smiled and told a story. When she was in her twenties she met Sir Henry Irving at a party. She was thrilled when he asked to have her brought to him.

"Well, my child, how are you doing in your new play?" the great English actor inquired.

"Well, some of the critics said I was Ethel Barrymore, not the character I was creating," the young star answered.

"And never let them say anything different, my dear," Sir Henry answered.

Cuff Notes.

Raphael, the little round man with the tiny concertina, playing at the Yar. Don't miss him. He makes Caprice Viennois sound like Kreisler himself playing it, and even the Russians weep at his rendition of Dark Eyes. Hope he stays all winter. The Maisonette Russe in Paris, where we first heard him, didn't let him go for 11 years! . . . A woman on a northbound bus smoking little between-the-act cigars. . . . One of Chicago's beauties eats only one meal a day—at luncheon. . . . Alfred Lunt's mother, Mrs. Sederholm, has been traveling with the Lunts since Amphitryon 38 has been in the middle west and will arrive in Chicago with them tomorrow. She's teaching the Lunts' new cook her son's preferences.

Afternoon Entertainment.

It was Astor street, where the really fine homes of the town are located, that a child on roller skates is accompanied by a nursemaid on roller skates. It also is Astor street where a child's perambulator with radio attached is seen daily.

Conjecture.

When Tom Tallmadge mentioned to Joseph T. Ryerson that he liked the Degas painting of two elderly women Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson loaned to the Arts club for its recent exhibition of paintings owned by members, Mr. Ryerson commented modestly that it was a little different from the more typical Degas ballet girl paintings.

"O, but in your painting they're old ballet girls talking it over," said Mr. Tallmadge.

She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Couch Wood and a sister of Mrs. Malcolm Shroyer of Barrington. Miss Wood is lecturing tomorrow for the women's societies of the Winnetka Congregational church, and on Dec. 9 for the River Forest Presbyterian church. The latter will be a benefit for the church building fund.

Miss Wood's subject in both lectures will be a Christmas legend which she has translated from the French, called "The Ox and the Ass of the Nativity." It is illustrated with colored slides which are taken from the illuminated manuscripts and from stained glass windows of European cathedrals.

Two Benefit Balls Tonight.

The grand ballroom of the Palmer house has been decorated with white trees and blue lights for the sixth annual Snow ball to be given by the Mary Crane Nursery league this evening. Mrs. Leslie Drew is chairman of the dinner-dance.

Another dance that will add to the gayety this evening is the Infanta ball to be given by the South Shore center of the Infant Welfare society in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Dennett D. Bell is chairman of the committee.

The pattern today fashions all manner of garments: a chemise, a petticoat, and set of panties and brassiere. Any of them may be either tailored or lace trimmed. Figured and plain fabrics, light and dark colors, all are fashionable and practical. Washable satin, crêpe and taffeta are fabric considerations, the latter being, of course, intended for the petticoat. All the garments feature the smooth, foldless waistline, and the brassiere top of the chemise and the separate "bra" are styled along "uplift" lines.

If you wish to give a monogram touch to the tailored undies, there is a nice pattern for it, No. E-11012, available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2984 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material, with 3 yards of lace, for the chemise, and 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 1¾ yards of lace, for the petticoat.

Several readers have written me recently requesting that I publish the famous Duke of Cumberland and Mississippi heart hands in this column. The latter immortal deal was presented yesterday. Although I published the Duke of Cumberland hand some time ago, I now repeat it for the benefit of those readers who are unfamiliar with it.

According to the story which has lived for many, many years, the East hand was held by the Duke of Cumberland in a whist game at his favorite club. In whist there was no bidding as we know it today. The last card dealt automatically set the trump suit. But there could be an unlimited number of doubles and redoubles. Presumably, South was the dealer and the last card dealt was a heart. When it became East's turn to double, he did so with pardonable enthusiasm. South redoubled, and this duel went merrily on until either the duke or his redoubtable opponent became wearied.

The play of the hand is simple. East cannot, to save his life, take a single trick! West's opening is unimportant, but let us say he opens a spade. Declarer ruffs and then ruffs a diamond in dummy. A trump is led from dummy and declarer just tops whatever card East plays. Another diamond ruff follows and again a trump is led through East. A third diamond is ruffed, cleaning up the diamond situation. Declarer then reenters his own hand by ruffing a spade or a club, draws East's remaining trump, and spreads the hand.

East's 7½ honor tricks, including plus values cost him 20,000 English pounds! [Again, according to legend.]

Ask Equal Rank for All Suits in New Bridge Rule

Cleveland, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A proposal to revise drastically in 1940 the present bridge scoring system drew mixed comment tonight from expert players at the American Contract Bridge league's national tournament.

The proposal came from the game's national laws commission. William E. McKenney of New York, commission chairman, said the new features would be tested at various local bridge clubs to determine if they should be adopted.

The commission, with Ely Culbertson concurring, would eliminate the present "major" and "minor" suit game differences, and would create a subslam with an undetermined bonus at the five level.

Five tricks, plus the customary "book" of six, now are required for game in clubs and diamonds, while at hearts or spades a game contract requires only four tricks, and no trump three. Under the proposal, game would be four in all suits except no trump, which would be unchanged.

"Offhand I am not in favor of making the suits of equal rank," said Waldemar von Zedwitz, New York City competitor. "While a subslam is logical, I fear it will put too great a strain on players, who now have a breathing spell between game and small slam contracts."

Mrs. Josephine Culbertson declared the change in suit values would be "an excellent idea—I've been in favor of that ever since auction bridge." She was undecided about the subslam.

Culbertson plans only a few minor variations in his bidding system for 1939 but said the new scoring rules, if approved, would necessitate major revisions for 1940.

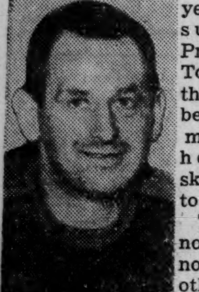
HAWKS SUSPEND LEVINSKY; FIRST BAN ON PLAYER

Veteran Accused of Indifferent Work.

BY EDWARD BURNS.



Alex Levinsky.

Alex Levinsky, the Blackhawks' oldest defense man in point of service with the team, yesterday was suspended by President Bill Tobin. It seems that Alex has been skating too much on the heels of his skates, or words to that effect.

The suspension notice went into no great detail, other than to accuse the veteran of "indifferent playing and failure to give his best efforts." It is the first suspension of the kind ever slapped on a Hawk player in the thirteen year history of the team.

After receiving his bounce notice, Levinsky went to Owner Frederic McLaughlin, it is said, and asked permission to practice on ice rented by the management. Permission was given but, according to reports, Levinsky was given no assurance of reinstatement.

Been Too Languorous.

It was stated that Levinsky has not been guilty of "violation of training rules," the frequent cause for suspending professional athletes. Alex simply has been languorous, in the judgment of club officials, in practice jousts especially. He has expressed no discontent with his employment except that he threw a stick across the rink several days ago after Manager Bill Stewart had prescribed a dose of 15 minutes extra body contact bulling in an effort to shake some of the lead out of his shorts.

According to reports Stewart and Tobin have taken turns in talking to Levinsky, all with assurances that he would be bearing down from then on.

Just a Statue.

In the Hawks' 4 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Detroit Maple Leafs Thursday night the first goal was a sloppy affair by Marty Barry in a leisurely solo effort. It was said that Levinsky not only failed to make what should have been an easy knockdown of the shot, but blocked the vision of Goalie Karakas in a statuesque stance. The goal seemed to demoralize the Hawks and thereafter the whole team appeared to be somewhat dazed. Levinsky drew no especial censure at the time, however.

Levinsky was purchased by the Hawks from the New York Rangers in the 1935-'36 season after Taffy Abel had been turned down in a holdout campaign.

Serves Plenty Time.

His first season with the Hawks, Levinsky scored one goal and seven assists and tied Ebbie Goodfellow of the Red Wings as top American division inmate of the penalty box with 69 minutes. The next season Levinsky didn't score a goal, but made eight assists. He served 32 minutes in the penalty box. Last year Alex scored three goals, two assists, and served only 18 minutes in penalties in the regular season. He made one goal in the Stanley cup playoffs and has made one goal this season.

Roger Jenkins, who has been a utility right winger since he rejoined the Hawks last year, will be at right defense in tomorrow night's game with the Boston Bruins in the Stadium. Jenkins paired with Lionel Conacher for the Hawks when the Chicagoans won the Stanley cup at the end of the 1933-'34 season.

Gracie Replaces Romnes.

After yesterday's practice Manager Stewart announced that Bob Gracie will play center between Paul Thompson and Mush March, taking the place of Doc Romnes, who has a bad cold and also has been recovering from a seven-stitch leg injury suffered in a game on Nov. 20.

The Boston Bruins, who will be battling the Hawks for the first time this season, will be the first visiting team this season to use the Stadium ice for practice. Art Ross' boys will work out between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

One National league game will be played tonight, the Montreal Canadiens meeting the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

LETTER AWARDED DEAD PREP YOUTH WHO 'AIDED' TEAM

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Robert L. Dunn, 16, didn't appear in a football game this year for Springfield Central Catholic High school, but his name was on the school's list of lettermen today. He died in September of pneumonia.

Coach Jerry Donahue declared it was his memory that spurred the team to a successful season. Dunn would have made the team easily, Donahue said.

His father, Joe Dunn, formerly caught for Brooklyn and managed Springfield, O., Elmira, N. Y., Bloomington, Ill., and Denver baseball teams.

A couple of boys named Smith, Andy for the Badgers and Sterling for Beloit, led their respective teams with eight points apiece.

NO. CENTRAL AT CHICAGO

Chicago's Maroons will open their basketball season tonight in the Midway fieldhouse against North Central college, which finished in a second place tie in the Illinois conference last year.

Coach Nels Norgren will start a team of four veterans, two of whom are letter men, and one sophomore. The sophomore is Joe Stampf, 6 feet 4 inch center and forward, who was one of the highest scoring players in the city prep league when he competed for Calumet High two years ago.

Remy Meyer, 6 feet 1 inch football quarter back, who won a letter in basketball last year, will team with Stampf at forward. Dick Lounsbury, 6 feet 4 inch junior, who was tenth highest scorer in the Big Ten last year, will be at center.

Undecided on Guards.

Norgren was undecided on the starting guards, but it appeared likely that Dick Richardson, 6 feet 4 inch reserve from last year, would take over one guard. Chet Murphy, 6 feet 2 inch tennis star, and two converted forwards, Carl Stanley and Morris Allen, are the other prospective guards.

This is not likely to be the combination which will play through the season for the Maroons, since several potential starters will not be eligible until Jan. 1.

North Central will have a considerable disadvantage in height, but has speed and accurate shooting. Star offensive man of the Naperville team is James Leasure, a forward.

DE PAUL VS. VALPARAISO

De Paul university will open its basketball season tonight against Valparaiso university in the De Paul gymnasium. Coach Tom Haggerty is looking forward to a vastly improved team over last year's squad.

Optimism around the De Paul campus is based on last season's showing of the freshman squad, which rolled up impressive victories over all types of opposition.

The other three places are manned by Bob Neu, who set an individual scoring record of 250 points last season, Ted Skrodzki, and Stan Szukala. The latter two are juniors.

De Paul's schedule is the most ambitious ever undertaken with standout teams listed from all sections of the country. Newcomers to the schedule are Penn State, Santa Clara, Duquesne, Butler, Iowa, Kansas State, Toledo, and Xavier of Cincinnati.

STRATTON IS CHEERFUL TO FIRST VISITOR

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Monty Stratton, former ace of the White Sox hurling staf, looked toward the brighter side of life today.

For the first time since an accidental pistol shot cost him his right leg and ended his baseball career, Stratton said he "was feeling normal again."

"It's been tough lying here, knowing that my baseball career is over," he said, "but I'm alive and have my wife and youngster and friends—and what more could a man want?"

What he will do now is problematical. He and Mrs. Stratton, who is constantly at his bedside, aren't looking to the future. Their main concern is the present.

Stratton had his first shave today since he was taken to St. Paul hospital here last Sunday. He was smoking a cigaret when a newspaper man walked into his room for the first interview since his accident.

"I never knew I had so many friends," Stratton said, as his wife went through countless letters and telegrams that had arrived from Chicago. "Fans, team mates and fellows I've played against all write to me. It's great to have friends."

Apparently having won his battle against death, Dr. Arthur Thomasson said the pitcher could have visitors after today. After Stratton and his wife Ethel posed for a picture Mrs. Stratton quietly ushered the newspaper man out of the room with: "Monty has to have his rest."

ILLINOIS COLLEGE LEAGUE KEEPS BAN ON FROSH

The Illinois College conference at its annual winter meeting in the Sherman hotel yesterday voted 6 to 4 to maintain the freshman rule in all varsity athletic competition. It had been proposed to permit freshmen to participate in the spring varsity sports.

The conference, along with its rival league, the Little 19 conference, reelected all officers and arranged dates for 1939 conference meets.

Reëlected in the Illinois college group were H. M. Moore, Lake Forest, president; James A. Campbell, Knox, vice president, and C. L. Miller, Millikin, secretary-treasurer.

The Little 19 reëlected Frank Phillips, De Kalb Teachers, president; G. L. Lathrop, Eureka, vice president; H. L. Wagner, Carthage, secretary, and C. P. Lantz, Charleston Teachers, treasurer.

Illinois College Conference.

March 4—Indoor track at North Central.
March 18—Swimming at North Central.
March 18—Wrestling [open] at Wheaton.
May 26-27—Tennis at Monmouth.
May 27—Track and golf at Knox.

Little 19 Conference.

May 6—State Teachers college track meet at De Kalb.
May 20—Conference tennis, track, and golf meet at Macomb.

BIG TEN MAY GIVE ITS DECISION ON BOWL BIDS TODAY

Vote on Training Table Also Likely.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The faculty committee of the Western conference, which deliberated informally last night in the University club with the directors of athletics, will conclude its meetings this morning with announcement of decisions regarding policies for conduct of Big Ten sports. Last night the directors proposed for consideration by the faculty members that the B teams in football be permitted to play on Friday night. Current regulations force these contests to be played on Saturdays as are the varsity games.

The faculty men also considered informally the proposition to change the Big Ten rule which now ends the football season on the Saturday preceding Thanksgiving. If a change is made, as is advocated by some members of the Big Ten, it will be done probably to permit the Western conference champion to compete in one post-season game. Since the Pacific Coast conference is said to be willing to enter into an agreement to have its representatives meet a Big Ten team in the annual Rose Bowl game, the change, if made, would be for this specific purpose.

May Vote on Rule Change.

For some time the consensus of the Big Ten coaches and directors is believed to have been in favor of this arrangement. This would permit the Big Ten champion to meet the champion of the Pacific Coast conference, an organization with comparable rules for eligibility and conduct of sports, and it would eliminate the helter skelter scramble of teams now seeking this post-season game. It is impossible to judge the attitude of the faculty men, who have sole power to alter the present rule, and it may be that the suggestion to extend the Western conference season will not even be brought to a formal vote this morning.

The faculty members also will consider again in this morning's meeting in the University club the question of permitting Big Ten universities to furnish their football squads with the evening meal during the fall season. This proposal received a favorable majority vote last May, but since it was not unanimous, the same proposition must again be acted on favorably at this meeting to be put into effect next fall.

May Permit Training Table.

Universities now are permitted to furnish football players with their meals until the opening of classes. Since those universities operating on the quarter basis have an advantage over those operating on the semester attendance plan, and since many of the teams, because of afternoon class schedules, must practice until 6 o'clock or later, the argument for the one meal a day training table has gained in favor.

It is believed this permission will be granted by the faculty committee for the 1939 campaign.

Several of the conference sports schedules for this winter and spring were completed yesterday. Schedules for fencing, gymnastics, and baseball will be completed today. Most important in yesterday's lists was the award of the outdoor track and field championships to the University of Michigan. The meet will be held in Ann Arbor May 19 and 20. The indoor meet, as usual, will be held at the University of Chicago. The dates will be March 10 and 11.

Coast Meet on June 21.

The annual track meet between the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast conference will be held June 21. This is the third of the dual conference meets and will be staged by the University of California in Berkeley, Cal.

The Western conference tennis and golf tournaments will be held in Chicago May 29, 30 and 31. The tennis competition will be held at the University of Chicago, and the golf tournament will be held at the Kildeer Country club.

The football coaches yesterday spent several hours looking at pictures of the 1938 games and in their

C. Y. O. Boxing Kindergarten Sends La Civita to the Finals

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The finalists in the open and novice divisions of the eighth Christmas fund boxing tournament of the Catholic Youth organization, to be held at the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets, next Friday night, will continue their training at the C. Y. O.'s loop center today.

Bobby La Civita.

But while the main event boys are tuning up for the big show, there will be a number of little squirts, who, like Bob Zuppke, came out on top. They will be the kids who comprise the Saturday morning classes which the C. Y. O. has been conducting for smaller boys since 1930.

They won't be in next Friday night's windups. But they'll be down at the C. Y. O. center at 9:30 o'clock this morning, going through the business of learning the A B C's of boxing. And if they're fortunate enough to attend the finals, they'll be witnessing two of the graduates of this kindergarten of punching right up there.

One of these is the quiet spoken Bobby La Civita, who at the age of 16 has made the big time as the result of his training in the Saturday classes. Bob, a dark curly haired featherweight who stands only 5 feet 2½ inches, has been rewarded for his weekly work by a rôle in the novice 126 pound title bout against one Peter Stancik of Cicero.

Four and one-half years ago, before he had reached the age of 12, young La Civita appeared at the C. Y. O. center and enrolled in the Saturday morning classes.

There he went through all the rudimentary stages, he said yesterday. He was taken into the ring with others, while Paddy Kane, coach of the C. Y. O. teams and originator of the young idea in boxing instruction, taught them footwork, jabbing, etc. As he improved he was allowed to

Thaw Gridiron for Redskins, Giants Battle

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 2.—Bonfires blazed brightly on the Polo Grounds today as scores of workmen labored to prepare the gridiron for Sunday's eastern division championship game between the New York Giants and Washington, the defending champion, in the National Football league. Large patches of ice, frost to the depth of six inches, and the weather bureau's forecast of rain combined to make the outlook most unfavorable, if not downright disappointing.

The only enthusiasm in the various football headquarters emanated from the Giant camp, where ticket business went on at a brisk pace and word of the serious injury of Ernie Pinckert, veteran Redskin half back, led to wild speculation on victory. Pinckert's injury was diagnosed today as a fractured vertebra, after nearly a week of treatment for bruises suffered in the Pittsburgh game last week.

Record Crowd Likely.

Prospects of a muddy field, even though the weather bureau's rainstorm holds off and the bonfires eliminate the ice, had no effect on ticket purchasers, and at noon today more than 30,000 reserved seats were said to have been sold. A fair day Sunday, with moderate temperatures, is expected to bring out a crowd that will exceed the professional football record established last year when the Redskins defeated the Giants, 49 to 14, to win the eastern title before 58,285.

Washington, which gradually is displacing Green Bay as the "biggest little town in professional football," will be represented by a delegation of 10,000, who will come up from the capital on 18 special trains. More than 9,000 tickets have been sold there and another block of 1,100 was sent to the Redskins' headquarters today. Three hundred of the 9,000 were peddled by Tuffy Leemans, Giant star, who set up a temporary ticket booth for hometown friends last week when he acompanied Coach Steve Owen to Washington to scout the Redskins in the Pittsburgh game.

Still Favor Washington.

Despite the injury to Pinckert, a veteran of seven professional campaigns, whose blocking and line backing have been important factors in the Redskins' rise to two consecutive divisional titles and a world championship under Coach Ray Flaherty, Washington remains the favorite on Broadway. For the purpose of the record, however, it must be set down that on the basis of performance, New York apparently has a better chance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 2.—Undefeated Notre Dame, alma mater of the nation at large, will close its most successful season since Knute Rockne's time against Southern California in the Coliseum tomorrow before a crowd that is expected to exceed 95,000. If all seats in the huge stadium are sold, which appears to be more than a possibility, the attendance will approximate 102,000.

Coach Elmer Layden and his thirty-six athletes, who had spent two days limbering up in Tucson, Ariz., arrived at 5 o'clock this afternoon amid a welcoming crowd of thousands. The players were taken directly to their hotel, but Layden was rushed to Southern California's campus, where he was the featured speaker at the Trojans' homecoming dinner.

It's Great for Business.

Officials of the chamber of commerce are beaming. Notre Dame, winner of eight straight games and always a great attraction, has brought more people to town this year than on any of its eight previous trips. Four special trains from Chicago and South Bend and several from San Francisco, Denver, Salt Lake City, and other western cities have been required to handle the influx of visitors. Railroad executives say this is the biggest haul they ever have enjoyed for a football game in Los Angeles.

Southern California, beaten twice, has come apace in recent weeks and its supporters are hopeful, if not confident, that the momentum the Trojans gained in their victories over California and U. C. L. A. will carry them through against Notre Dame.

Both teams have come up to their last regularly scheduled game in peak physical form. Ben Sheridan, Notre Dame's brilliant ball carrier, incurred a slight leg injury in Tucson yesterday, but he will be ready if Bob Saggau and Harry Stevenson, the team's other left half backs, need relief.

This Saggau Is Good.

It would be a relief to your correspondent if Layden would let Saggau play the entire game. There may be better all around back field men in 1938 football than the sandy haired speedster from Dennison, Ia., but we haven't seen them.

The Trojans, too, have a left half back who isn't in the best physical condition, but Coach Howard Jones today said he thought he was fit to start. He is big Bob Hoffman, who injured a knee in the Washington game. He is an expert blocker and with him clearing the path Grenville Lansdell, Bill Sangster, and Jack Banta, the Californians' principal ball carriers, will be more dangerous than ever. Lansdell and Sangster are the backs who almost whipped the Irish in South Bend last year. Banta is a sophomore, but he has been the powerhouse man for the Trojans all season.

When they want a few yards for a first down or a touchdown, Banta is the fellow who delivers. Other newcomers who may annoy Notre Dame no end are Bob Peeples, full back, and Mickey Anderson, quarter back.

Thirteenth Game in Series.

This is the thirteenth game in the intersectional series. Notre Dame has won seven times, U. S. C. four and there has been one tie. For attendance, receipts and thrilling performance there has been no greater rivalry in intercollegiate football.

Three of the earlier games in the series were decided by one point, Notre Dame winning all of them. The 1931 game in South Bend went to the Trojans by two points when Johnny Baker kicked a field goal to overcome Notre Dame's 14 to 13 lead in the last few seconds of play. The record of the games follows:

OVERLIN AGAIN BEATS BOLDEN IN WHITE CITY RING

Decatur Boxer Wins the Closing Rounds.

Fight Decisions

Ken Overlin, Decatur middleweight leader, who defeated Nate Bolden a few weeks ago, duplicated the achievement in a return fight of ten rounds in White City last night.

Overlin's margin was much smaller last night, but he won the unanimous decision of Referee Tommy Thomas and Judges Frank Jackson and James McEnery.

A crowd of 1,966 cheered as the fighters pounded each other from one side of the ring to the other throughout. The second largest gathering of the season in the south side arena grossed $1,968.

Overlin's backers got a scare in the third round when a series of rights closed Ken's left eye. In the fourth, a left hook opened a cut alongside his right eye. He regained the lead in the next round, however, by scoring with left jabs to the face. Bolden came back in the sixth, winning the round by landing cleaner blows. Overlin then spurted to win three of the last four rounds.

Sam Pian, one of Davey Day's manager, will leave today for Cleveland, O., where he will confer with Eddie Mead, pilot of Henry Armstrong, about a lightweight bout between Day and the champion in Chicago next February. Armstrong defend his welterweight title against Al Manfredo in Cleveland Monday.

After the match Pian will go to St. Louis to second Alex Kettles, South Bend heavyweight, in a six round contest against Bruno Dooley on the Tony Galento-Otis Thomas card, on Wednesday.

Alumni Honor N. U. Varsity, Frosh Tonight

Fifteen hundred Northwestern university alumni will honor the Wildcat varsity and freshman football squads at the annual football banquet in the Stevens hotel tonight. The banquet is sponsored by the Northwestern University club of Chicago of which Graham Penfield, captain of the 1920 football team, is president. He will preside as toastmaster.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western conference, and Coach Bernie Bierman of Minnesota will give the principal talks. Others who will speak are Mayor Henry Penfield of Evanston, President Walter Dill Scott, Coach Lynn Waldorf, and Athletic Director K. L. Wilson.

The football captain for 1939 and the most valuable player for the last season will be elected. Varsity letters and freshman numerals will be awarded.

DRAKE BEATEN BY NEW MEXICO STATE, 20 TO 16

Las Cruces, N. M., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A passing attack which scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter gave the New Mexico State college Aggies a 20 to 16 football victory over Drake university today. With only three minutes to play and Drake leading, 16 to 13, the Aggies took the kickoff on their 35 yard line. Miller tossed four passes, ran end for ten yards, and then jammed through tackle from the 1 yard line for the winning touchdown.

TENNESSEE GETS FAVORITE'S ROLE OVER MISSISSIPPI

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The unbeaten, untied Volunteers of Tennessee raced through final practice today for tomorrow's battle with Mississippi. The Rebels snapped through a drill at nearby Oxford and planned to board buses early tomorrow for Memphis.

Betters were reported favoring Tennessee's nominees for the Miami Orange Bowl at 3 to 1. Some were reported spotting Mississippi backers thirteen points. Standing room was not available in the stadium, which has a capacity of more than 19,000.

James Alden, Madison Athletic club middleweight, and Tom McGee, Northwest gymnasium welterweight, won the two feature bouts on the amateur boxing card in the Madison A. C. gym last night. Alden won a five round decision over Frank McBride, and McGee stopped Floyd Klimczak in the fifth round. Other results:

Petrones, Hebrews Win in Windy City League

The Representative Petrones and the Marowitz Hebrews triumphed in two Windy City Basketball league games in the Park Casion last night. The Petrones defeated the Kokots, 35 to 22, and the Hebrews won from the Happy Jacks, 33 to 21. In a preliminary game the Queen Anne girls' quintet of Hammond, Ind., defeated the I. C. Co-Eds, 29 to 17.

informal discussions considered the problems of officiating. However, the coaches declined to take steps to select their lists of officials for 1939 games immediately. Assignments will be made as usual after the coaches have secretly rated officials on the approved list and assignments will be made by Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics.

After a long distance call from Coach Biff Jones of Nebraska, Z. G. Clevenger, Indiana's director of athletics, announced that the Indiana-Nebraska game in 1942 would be played in Lincoln, Neb., on Oct. 10. It previously had been scheduled for Oct. 31.

RED TOP MAKES JUNIOR STAKE ITS 12TH BLUE RIBBON

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A smooth-stepping chestnut mare named Born to Love last night added another blue ribbon to the collection amassed by Irving S. Florsheim's Red Top farm in the live stock exposition horse show in the International Amphitheater.

Born to Love's victory in the $500 junior five gaited saddle stake gave Red Top its twelfth victory in the course of the show which began last Saturday and which will end tonight.

A Great Performance.

White Oak, a 9 year old gray gelding owned by George Sadlier of Indianapolis, brought the capacity crowd to its feet when he won the $1,000 stake for jumpers. He was the last of the field to traverse the difficult course and all before him had made some mistake.

With Max Bonham riding him carefully, White Oak went over the brush jump, the picket fence, the chicken coop, the railway gate, the stone wall, the fence, and the chicken coop again. Then he headed for the treacherous series of three poles that had upset so many horses before him. He flicked the first with his hind hoofs, but the strips set on the top failed to drop. He went over the other two cleanly to finish without a fault.

Six Stakes Tonight.

In the jumpoff for second place, Escalator completed the course without error after he had made half a fault on his first trip around. Bruce of the Happy Way farms failed in the jumpoff and took third.

Six stakes, headed by the $2,500 world championship five gaited event, are on tonight's final program. The other five, all at $1,000, will bring out harness ponies, three gaited saddle horses, roadsters, heavy harness horses, and hunters. Summaries:

A. A. U. TO ACCEPT 4:04.4 MILE RUN BY CUNNINGHAM

Mark Will Stand as an American Record.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham's startling feat of running the mile in 4 minutes 4.4 seconds was recommended today for acceptance as an American record by the record committee of the National Amateur Athletic union. Tomorrow or Sunday it will be submitted to the general convention for final approval as the fastest mile ever run by man.

Because it has received the blessing of the committee, its acceptance is regarded as a formality. When approved Cunningham's time will replace his own standard of 4:08.4, set in 1934. The world record, however, remains at 4:06.4 as set by Sydney Wooderson of England. Cunningham ran his race indoors, in the Dartmouth college gymnasium, on March 3, 1938, and indoor performances are not recognized by the International Amateur Athletic federation, which passes on world records.

Refuse Johnson Approval.

The record committee withheld approval of only one application pending further investigation. That was Ben Johnson's clocking of 6 seconds flat for 60 yards turned in last Feb. 5. Objection to the former Columbia university speedster's effort was based on a claim he had beaten the gun.

Only two serious battles developed. The redistricting committee was in session for several hours before it decided to recommend the formation of a new Iowa association taking in all the state except for a two-county-wide strip along the western state line. That strip, together with Nebraska and South Dakota, will remain under the jurisdiction of the Midwestern association. Delegates from the Pacific coast and New England argued over the award of the 1939 boxing tournament. It went to the Pacific coast, for the first time in its history, by 21 to 9.

Track Meet to Lincoln.

The men's outdoor track meet went to the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, with New York retaining the indoor meet, the Connecticut association drawing the women's outdoor track, and Denver gaining the men's basketball tournament.

The track and field committee, for the second year in succession, defeated a motion to supplant the metric system now in vogue in the national meets with the linear system of measurement.

their best game of the season tomorrow, because defeat would impair the national prestige of the Rose bowl contest, in which they meet Duke Jan. 2.

Records for Season.

Notre Dame, 52; Kansas, 0.
Notre Dame, 14; Georgia Tech, 6.
Notre Dame, 14; Illinois, 6.
Notre Dame, 7; Carnegie Tech, 0.
Notre Dame, 19; Army, 7.
Notre Dame, 15; Navy, 0.
Notre Dame, 19; Minnesota, 0.
Notre Dame, 9; Northwestern, 7.
Southern California, 7; Alabama, 19.
Southern California, 7; Oregon State, 0.
Southern California, 14; Ohio State, 7.
Southern California, 19; Washington State, 6.
Southern California, 13; Stanford, 2.
Southern California, 31; Oregon, 7.
Southern California, 13; California, 7.
Southern California, 6; Washington, 7.
Southern California, 42; U. C. L. A., 7.

If the Coliseum is sold out tomorrow the attendance will set a record for the Notre Dame-U. S. C. series. The largest crowd to see any of the games was 100,080 in Soldiers' field, Chicago, in 1929.

Biggest Gate in Los Angeles.

The biggest gate was in Los Angeles in 1930 when 87,154 paid $389,354 to watch Frank Carideo and his Notre Dame mates win, 27 to 0, in Knute Rockne's farewell to the gridiron.

While the Trojans have the Rose bowl as an incentive, other than their natural desire to whip Notre Dame, the Irish likewise have a very special reason for wanting victory. If they polish off Southern California it will give them a record of nine straight victories for the season. There are a few other undefeated teams in the land, notably Duke, Texas Christian, and Tennessee, but few will contend that any of the others has played as difficult a schedule as Notre Dame's.

Bury Cassels, Old U. of C. Athlete, Today

Funeral services for Bert James Cassels, member of the championship University of Chicago football team of 1899, will be at 10 o'clock this morning in St. Isaac Jogues church in Hinsdale. Cassels, whose family has made a notable record in Maroon athletics, died Tuesday night after a heart attack.

Two of Cassels' sons, Robert and James, are members of current Chicago varsity teams. Bob Cassels is captain of this year's basketball team and star pole vaulter on the track team. Jim was a tackle on the Maroon football team during the season just closed.

A fourth member of the family who has won a varsity letter at Chicago is William Cassels, the oldest son, who played tackle six years ago and who was the Maroon candidate in 1932 for THE TRIBUNE's annual award for the most valuable player in the Big Ten.

The family resides in Clarendon Hills, adjoining Hinsdale. Burial will be in La Crosse, Wis.

Thaw Gridiron for Redskins, Giants Battle

of qualifying for the league playoff from which will come the college All-Stars' opponent in the sixth annual game sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Soldiers' field next summer.

Washington relies largely upon an open game, built around the passing of the incomparable Sammy Baugh and Rookie Bill Hartman. New York also has its aerial threat in Ed Danowski, formerly of Fordham. Danowski at present leads the league in passing with 68 completions in 124 attempts. Poor playing conditions, however, would curtail the efficiency of an overhead attack.

Where Giants Are Superior.

Thus the running game and defense become vital factors in the game which will wind up the regular schedule of both clubs. And in both departments the Giants have proved themselves superior. They have gained 1,441 yards by rushing in ten games against Washington's 1,356. They have surrendered only 79 points and 1,822 yards to the 118 points and 2,014 yards opponents have made against the Redskins.

Out at Garden City, on Long Island, where the Redskins have been working in the snow since Thursday, it appeared that Flaherty would use Ed Justice, veteran half back from Gonzaga, in place of the injured Pinckert, the customary starter, and save Baugh for a strategic spot in the game. This strategy beat Pittsburgh last week. Baugh entered the game in the last quarter and threw two touchdown passes.

PLATAK, JENSEN TEAM WINS IN STATE HANDBALL

Joe Platak and Herb Jensen of the Lake Shore Athletic club advanced to the semi-final round in the Central A. A. U. state doubles handball tournament in the Midwest A. C. last night. They defeated Dire and Kendler of the Medinah A. C., 21-15, 21-16.

The defending champions, Dick Martin and Paddy Cannon, beat Marshall and Schultz of the Irving Park Y., 21-2, 21-19. In the other quarter-final matches Quinn and Stenson defeated Piotter and Zapfel of the Oak Park Y., 21-14, 21-18, and Corenam and Rumick of the Lawson Y. beat Berkson and Carroll of the Midwest A. C. 21-7, 21-9.

The semi-final matches will be played this afternoon. The finals will be played tomorrow afternoon.

CHICAGO SQUASH RACQUETS MEET TO OPEN TODAY

LA CIVITA FINDS HIS C. Y. O. RING TRAINING HELPS

put on the gloves and argue with boys of his own weight and ability. Gradually Bob became handy enough to enter the special junior events held by the C. Y. O., going so far as to win the 1935 title for boys between 70 and 75 pounds.

Friday night, he makes his debut on the big time. He earned the spot by whipping George Floss in the semi-finals. Of Italian-Polish extraction, Bob is now a sophomore at Tilden Technical High school. Currently, he is taking a general course, but he has a yen to continue through college with a course in electrical engineering, with leanings toward Armour Tech as a likely alma mater. Bob resides with his parents at 7003 South Paulina street and he will represent St. Mary's of Mount Carmel parish.

Coach Kane yesterday pointed out that the Saturday morning classes for youngsters have produced a number of finalists and champions. Among these are La Civita; Bud Ryan, who will fight in the 147 pound novice finals; Al Noto, open flyweight finalist, and Harry Henderson, winner of the 175 pound novice crown last year.

"These boys reported for the weekly classes on their own," Paddy said, "but I've found that 90 per cent of them have been brought down by their parents. Their fathers and mothers, afraid that they would become street fighters, kept such a close watch on them that the boys were developing an inferiority complex. They would run home at the first sign of a challenge from other kids, and the folks figured that the only solution would be instruction in boxing. As a result, many of these Saturday morning boys have acquired initiative, confidence, and a stronger outlook on life."

Cats and Pigeons Are on Exhibition for Pet Fanciers

BY BOB BECKER.

Cats and pigeons are occupying the attention of Chicagoland pet fanciers this week-end, with more than 2,500 pigeons on display in the 16th street armory and 200 cats competing for awards in the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street. The cat show, which opens this morning at 10:30 o'clock, will continue through tomorrow, while the pigeon show, which opened yesterday, will continue until tomorrow night.

Dr. W. A. Young, manager of the Chicago Anti-Cruelty society and president of the American Cat club, will present more than 150 trophies to the winners of various classes at the cat show. The show is the twenty-ninth annual event of the Beresford Cat club, oldest organization of its kind in the country. Cats from all over the United States and Canada will compete.

Entries in the show include tailless Manx cats, Persians, Burmese, Siamese, Russian, Abyssinian, Australian, Malayan, and ordinary domestic short haired cats. Kittens of all breeds also are entered in the competition.

The pigeon show is being conducted by the Chicago Pigeon club. There are more than 100 varieties of pigeons, most of which will be on exhibition at the show.

Among the many interesting varieties in the show are the parlor tumblers, the only pigeons which do not fly. Instead of flying they will, at a signal, begin a series of backward somesaults across the parlor rug or library table.

HOLD SEPARATE FUNERALS FOR 23 BUS VICTIMS

Drop Plans for Mass Rites in Tabernacle.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Bereaved parents of the victims of Utah's school bus disaster which took twenty-three lives decided tonight to hold private funerals rather than have mass rites in historic Mormon tabernacle.

Most of the twenty-two school students killed yesterday when a freight train, speeding a mile a minute through a snowstorm, rocketed into the bus, were children of Latter Day Saints farmers.

Bus Driver Farrold H. Silcox, 29 years old, the one man who might have been able to explain the crash, was the twenty-third victim. County Attorney Harold E. Wallace said no inquest would be held.

Inquiry Will Be Made.

An investigation will be made by Interstate commerce commission representatives, en route here from Washington, Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad officials announced.

Salt Lake County General hospital officials set the toll today at twenty-three dead and sixteen seriously injured. Four are in critical condition. The exact death list had fluctuated because of the condition of the bodies and the difficulty Jordan district school officials had in accounting for the more than forty occupants of the bus.

L. W. Nielson, the principal, said all now have been accounted for and that the portions of bodies picked up along the roadside—at first believed to indicate additional victims—belonged to identified victims.

Of the four children in a critical condition in the hospital, Dr. R. J. Alexander said, "Whether they recover depends largely on any possible complications that arise."

Say Driver Stopped.

W. K. Granger, member of the Utah Public Service corporation, said his group had no jurisdiction as to determining the accident's cause, but a report was being prepared to guide a program to eliminate grade crossing hazards.

Survivors of the crash agreed that Silcox looked both ways before starting across the tracks, and C. R. Nelson, Jordan school district superintendent of transportation, said that although windows beside passenger seats in the bus may have been steamed, the windshield and windows on either side of the driver's compartment were equipped with frost and steam shields.

"We know that he stopped the bus. From that point on we can only guess," he said.

SMITH REPORTS IMPROVEMENT IN COUNTY FINANCE

Improvement in the county's financial position was shown yesterday in the annual report of Clayton F. Smith, president, which was presented to the county board.

The county's funded debt has been reduced $12,826,000 during his administration; bond interest rates have been lowered as a result of the refunding program, and interest amounting to $1,260,442 has been saved on future tax levies, the report said. There has been no default in county board securities, Mr. Smith added.

In a general survey, he showed that the county laid forty miles of pavement during the year, gave employment to 5,000 men over a ninety day period, purchased 640 acres to increase the forest preserve acreage to 33,500, and expended nearly $1,000,000 a month for old age assistance to nearly 40,000 pensioners.

MOSCOW TWINS, JOINED AT BIRTH, DIE OF PNEUMONIA

MOSCOW, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Irina and Galina, strange twin sisters of Moscow, died today of pneumonia. The babies had two heads, two pairs of arms and two backbones, but only one body from the chest down.

A sleeping potion given to one girl would cause both to sleep, but pin pricks in one side of the body caused only one head to cry. Irina died a half hour after Galina.

The girls were a year and 22 days old. From the time they were 6 weeks old they had been in the All-Union Institute of Experimental Medicine, objects of scientific research and wide public interest in the soviet union.

MISSES HUSBAND BUT SHOOTS 2D; BALKED IN SUICIDE

A shotgun was leveled at Robert Hall's shadow in the frosted window of his filling station at Elgin yesterday. At that moment, Hall bent over to drink from a fountain. The charge shattered the window, passed over his head, and wounded Kenneth Bayer, an Elgin resident sitting in the station.

Policeman A. R. Burgeson said he smashed a car window and seized the shotgun just as Mrs. Ann Hall, wife of the filling station man, was trying to shoot herself. He arrested Mrs. Hall, who is 30 years old. She was charged with assault with intent to murder and released on $5,000 bond. Bayer will recover.

U. S. Officials Attend Last Rites for Henry Freeman

The federal courthouse was virtually closed yesterday afternoon as United States District court judges, United States District Attorney William J. Campbell, and his staf, and other employés attended the funeral for Henry W. Freeman. Mr. Freeman, clerk of the United States District court, died Wednesday night. The services were held in the chapel at 716 North State street. Burial was in the Bronswood cemetery in Hinsdale.

HOLDER OF STATE PAROLE RECORD DIES IN HOSPITAL

Patrick [Buck] Dwyer, who served five prison terms and held the Illinois parolee record with six paroles, was buried yesterday in Mount Olivet cemetery. He died Tuesday in the County hospital. He was 64 years old.

Dwyer was freed from prison last March on a writ of error after he had served twelve years for participating in a $2 robbery in 1925. The writ was issued by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, who held that Dwyer had been improperly represented at his trial. The state's appeal from this ruling was pending at the time of Dwyer's death. The ex-convict received a $12,000 legacy left him by his sister, Hannah, when he was released.

BEATS WIFE BECAUSE HE LOVES HER—AND HAS STORY TO PROVE IT

Joseph Agic told Chicago Lawn police last night that he loves his wife, Salome. He made this statement after Salome had charged him with disorderly conduct.

Yesterday she gave him $4 for new shoes. But when she returned home last night it developed Joseph had had bad luck. The dice didn't respond and Joseph lost his $4.

Salome remonstrated. Joseph, she charged, beat and kicked her. Police were called to the Agic home at 5800 West 60th street. They took Joseph and Salome to the station.

"I beat my wife," he said, "because I love her."

For proof, Joseph fished a newspaper clipping from his pocket. It told that Joseph had been freed in Milwaukee last April on a charge of beating Salome on his plea that he beat her because he loved her.

WIDOW'S VERSION OF HELPING MATE DIE READ TO JURY

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Bespectacled Marie Burckhalter's own version of how she helped her husband, a prosperous chemical manufacturer, to kill himself in the garage behind their Hastings home was read to a Westchester grand jury today in a state move to jail her for twenty years.

"I'm asking for a first degree manslaughter indictment," said Chief Assistant District Attorney Elbert T. Gallagher. "But there's nothing to prevent the grand jury from returning a different indictment." Under state law aiding a person to commit suicide is manslaughter.

The prosecutor, who has intimated his doubts that the widow told the whole story of the death of her husband, Eugene Burckhalter, 47 years old, refused to explain what other true bill the grand jury might return.

CAA BARES NEW PLAN FOR CITY'S ISLAND AIRPORT

Chicago's downtown air terminal as now proposed by the Civil Aeronautics authority engineers will be an island approximately 400 acres in area with double sets of runways from 4,000 to 6,000 feet in length. The new plans call for placing it at a point about 2,500 feet east of Northerly Island.

This was learned yesterday after engineers of the CAA, the Works Progress administration, the city, the Chicago Plan commission and the Chicago Park district held a conference in the Merchandise Mart. They are working out a program that is to be considered in the next 10 days by CAA and WPA engineers from Washington. If approved the city is to call for WPA aid in building the island field.

By placing the island farther out in the lake the engineers are securing good approaches without increasing costs. The lake depth remains constant at a mean of 24 feet, the same depth prevailing at the original site 1,600 feet east of Northerly island. Safety is considerably increased by lengthening the distance between the field and shore building lines to the northwest, the southwest and west.

ROBBERS BEAT COUPLE IN HOME; SLUG RESCUER

A Franklin Park couple and a roomer were beaten up last night by two bandits who invaded their home at 3142 Hawthorne avenue, in the suburb. The victims were George Wood, 64 years old, and his wife, 53, and Rossi Stoletto, the roomer, who owns a tavern next door.

The robbers punched and kicked Mr. and Mrs. Wood in a vain effort to learn where the Woods kept their money. Their cries were heard by Stoletto, who ran in from his tavern to help them. He was severely pummeled, too. He ripped the sweater off one man as the two fled and also took down the license of their car. The robbers got away with a shotgun, a radio, and a clock.

BUILDERS FORM ORGANIZATION TO AID INDUSTRY

Would Co-ordinate All Efforts.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have a building congress patterned after similar organizations in New York and other eastern cities. This plan to give impetus to the somewhat dormant building industry was launched at a meeting of representative builders and other business men at the Union League club last Tuesday. It was not publicly announced until yesterday. It resulted from several months of study of the local building situation by the originators of the plan.

"The proposed building congress is the only vehicle through which all the interests of the industry may be coördinated," said J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of Starrett Brothers, Inc., and one of the organizers. "Its purpose shall be to serve the interests of the industry rather than the interests of any group, association, or section of the industry."

Would Establish Good Will.

"The congress should have a profound effect upon the establishment of good will between workers and employers," said Elmer C. Jensen, president of the Illinois Society of Architects. "This good will may well be reflected in increased efficiency and prosperity of the industry and a favorable acceptance of it by the public."

The plan was first suggested last June. Men representing nearly every phase of the building industry met at the Union League club. An organization committee was named. It was composed of Paul D. Angell, R. G. Creviston, Charles Hines, John Holabird, Elmer C. Jensen, C. M. toe Laer, and Warterfield.

At the recent meeting at the Union League club the proposal to form a Chicago Building Congress was unanimously endorsed. Then it was decided to hold a larger meeting of the building industry at the Palmer house Dec. 13, to start the project formally. Thomas Holden, vice president of the F. W. Dodge corporation and president of the New York building congress, will be the principal speaker.

States Basic Principle.

The basic principle of the congress as stated in the report of the organization committee, is as follows: "To serve the interests of the industr as a coördinated unit, viewing all its branches as parts of a large, interdependent organism, rather than to serve the interests of any group or section of the industry."

"The proposed Chicago Building congress, in my opinion, may well be the voice of the entire building construction industry in the Chicago metropolitan area," said Waterfield yesterday. "Representing, as it aims to do, all of the professions, trades, and interests of the building industry, in its widest scope, it promises to assist materially in harmonizing the interests and activities of the various branches of the industry.

"It also should assist in securing adequate legislation and local municipal ordinances in connection with regional and city planning, zoning, subdivision, and development of land, building, and sanitary codes, and the equitable assessment of property."

STORES' SALES DECLINE FROM 1937 SMALLER

National department store sales during the week ended Nov. 26 declined 4 per cent from a year ago, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. The decline was 1 per cent less than that of the preceding week.

Chicago sales last week dropped more than the national average. The volume was down 4.7 per cent, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

For the entire seventh federal reserve area, of which Chicago is a part, the decline from a year ago was 4.4 per cent. In the preceding week sales slumped 10.1 per cent below 1937.

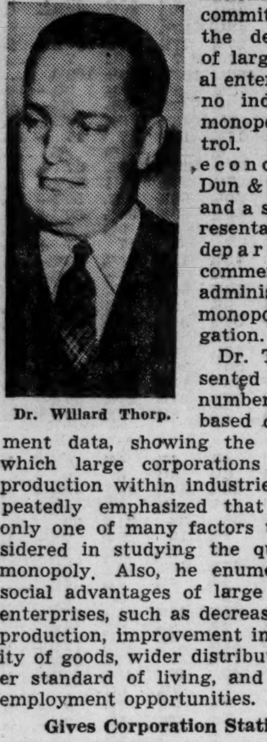
Industry Size Held No Sign of Monopoly

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Dr. Willard Thorp.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Dr. Willard Thorp today told the temporary national economic committee that the development of large industrial enterprises was no indication of monopolistic control. He is an economist for Dun & Bradstreet and a special representative of the department of commerce in the administration's monopoly investigation.

Dr. Thorp presented a large number of charts, based on government data, showing the extent to which large corporations dominate production within industries. He repeatedly emphasized that size was only one of many factors to be considered in studying the question of monopoly. Also, he enumerated the social advantages of large corporate enterprises, such as decreased cost of production, improvement in the quality of goods, wider distribution, higher standard of living, and increased employment opportunities.

Gives Corporation Statistics.

Of some 531,000 corporations filing income tax returns, those with assets of less than $50,000 each accounted for more than half the total number in 1935, but had only 1.4 per cent of the total asests, according to one of Dr. Thorp's charts. At the other end of the scale, corporations with assets of $50,000,000 and more—780 in number—accounted for only 2-10 of 1 per cent of the total number, but controled more than half of the total assets.

Another chart, however, showed a similar concentration of employment opportunities and earnings. One-fourth of the employers covered by the social security system reported only one employé each. Concerns with 1,000 or more employés each represented only 2-10 of 1 per cent of the total number, but accounted for 38.7 per cent of the total number of employés.

Not Necessarily Monopolistic.

Dr. Thorp explained that the domination of an industry by a relatively small group of corporations, as in the automobile industry, does not imply monopolistic control, because there is strong competition between the various producers. Also, he said, there is cross-competition between large enterprises in different industries. As an example, he pointed out that both General Motors and General Electric make refrigerators.

Aluminum	1	100
Automobiles	3	86
Beef	2	47
Bread	3	20
Cans	3	90
Cement	5	40
Cigarets	3	80
Coal [bituminous]	4	10
Copper	4	78
Corn Binders	4	100
Corn Planters	6	91
Flour	3	29
Plate Glass	2	95
Safety Glass	2	60
Iron Ore	4	64
Lead	4	60
Steel	3	60.5
Whisky	4	58
Women's Clothes	4	2

Denies Law Causes Mergers.

A suggestion by Dr. Thorp that the Sherman anti-trust act itself has been responsible to a large degree for mergers and the development of large enterprises was disputed by Thurman Arnold, the Roosevelt trust buster who represents the justice department on the investigating committee.

Dr. Thorp said the reason for this result of the anti-trust law was that, through the process of interpretation, "we have arrived at a state of law where five enterprises, each of which, let us say, represents 10 per cent of an industry, cannot have collective action with regard to prices of markets or allocation of production without running afoul of the anti-trust laws."

"That," he said, "becomes a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade. If, however, these five companies should merge into a single enterprise, then that single enterprise has no problem of conspiracy or combination; it is only a single enterprise."

Denied by Arnold.

"I don't think that is the position which the anti-trust division is taking, and I don't think it is one that they are in a position to take," Arnold replied. "We have the identical problem in the Aluminum case [Aluminum Company of America]. That is a common interpretation, newspaper interpretation, of the anti-trust law, but without arguing the point, I wish to make the record clear that we made no such distinction, and we will get a specific decision on that, I think, in the Aluminum case."

Jerome Frank, representing the Securities and Exchange commission, told Arnold that some lawyers had given their clients the interpretation of the anti-trust laws to which Dr. Thorp referred.

U. S. Will Pay 2¾% Interest on New Bonds

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Some of the details of the treasury's $1,641,613,750 financing scheduled for Dec. 15 were announced today. Other details will be made public Monday morning. The $700,000,000 of new money included in the financing will raise the national debt to more than 39 billion 300 million dollars.

The treasury announced that it will sell $400,000,000 of 2¾ per cent long term bonds and $300,000,000 of five year notes to raise $700,000,000 in cash for operating expenses. It will make public the maturity date for the bonds and the interest rate for the notes on Monday.

Exchange Offer Will Be Made.

Holders of $941,613,750 of 1½ per cent notes which mature on March 15 will be offered an exchange. This will consist of either the same type of bonds or notes that are to be sold for cash or a shorter term bond to bear 2 per cent interest.

It is regarded likely that the 2¾ per cent bonds will not mature for at least fifteen years. This is indicated by the fact that three months ago the treasury sold 12 to 14 year bonds at 2½ per cent interest.

The forthcoming increase in the public debt to a new peak calls attention to the way in which the government has been spending more money than it has been taking in. In the five months from the start of the fiscal year on July 1 the treasury's deficit as a result of the vast expenditures has been more than 1 billion 400 million dollars.

Large Deficit This Year.

In the five months of the present fiscal year expenditures exceeded revenues by almost as much as they did for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1938. The actual figures were $1,436,136,765 for the five months ended Nov. 30, against $1,449,625,881 for the entire fiscal year ended June 30. The treasury deficit for the comparable five months of last year was $738,044,590.

An encouraging note was the fact that in November treasury receipts exceeded those of November, 1937, by about $54,000,000. This was the first month in the current fiscal year that revenues showed a gain over a like month of 1937. November receipts were $381,644,253. Receipts for the first five months were $2,222,791,416, or about $90,000,000 less than a year ago.

Expenditures by the government for the first five months of the fiscal year totaled $3,658,928,181, against $3,048,624,837 in the like months of the preceding fiscal year.

Coins.

The new Jefferson nickel is now being distributed by the treasury department through the various federal reserve banks. It replaces the buffalo nickel which had been in use for a quarter of a century last Feb. 21.

Before the coinage of the Jefferson nickel there had been no change in the design of a regular United States coin since 1932, when the Washington quarter dollar was authorized by congress in connection with the Washington bicentennial celebration. The present half dollar and the dime go back to 1916. The Lincoln penny was first distributed in 1909.

Based on production figures of the treasury department for the fiscal year 1938, the most popular coins are the penny and the dime. They rank first and second, respectively. The nickel, in third place, ranked close to the dime. The quarter is a poor fourth, and the half dollar fifth. Last year the nickel ran ahead of the dime, but this year it dropped to third place.

Tomorrow: More on coins.

FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS ARE CUT BY HOLIDAY, BUT EXCEED YEAR AGO

The Thanksgiving holiday caused railroad freight trafic in the week ended Nov. 26 to slump abruptly from that of the preceding week, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. The decrease was 14.5 per cent.

Loadings last week, however, exceeded trafic for the similar 1937 week by 1.1 per cent. The freight movement at this time last year declined sharply.

Total freight trafic last week was 562,084 cars, a drop of 95,393 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 6,322 cars over the comparative week in 1937.

The association's classified report of shipments of the various commodities follows:

INVESTING FIRM REPLIES TO SEC SALARY CHARGE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Transamerica corporation replied today to the most-discussed charge in the Securities and Exchange commission's complaint of last week. The SEC had alleged A. P. Giannini, chairman of the investment company, got more compensation than the $1 a year reported.

The corporation sent a letter to stockholders, saying:

"The corporation stated in its application for registration, as it has on more than one occasion stated to its stockholders, that the annual compensation paid to Mr. Giannini was at the rate of $1 for each year since 1932 when he was returned to the management of the corporation by the overwhelming vote of the stockholders. Your board of directors stand upon that statement; any statement to the contrary would have been untrue."

The letter said Giannini had twice declined to accept any compensation or expense allowance whatsoever.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)—H. F. Lohmeyer, treasurer of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company, today announced the sale to Halsey, Stuart & Company, Inc., Chicago, and Otis & Company, Inc., Cleveland, of 30 millions of refunding and improvement mortgage 3½ per cent twenty-five year bonds, series F. They were sold for par plus accrued interest, the bonds to bear the date of Dec. 1, 1938, Lohmeyer said. The sale provides for a 2 per cent annual sinking fund.

"The sale is for the purpose of retiring an equal amount of first consolidated mortgage 5 per cent bonds due May 1, 1939," Lohmeyer said, "and is made subject to approval of the interstate commerce commission."

Directors of the Fisk Rubber corporation voted to pay an initial dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. It is the first payment on the common since the reorganization of the corporation on May 10, 1933. Prior to the reorganization the Fisk Rubber company [as it was then called] had paid no common dividends since 1920. The last payment was 75 cents in October of that year.

An extra year-end dividend of 75 cents a share was voted yesterday on the capital stock of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. Earlier in 1938 a total of $1.25 a share was paid in extra dividends in addition to four regular quarterly distributions of 25 cents a share.

CLOSE CONTROL SHOWN IN CITY'S SMALLER BANKS

Individuals, Families Often Dominate.

Control of Chicago's smaller banks in the year ended April 1, 1938, continued to be closely held. As previously, a single individual or family or company held a large enough block of stock to assure working control.

This was shown by the lists of bank stockholders released last night by John S. Clark, county assessor. The lists are compiled for personal property tax assessments.

[An article on the stockholder lists of the six big loop banks appeared yesterday. One dealing with the banks in Chicago's suburbs will appear tomorrow.]

F. H. Prince Controls Bank.

One man control of the Live Stock National bank stayed in the hands of Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist and chairman of Armour & Co. He kept intact personal holdings of 413 shares and a block of 30,012 shares held by F. H. Prince & Co., giving him more than 60 per cent of the total of 50,000 shares. J. A. McDonough, a director of the bank and an associate of Prince, bought 989 shares, giving him 3,150. The second largest stake in the bank was held by Western Associates, Inc., which added 50 shares during the year to make a total of 9,897 shares.

Williams C. Cummings, president of the Drovers National and the Drovers Trust and Savings banks, remained by far the largest stockholder in each bank.

Cummings' Holdings Listed.

Cummings had 2,560 of the 10,000 outstanding shares in Drovers National, a decline of twenty-one shares. The second largest holding was that of Harriet B. Patterson, who held 625 shares. In the Drovers Trust, Cummings kept 1,558 of the bank's 3,500 outstanding shares, indicating that he sold ten during the year. No other stockholder had more than 200 shares.

Ownership of the First National Bank of Englewood was still practically in the hands of J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president. He owned 1,200 of the bank's 2,000 shares, and only three others has as much as 100 shares.

George B. Everitt added eight shares to his holdings in the Merchandise National bank, increasing his ownership to 1,925 of the 5,000 shares. He is chairman of the board. Howard L. Willett, a director, owned 287 shares, and no others had more than 200.

Working control of the University State bank was kept by C. W. Hoff, president, who bought seventy-six shares during the year to increase his equitp to 660 shares. The bank has 2,000 outstanding in the hands of ninety stockholders.

Of the Uptown State bank's 3,000 shares, 2,927 were in the name of Julius O. Sorg. He held the shares as nominee for the First Chicago corporation, whose stock is in a trust for the benefit of stockholders of the First National bank.

An example of family control is found in the Skala State bank, where the Skalas held all except 80 of the 2,000 shares. There were only seven stockholders. Another case is the Metropolitan State bank, in which the Morris and Swift Holdings.

The Morris and Swift families, which have substantial interests in some of the downtown banks, were also big stockholders in some of the outlying institutions.

Working control of the Liberty National, Halsted Exchange, and Mid-City National banks was retained by the Morrises. In the Liberty National they had 1,528 of the 3,000 shares, including the holdings of Helen Swift Morris Neilson. The Morrises owned 791 of the Halsted Exchange's 2,000 shares, and more than half of the stock in the Mid-City National.

In addition, the Morris family had 883 shares in the Sears Community State bank.

The Swift family had 354 shares in the Drovers National and 165 shares in the Drovers Trust. It also held 173 shares in the Merchandise National bank.

Sears-Roebuck Controls Bank.

The Sears Community bank falls in the group under corporate control. Sears, Roebuck & Co. had the largest interest with 2,283 of the 8,000 shares. Edward E. Brown, president of the First National, had a block of 683 shares. Total holdings were distributed among 174 owners.

Brown also had 50 shares in the Halsted Exchange bank and 280 Liberty National shares. His holdings were all unchanged during the year.

Another "corporate bank," much more closely held, is the Pullman Trust and Savings bank, in which the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company held 2,900 of the 3,000 shares. Bartholomew O'Toole, president, owned ten shares.

The William Wrigley Jr. company retained more than 80 per cent of the stock in the National Boulevard bank. There were only thirteen other stockholders.

Most of the stock of the Banco di Napoli was in the hands of the parent bank of the same name in Naples.

Other Families Prominent.

Family names, besides those already mentioined, which were prominent in ownership of the smaller banks, included the Altschulers, Rathjes, and Regnerys.

The Altschuler family had 3,233 shares of preferred and 1,672 shares of common in the I-C National bank, which has outstanding 10,000 shares of each class of stock. Irwin I. Alt-

To Be Bank Director

SLATE L. F. STERN AS AM. NATIONAL BANK DIRECTOR

May Become Executive Committee Head.

Lawrence F. Stern, Chicago investment banker, will be elected to the board of the American National Bank and Trust company at the annual meeting of stockholders early in January, it was learned yesterday. Stern is also slated to become chairman of the executive committee of the bank.

It was reported that other new directors will be added to the board.

Active in Investment Field.

Stern has been active in investment banking in Chicago for the last twenty years. From 1908 to 1925 he was with S. W. Straus & Co. as vice president. In 1925 he organized his own investment banking firm of Lawrence Stern & Co. Early this year the securities and investment supervisory business was transferred to a new company, Stern, Wampler & Co., Inc., headed by Cloud Wampler. The old firm continued, retaining the private investment, corporate reorganization and management functions.

Will Celebrate Anniversary.

The American National bank will celebrate the fifth anniversary of its move to La Salle street next Monday evening. Laurance H. Armour, president, and other officials will hold an anniversary dinner at the Chicago club.

Deposits in the bank at the time it moved to 33 N. La Salle street were slightly more than $14,000,000. They have since risen to $52,038,488, as shown in the bank's statement of condition on Sept. 28, 1938.

WHEAT DECLINES DESPITE EXPORT SALES BY FSCC

Sales of 20,000,000 bushels of domestic cash wheat made by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation to English millers on Thursday failed to have any effect on the markets yesterday. Wheat prices held within narrow limits and averaged slightly lower. Closing trades on futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net losses of ⅛ to ¼ cent a bushel.

Corn futures closed with net losses of ⅜ to ⅝ cent a bushel despite reports that a fair amount of American grain had been sold for export. Chicago handlers said they had sold a small lot of corn for all-rail shipment to an Atlantic port. This is the first business of this character reported in a number of months. Heretofore the demand has been for corn for shipment via lake.

Flour Subsidy Dropped.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The agriculture department disclosed today that it had agreed to withdraw its offer to subsidize exports of flour to Great Britain. Officials said that in return British millers agreed to purchase surplus American wheat. The sale of 20 million bushels was announced yesterday.

Of the new financing, 94 per cent was for refunding purposes. Details follow:

Auto Output Is Estimated at 98,695 Units This Week

Automobile production this week was estimated yesterday by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 98,695 units, against 64,391 in the preceding holiday week and 86,173 in the like 1937 week. The service pointed out that the total did not reach the 100,000 units expected because of the one day strike at the Plymouth plant last Wednesday.

ICKES PUTS O. K. ON NEBRASKA POWER SCHEME

Eases PWA Liens to Create Monopoly.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Ickes today gave the go ahead signal to Nebraska's state-wide electric power monopoly program. He approved changes in the Public Works administration's bond arrangements with two of the state's federally financed power and irrigation districts that will permit them to finance the purchase of ten of Nebraska's thirteen privately owned utilities.

The United States government has already sunk 63 million dollars in three Nebraska power projects. Two of these, involved in today's action, are widely regarded as "50 million dollar flops" and their plan to purchase the private utilities as a scheme to get out from under.

Markets Are Limited.

These two are the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation district and the Loup River Public Power district. Experts have known for a long period that the projects had limited markets and the purchase of other systems was principally an endeavor to obtain outlets for their product.

Ickes approved a change in PWA bond indentures that will permit the two power districts to sell their own securities to the public. Cash obtained through these sales would be used to buy the privately owned competitors. The Bancamerica-Blair corporation, big New York investment house, announced today that it planned to sell bonds for the two units. If the program is carried out the state will be saddled with more than 90 million dollars of new debt.

How Lien Is Changed.

In general, the indenture change provides that the new bonds the two districts propose to issue will be serviced by the income from the distribution plants and lines to be purchased. The PWA bonds would be amortized by the companies' payment of guaranteed prices for electrical energy produced at the hydro electric plants.

The Central Nebraska district has received $35,986,000 of PWA loans and grants. The Loup river district has obtained $12,814,000 of loans and grants. A third unit, the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation district, has been given a total of $11,226,000. This third district was not a party to today's agreement, although it joined the other two last May in asking for the indenture change. It is understood it will make a separate agreement later with the PWA.

Plans of Monopoly.

PWA officials said today that the state power monopoly would create a public power grid covering the most populous areas of Nebraska. They asserted it would provide the power districts with what they now lack—a broader market for power produced by the hydro plants in seasons when water was plentiful, and steam powered plants now privately owned, to provide electric energy when the rivers were low.

They also argued that integration of the systems would permit rate reductions. Whether the integration actually is effected hinges on negotiations with the private owners on the sale of their properties.

What Scheme Provides.

The Nebraska scheme provides that the Central take over the private power systems south of the Platte river and east of McCook. The Loup river unit would acquire private lines in eastern Nebraska north of the Platte.

Interconnected by high tension lines with the other districts are two nongenerating districts, the north Loup, which represents a PWA investment of $1,665,000, and middle Loup, which has received $1,390,909 in WPA money. Both provide irrigation and own electrical distribution systems.

Officials said the central and Loup districts did not want to enter the retail electrical business. Retail distribution would be leased to the municipalities.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 2.—Stocks drifted lower today in quiet trading. Early losses running to 2 points in the leaders were pared a shade by late support. A number of volatile issues declined 2 and 3 points.

Transfers totaled 817,390 shares. Of 807 issues traded, 488 declined, 146 advanced and 173 closed unchanged from Thursday's final quotations.

Uneasiness in the financial district over the foreign political situation was blamed as the major factor for the selling. Approach of the week-end was considered another reason.

Chrysler gave ground easily in the motor groups. It was down 2 points before steadying, and closed 1½ points lower General Motors dipped ¾ point. Continental Motors was all over the tape to take the day's volume honors. It gained ¾ point to close at 2¾. Greyhound also was active and higher.

Steels improved modestly from their lows. Declines running to 1 point appeared against United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. Coppers declined fractionally.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—United States government bonds moved ahead today in the face of a further decline in corporate bonds. Treasury issues gained 1-32d to 6-32d of a point.

Dealers said the improvement was in response to the treasury's announcement that $400,000,000 of the new cash borrowing in the December financing would be through the medium of 2¾ per cent long term bonds. The remaining $300,000,000 of new money is to be provided by five year notes.

Continuing yesterday's decline most trading favorites in the corporate division yielded up about all of the gains registered in the mid-week recovery. Losses of 1 to 2 points were numerous in the rail group and similar weakness developed in some utilities and industrials. Western Union loans continued to recede sharply in what market observers believed was a tax loss selling movement.

Foreign loans continued to move unevenly.

Chicago Stocks.

Stocks slipped lower again yesterday on the Chicago exchange. Only 16 of the 112 stocks traded made gains, while 69 declined and 27 held unchanged. The Tribune average of 20 stocks closed off 0.14 at 10.63.

North American Car declined ⅜ to 2. It was the most active stock, with sales of 2,350 shares. Middle West closed off ¼ at 6⅜, and Northwest Bancorporation slipped ⅛ to 6½. Marshall Field finished ⅛ lower at 11¾, and Adams Oil dropped ½, closing at 9. Moving against the trend, Great Lakes Dredge advanced ¾ to 25¾.

The turnover was 28,000 shares, compared with 28,440 on the preceding day. In addition, 4,000 Commonwealth Edison rights were sold, against 8,900 on Thursday.

Bank Stocks.

Leading Chicago bank stocks closed lower yesterday in a quiet market, dealers reported. Shares of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company declined $1 at $74 bid, $76 asked. Chicago Title and Trust company, First National bank, and Northern Trust company stocks were $2 lower.

Commodities

Copper, rubber, and hides led a decline in futures prices for commodities yesterday. Joining in the drop were contracts for coffee, cottonseed oil, cocoa, silk, and tin. Wool tops moved unevenly. Sugar edged upward against the trend.

The metals markets were unsettled by a further decline in the cash price of export copper. With demand continuing weak, the export metal sold down to 10.33 cents a pound, compared with 10.43 on Thursday. This was nearly a full cent below the domestic cash quotation of 11.25 cents. Copper futures slipped 0.13 to 0.16 cent a pound.

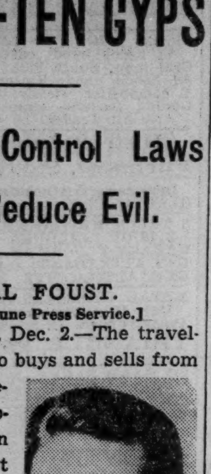
TRUCK TRADERS BECOME GYPSIES AND OFTEN GYPS

Proposed Control Laws Would Reduce Evil.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.—The traveling merchant who buys and sells from his truck has become an established cog in commerce. But the public, especially farmers, doesn't want him to remain established in his present status because in many instances he is a gyp as well as a gypsy. He is an element in the current wave of motorized thievery attacking Illinois farms.



Lieut. Gov. Stelle supports truck act revision.

A bill to revise truck regulation in this state, drafted by a legislative commission for presentation in the forthcoming general assembly, takes the roving trader under control without suppressing him.

No Attack on System.

"We don't want to suppress this form of highway usage," said Lieut. Gov. John Stelle of McLeansboro, a member of the legislative commission. "The truck peddler buys about 20 per cent of the produce of Illinois coal mines exclusive of locomotive fuel.

"The merchant carrier buys a considerable portion of the crop in the fruit belt of southern Illinois. He brings to the farmer's door a market for vegetables, eggs, and poultry, a service that is invaluable to the small producer selling in less than truckload quantities.

"The very nature of this mobile merchandising has been inviting to sharp dealers. Farmers have been swindled by false grading of seed and feed.

Steal Millions in Year.

"A few truck traders also are participants in the agrarian banditry that lifts several million dollars worth of poultry, live stock, grain, and implements from Illinois farms each year. One of these fleet trucks will call on a farmer in the day and offer to buy some hogs. The operator will spot a well stocked feeding pen remote from any house. That night the truck will return and by sunrise the next day the hogs will be 200 miles away.

"The thieves, of course, are in the minority. Almost all of the estimated 30,000 trucker traders in Illinois are honest and will welcome a riddance of the bad apples among them to improve the reputation and the economic welfare of the whole group."

Put in Separate Class.

The proposed truck legislation would register the merchant carrier in a separate classification of highway users. He would receive a permit, without fee, after a showing of insurance and safety qualifications for his vehicle. His name, address, and permit number would be painted on the side of the truck. License plates are easily switched to disguise identification. Also painted on the side of the vehicle would be its empty weight.

The truck trader would be given bill of sale forms in quadruplicate. In his business transactions these bills would be signed by both the buyer and the seller. On request, the trader could be called upon to send copies of these bills to the state control board. The copies would be subject to convenient verification.

Would Prevent Much Cheating.

From these simple records state police believe that much cheating on registration fees would be suppressed. It would be a record of loads and with the empty weight known it would be apparent whether the vehicle was carrying the proper license plates. The truck plates are sold at rates graduated according to gross weights.

The department of finance would use this information for sales tax collections. It is estimated the state's revenue from this excise would be increased $750,000 a year.

Four other stockholders had more than 100 shares each. The Rathjes kept 1,728 shares in the Chicago City Bank and Trust company. Henry F. Jaeger and Selda F. Jaeger had 1,324 shares in the same bank.

The 20,000 shares of the Personal Loan and Savings bank, downtown, were distributed among 179 holders. Hirshaw & Co., with 4,000 shares, or ninety-seven fewer than a year earlier, still had the largest amount. The estate of Willoughby G. William English Walling II. owned 1,200, and Calvin Fentress, now president, increased his interest to 1,856, up ninety-nine shares. The University of Chicago retained its stock of 1,000 shares.

Lake Shore Holders Shown.

Roy C. Osgood, chairman of the Upper Avenue National bank, held 834 shares, the same as a year earlier. Part of the holding was personal and part as a nominee for other interests. The rest of the 3,000 shares were scattered among 87 other holders.

Insurance Company Owns Stock.

The Washington National Insurance company held 486 shares, the largest interest in the North Shore National bank's 2,000 shares outstanding.

Control of the Lake View Trust and Savings bank was concentrated in a few holders. Of the 5,000 shares, outstanding, Joseph J. Budlong, president, had 800, the Hayes family held 910, the Higleys, 478, and four other holders more than 200 shares each. The bank had ninety shareholders.

Stock continued to be closely held, with no apparent control by a single interest, in a number of banks, including the Lawndale National, Cosmopolitan National Main State, Beverly State, Aetna State, and Hamilton State banks.

STANDARD GAS REPORTS SHARP DROP IN PROFIT

Lynch Says Time Needed for Integration Plans.

The Standard Gas and Electric company yesterday reported a sharp drop in earnings for the first nine months of this year compared with the corresponding 1937 period.

Net income of the company and its subsidiaries for the period was $146,241, compared with $2,984,804 in first nine months of last year. Operating revenues of the system were $65,189,911, compared with $66,963,769. At the same time the company spent more on maintenance and had heavier taxes to meet than a year ago.

B. W. Lynch, president, said that "ample time" will be needed by the company to put into execution the plans for integration of the system.

Files Plan with SEC.

The company filed its plan of integration with the Securities and Exchange commission Nov. 26. Details of the plan were not disclosed.

"The questions involved," Lynch said, "are of great consequence and such decisions as have been made will have a far reaching effect upon the company and the scope and character of the operations of the Standard Gas system."

Lynch intimated that the plan calls for the swapping of properties with other utility systems

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

A Welcome Visitor.

Dec. 2, 1938.

WE have a bird visitor on the farm this week that is getting a big welcome. In fact, it's welcome to stay all winter, for this feathered visitor is a sparrow hawk, one of the most industrious mouse catchers of the whole hawk family. Now that the insect food of these small and beautiful hawks no longer is available they naturally turn to mice for food. One day this week we surprised our sparrow hawk in flight, holding a mouse in its claws.

As far as we could reconstruct what happened the hawk had nabbed this mouse in a grassy meadow and when we came along a farm road the bird was flying low out of the field. It rose in the air just high enough to clear one of the big wire fences and then continued on toward a stand of oak trees. We were so close to the bird that it was easy to see the mouse in its claws.

See Them in Fields.

There are a number of sparrow hawks now in fields west and northwest of Chicago. On recent drives and walks in the country from Barrington southward toward the Tribune farm we have seen these birds either along the road or flying low over the fields. During the summer and early fall the sparrow hawk might well be named the "insect hawk" or "grasshopper hawk," for its food is composed very largely of injurious insects. Only a small toll is taken from small birds. Bird students who have watched these predators feed and noted the food brought by mature birds to their young give us an accurate picture of the feeding habits of this useful little bird. For example, P. L. Errington's nest and field observations showed that the foods of a group of sparrow hawks included twenty-one rodents, five English sparrows, and a great number of grasshoppers. Stomachs of twenty-five of these hawks taken in Ohio held thirteen small mammals [field mice], one bird, nineteen insects, and a crawfish.

The sparrow hawk visitor now on the farm will find plenty of field mice to eat. These small animals can be and frequently are a pest. The most common mouse in the fields is a little gray, short tailed fellow that makes burrows in the heavy grass. Sparrow hawks, and also little owls, know how to hunt these animals and they kill and eat many of them in the course of a winter.

Getting Free Food.

Some of these field mice have found out how they can get free food around the bird traps on the farm. These wire traps are baited with a mixture of grains and seeds to attract birds into the cages so they can be banded and released. A number of times we have lifted the traps and noticed field mice in runways leading to and from the traps. Evidently these little rodents have discovered that a certain amount of the feed falls through the wire traps to the ground, so they have wasted no time in heading that way.

The starlings staying on the farm this winter are giving daily demonstrations of why this bird species always can get along, continue to increase their numbers, and know how to appropriate the best locations for shelter. Several of these birds live around the sheep barn. Now that cold weather is at hand they want a real snug roost. So they have just taken over the metal air vent on top of the poultry house. This is an ideal retreat for these year round residents, one that gives them protection in the coldest weather.

Means More Favorable Investment Situation.

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The percentage of United States government bonds held by life insurance companies in the United States has decreased this year, T. A. Phillips, president of the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance company of St. Paul said today. He told the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents that this is a good sign because "it means that a larger portion of new funds is being invested on a more favorable interest basis.

"Also, it reflects improvement in the mortgage and corporate bond markets sufficient to permit larger commitments in these categories than in 1937," he said. "In fact these commitments are larger than in any year since 1928."

Hold 4½ Billions.

Analyzing the portfolios of forty-nine companies which hold 92 per cent of the investments of legal reserve companies in the nation, Phillips found that present holdings of government bonds are $4,500,000,000. This is 17.9 per cent of all their investments, whereas last year such securities totaled 18.1 per cent.

Other aspects of the investment situation which he found important were:

"Progressively smaller decreases each year since 1934 in volume of farm mortgage holdings, with some hope that the downward trend may be nearing its end.

View on Rail Bond Situation.

He said that the effect of the present situation of railroads, so many of which are in receivership, "although not to be minimized, has probably been exaggerated." Railroad securities form only 12.1 per cent of insurance company holdings, and many of the railroads are paying something on such securities. Some are paying full interest.

Farm mortgages, he said, represent about 3 per cent of assets, part of a shrinkage in such loans since 1930 being due to repayments of loans and acquisitions of properties. Another factor, he said, is the offering by the federal government of loans at lower interest than insurance firms can profitably ask.

The demand for policy loans became heavy early in the year, in the business recession, but has slackened. Loans on policies are $3,089,000,000, he said, or 12.1 per cent of assets. This is a reduction from the 18 per cent of assets which they represented in 1932 and 1933.

Investors' Guide

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate very much if you would tell me how my mother could send me 10½ shares of new Cities Service stock to be sold by me in Chicago. She lives in Colorado. I want to sell the stock for her and buy some shares in other companies on the Chicago Stock exchange. Would shares have to be transferred to me or could I sell them for her?—L. W. D.

Answer: Have your mother endorse the stock certificates "in blank," that is, without naming a transferee, and send the certificate to you. You can then take it to a broker and have him make the sale for you. There is no need to have the stock transferred to you. You can purchase the other securities you have in mind in her name if you wish.

Burson Knitting Bonds.

Investors' Guide: Kindly send me information regarding Burson Knitting Mills of Rockford, Ill., 6 per cent bonds. Have these bonds been paying interest when due? When do they mature and what are they selling for?—J. T. L.

Answer: There are $204,500 of the Burson Knitting company's 6 per cent bonds still outstanding, of an original issue of $1,000,000. The maturity of these bonds was originally March 1, 1934, but was extended to March 1, 1939. Interest has been paid regularly, although unearned in recent years. Net loss of the company in 1937 was $2,278. Losses ranged between $4,799 and $107,569 in the years 1931 to 1936, inclusive. The bonds are currently quoted around 53 bid. They are speculative.

Texas Oil Producers.

Investors' Guide: In 1919 there was a "Texas Oil Producers company" which had been incorporated under the laws of the state of Delaware that issued shares. What has become of this company? What, if anything, are the shares worth? For over thirty years I have enjoyed your paper and the benefits of these various information columns. Thank you.—J. J. F.

Answer: The last reported sale of stock of the Texas Oil Producers company, Houston, Tex., was of 555 shares which, together with 285 shares of Texland Oil corporation stock, were sold in November, 1924, for $3 at auction. The company's Delaware charter was declared void on Jan. 19, 1925, for nonpayment of taxes. There were 3,000,000 shares of the stock outstanding with par value of $1 a share. The shares are apparently worthless.
